Storm batters Northwest

Landslide buries 9

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nine men were missing today after a rock and earth slide smothered a telephone company building in Oregon, and two children drowned in Northern California.

The men were working in a Pacific Northwest Bell Co. structure near Canyonville in southwestern Oregon Wednesday night when the landslide roared off a mountain, pushed the structure into a creek and then buried it in mud.

Authorities moved heavy equipment to the scene to dig for possible survivors, then abandoned the rescue attempt temporarily until geologists could gauge the danger of further slides.

The Oregon landslide came in the wake of heavy rains and an early snow melt that sent already swollen streams in many areas of the Pacific Northwest surging to new highs.

The storm left its soggy impact on western Montana, Idaho, northeastern Washington, Western Oregon and Northern California.

Dams broke and mudslides blocked highways. Hundreds of families were forced from their homes by floodwaters.

At Myers Flat, on a branch of the Eel River in Northern California, 14-year-old Jimmy Moore and his 12-year-old sister, Kathy, died Wednesday when a dam created by a log-jam burst and surging water swept them from the backyard of their home.

Sheriff's Lt. Robert Williams said the youngsters were helping their father, Emery, move property to higher ground when they were swept to their deaths.

Moore escaped. His wife was in the family home, which was torn loose by the swirling water. She escaped death when the house washed back to shore after being carried some 75 out into the raging stream.

Eight counties in Idaho were declared a disaster area.

The Idaho mining district of Coeur d'Alene was virtually isolated. Dams burst. Water blocked highways. At least 1,000 persons were evacuated from their homes.

Fifteen persons were reported trapped by high water on a bridge over the north fork of the Coeur D'Alene river in Idaho. A major bridge over the south fork of the Coeur d'Alene collapsed, isolating hundreds of persons.

In Western Oregon, hit by the worst flooding in 10 years, there was some relief from high water Wednesday as the rain slackened and rivers receded. At least 250 families had fled their homes.

Storm warnings were in effect on the Oregon coast for wind gusts up to 70 miles per hour. Wind speeds of 70 m.p.h. hour were clocked Wednesday at Livingston, Mont., and Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Amtrak, the national rail passenger service, announced it had canceled all service between Vancouver, B.C., and Oakland, Calif., because of the rains and high water. Amtrak's Seattle-Chicago service was suspended west of Havre and Billings, Mont.

Hundreds of persons were forced from their homes by high water in Northern California and dozens of roads, including scenic coastal highway U.S. 101, were closed by slides and flooding streams. Four bridges were reported washed out in Trinity County.

Authorities reported that 400 residents were evacuated from low-lying areas in Humboldt County, some 200 persons fled their homes at Pepperwood and another 150 were forced from their homes near Dunsmuir, north of Mt. Shasta on the Sacramento river.

More than four inches of rain pelted the Dunsmuir area in 24 hours.

The Southern Pacific reported that 1,500 feet of track was washed away near Dunsmuir. Two Amtrak trains carrying more than 300 passengers were held up at Redding, Calif., and Klamath Falls, Ore., because of flooded tracks.

At Ukiah, in Northern California's Mendocino County, water was hubcap deep in the streets.

FBI enters probe of tape gap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation has entered the investigation into who could have pushed the buttons that erased a portion of a taped presidential conversation.

Confirmation that the FBI had entered the probe came from spokesman Robert Frank, who said the agency had been asked to investigate by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Meanwhile, a court inquiry into the tape erasure continued. Prosecutors, armed with a technical report on how the 18.5-minute gap occurred, looked to additional testimony for answers.

Two more Secret Service officials involved in keeping track of the White House tapes and recording equipment were scheduled to testify today in federal court.

The Washington bureau of Westinghouse Broadcasting Corp. said that the FBI probe had the approval of FBI chief Clarence Kelley. Westinghouse said the investigation would involve President Nixon and his closest personal aides.

In the court inquiry, Stephen B. Bull, special assistant to President Nixon, testified Wednesday that he knew of only five people who ever had possession of the tape of a June 20, 1972, conversation between Nixon and H. R. Haldeman.

He said they were himself, the President, presidential secretary Rose Mary Woods, White House lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt and Gen. John Bennett, a presidential aide.

At the close of Wednesday's hearing U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica said he hoped all testimony would be completed Friday when the technical experts return to be cross-examined by White House lawyers.

Then, it will be up to the judge to decide what happens next and Sirica said, for the first time in open court, that he expects his decision to include whether or not the mystery of the obliterated tape should be referred to a grand jury.

On Tuesday, technical experts reported that the 18.5-minute segment of the tape had been erased during a series of between five and nine actions on a Uher 5000 tape recorder. Each time that the machine was restarted and stopped again someone had to push a button, the report said.

Testimony by the experts, and a Secret Service official Wednesday, and previous testimony by Miss Woods pointed to Oct. 1 as the date on which a portion of the erasure occurred.

Miss Woods has testified that on Oct. 1 she accidentally pushed the wrong button while transcribing the June 20 tape. She also said that in going back to listen to the tape after the accident she heard a couple of minutes of buzzing and no conversation.

Those few minutes are included within the 18.5-minutes that the experts say were erased. They also said their tests indicated the erasure was done on the same machine used by Miss Woods.

Wednesday's testimony also disclosed that Miss Woods' Uher machine was purchased new Oct. 1 and brought by the Secret Service to Bull who took it to Miss Woods about 1:30 p.m.

At least temporarily

Council members may scrap cab franchise

Washington C.H. is still without taxicab service, but it's not that City Council isn't trying to do something to remedy the unfortunate situation.

Council members, in a special "workshop session" Wednesday night, unanimously agreed not to award the city's taxicab franchise to any one of the four applicants.

Joseph O'Brien and Billie Wilson, who serve on City Council's service committee, had a prepared report which was reviewed in length. O'Brien and Wilson said the top prospect for the franchise had withdrawn his application.

There's a possibility that City Council will scrap the taxicab franchise, at least temporarily.

COUNCIL MEMBERS unanimously agreed to investigate the possibility of establishing an open licensing system for city taxicab service.

Under the open licensing plan, which was explained by City Manager Dan Wolford, a number of taxicab license applications would be available.

Applicants would be forced to have their taxicabs, or private autos, inspected by the Washington C.H. Police Department for safety and certain other requirements such as liability insurance coverage would have to be met.

It's almost inevitable that some solution to the problem will be presented at City Council's regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday.

THE CITY has been without taxicab service for 17 days and Council members are continuing to receive an enormous number of complaints concerning the situation.

Taxicab service in Washington C.H. was discontinued effective Jan. 1 by William Phillips, owner of the Fayette Cab Co. Labor problems and low profit margins were cited by Phillips as the primary reasons for discontinuing the taxicab service.

The special session gave City Council members an opportunity to schedule work sessions on various items such as the annual appropriations. Council also scheduled a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 28, with the Fayette County Health Department to discuss the proposed multi-county solid waste disposal district.

Wednesday's worksession was scheduled at an early hour since the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals had its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m.

State solons still seek abortion measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After almost a year of frustration, Ohio lawmakers still are searching for legal language that would permit the state to place reasonable controls on abortions.

The task was placed Wednesday in the hands of an Ohio Senate Judiciary Subcommittee which Chairman Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, said should report back to the full committee in two or three weeks.

Gillmor named the subcommittee after hearing the last of testimony on a proposal passed last year by the House, and upon agreement by committee members that in its present form, it probably would not comply with the U.S. Supreme Court decision that invalidated Ohio's old anti-abortion law.

The committee action, along with introduction in both houses of Atty. Gen. William J. Brown's proposed new drug abuse bill, highlighted an otherwise routine day in the legislature.

Senators approved without dissent a bill that gives port authorities the right to employ special policemen. About 40 minutes of debate preceded passage, and agreement came only after a successful amendment by Sen. David L. Headley, D-28 Barberton, specified that the special police could only enforce state laws — and not regulations adopted by port authorities.

Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo, the main sponsor, said it was especially needed in Lucas County where the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority took over Toledo Express Airport, 14 miles from the city. He said the sheriff's office was not equipped to handle emergency enforcement problems.

Across the Statehouse, representatives also debated at length before passing a measure by Rep. Richard L. Wittenberg, D-44 Toledo, that puts provisions of the Model Weights and Measures Law into a state code and increases powers of the director of agriculture to enforce them.

The floor fight centered about a provision that would have permitted the director to halt commercial vehicles, inspect them, and seize any products suspected of being illegally packaged or mislabelled.

Retained, however, was the authority for the director or his agents to enter private business establishments for the same type of inspections and seizures. The investigators could not enter without permission, however, unless armed with search warrants.

Named by Gillmor to the abortion subcommittee were Sens. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria; Walter L. White, R-12 Lima, and Donald L. Woodland, D-16 Columbus.

Among witnesses was Stanley Laughlin Jr., an attorney representing the Ohio Civil Liberties Union and legal counsel in a federal court case that held Ohio's old law to be invalid initially. The old statute permitted abortions only if the mother's health was in danger.

Laughlin said provisions in the House bill, which make physicians responsible for deciding when it is safe to perform an abortion, are "more repressive than the one declared unconstitutional in Ohio — your old abortion law."

James Polman, an attorney representing the Ohio State Medical Association, predicted few abortions would be performed in Ohio if the House bill were to become law. Penalties it would levy on doctors not following prescribed procedures would keep them from performing an abortion, Polman said.

In other action, the House Transportation Committee referred to the House Select Committee on Energy an administration bill permitting Ohio to comply with the new federal 55 mile per hour speed limit.

Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, who heads the new energy panel, said hearings probably will begin on the bill next week, along with other energy bills expected from the administration. The legislature created the new committee to receive and set priorities for an expected floodtide of measures on fuel shortages and related matters.

Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, and Rep. Myrl Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, are the Senate and House sponsors, respectively, of the drug bill which the attorney general claims will give Ohio one of the toughest drug laws in the nation.

Among the more stringent provisions are those that eliminate any possibility of probation for certain offenses, primarily those committed by drug pushers. "We want to end plea bargaining where drug pushers are concerned," Brown said.

Addicts, under the bill, however, could get probation if they agree to treatment, and if successfully rehabilitated, their record could be expunged.

Soybean checkoff program rejected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio soybean growers have rejected a proposed domestic and foreign marketing program for their crop, state Agriculture Director Gene Abercrombie said today.

Abercrombie said 2,297 voted for the program, while 2,158 were against it.

He said 66 2-3 per cent of the production total, or 66 2-3 per cent of the producers, were required to approve the program.

He said the favorable vote represented 51.6 per cent of the total bushels produced in the state and 58.7 per cent of the growers.

The marketing program would have permitted a half-cent checkoff on all soybeans sold in Ohio. At least 60 per cent of the money would have been used to develop foreign markets. The remainder of the money would have been used for domestic market development and research.

"I don't think the half-cent would have bothered anybody," said Abercrombie. "Soybeans are at an equitable market price now. It may have been apathy."

Ohio has more than 55,000 soybean producers and only 4,455 voted, he said.

The agriculture director said the soybean referendum was the first such program to be defeated by Ohio farmers. They had previously approved programs for beef, turkeys, eggs and apples.

He said the proposal failed with the votes of Shelby County missing.

"Since 60 votes and 145,000 bushels were missing, it couldn't possibly change the vote one way or another," Abercrombie said.

Ohio soybean farmers cast their ballots during a three-day period last week and mailed their ballots to the state Agriculture Department.

The News In Brief

DOVER, England (AP) — At least 14 persons were drowned, 23 seamen were missing and another 20-man crew were trapped aboard their burning ship today as 100-mile-an-hour winds piled up 50-foot waves in the English Channel.

The 2,447-ton freighter Marta was afire 10 miles off Ostend, Belgium. The coast guard said the huge waves were preventing the 20 crewmen from launching liferafts. Several ships were trying to help.

Nixon defense costs nearly $300,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has spent about $300,000 on President Nixon's Watergate defense but argues it is outspent and outnumbered by a growing investigative bureaucracy.

Apparently seeking to mute any criticism of government outlays to defend Nixon, a White House official made material available to support the argument that the President's lawyers are the underdogs.

The official reported that expenses of the White House legal group totalled $290,418 between last July 1 and Jan. 9. He said spending for the full 1974 fiscal year, ending June 30, probably would total about $600,000, perhaps more.

By contrast, he said the special prosecutor alone has a $2.8-million budget, the Senate Watergate committee $1.5 million and the House Judiciary Committee $1 million.

The official said Nixon's defense team consists of 14 fulltime attorneys, four part-time lawyer-consultants, and seven secretaries.

He said the Watergate prosecutor and the two congressional committees employ 60 attorneys, with 25 more authorized, plus 113 investigators, accountants, researchers, secretaries and other support personnel.

Boston attorney James D. St. Clair heads the Nixon team at a salary of $42,500 a year, the same as White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt and presidential assistant Leonard Garment, who are trying to cut loose from Watergate chores but were listed by the White House source as members of the defense staff.

Cecil Emerson, a staff assistant to Nixon who is paid $32,031 a year, was cited as the only other defense attorney on the White House payroll.

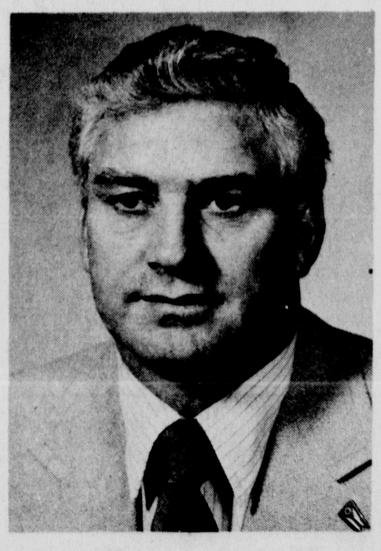

Jaworski's salary is $38,000 a year. Among his assistants, Richard Ben-Veniste is listed as earning $29,205 a year and Jill Vollner, $25,055.

Man convicted of biggest Ohio bank burglary

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Amil Dinsio, 36, who already has been convicted in what is reported to be the largest bank burglary in U.S. history, now has been convicted of what federal authorities say is the biggest bank burglary on record in Ohio.

A U.S. District Court jury found Dinsio, of Boardman, Ohio, guilty Wednesday in the $430,604 burglary of the Lordstown branch of the Second National Bank of Warren on May 5, 1972.

Sentencing was deferred by Judge Leroy J. Contie Jr. pending a report by the U.S. Parole and Probation Office.

Dinsio was convicted in December, 1972, for his part in the $6 million burglary of the United Bank of California's Laguna Niguel branch.

U.S. tax reform far from ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite speeches, hearings and campaign debate, federal tax reform remains an issue far from final action in the Congress that reconvenes next Monday.

It has been on the agenda for a year, with rival proposals from Democrats and the Republican administration still pending. The House Ways and Means Committee is expected to resume consideration of tax reform in February.

Meanwhile, the tax experts of a joint congressional committee are looking into President Nixon's own tax returns. The President asked that panel to investigate and judge whether he owes more taxes.

Nixon's disclosure of his own tax payments, totaling less than $6,000 for 1970, 1971 and 1972, could provide new impetus for the lagging reform movement.

Legislation to tighten minimum tax provisions, designed to insure that the wealthy pay sizeable taxes despite the deductions and tax advantages to which they are entitled by law, is part of virtually every reform recipe.

A group of Senate Democrats has introduced a more stringent minimum tax bill, citing the Nixon case.

The administration itself has such a proposal before Congress, to require that people pay taxes on at least half their income despite deductions.

Had that been law, it would have increased the President's taxes. As President, his salary is $200,000 a year.

He has been taking tax deductions for vice presidential papers donated to the government, and appraised at $576,000. Those deductions are one of the specific items on which he requested congressional review.

The administration plan for a change in minimum tax requirements was part of a package presented to the House Ways and Means Committee last April 30.

Among other administration proposals are a system of tax credits to provide property tax relief for the elderly, and for tuition payments to private schools.

Those were two items the President stressed during the 1972 campaign, when the Democrats were hammering tax reform as an issue.

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic nominee, advocated tax changes he said would raise $22 billion in additional revenues, saying that reforms should get more money from the rich and from corporations.

Costlier labor pacts expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — A forecast of bigger contract settlements this year from the government's top wage controller may indicate a relaxation of the administration's pay guidelines.

"I would expect that the normal forces that operate on wages will result in higher settlements in 1974," said Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council.

In meeting with newsmen Wednesday, Dunlop gave no indication that the council would hold wages to the 5.6 per cent average increase of contracts last year.

He also said he opposes any move into a new Phase 5 wage-price control program after legal authority for the Economic Stabilization Program expires in April.

But he said he would not rule out the possibility of continued Phase 4-type controls should Congress extend authority beyond the present April 30 expiration date.

Dunlop said his recommendations are before the President, and that he and Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz would present the administration's proposal to Congress Feb. 6 in testimony before a Senate Banking subcommittee.

In the meantime, he said the council is weighing a proposal to lift price controls from several industries, including food manufacturing. He said there is general agreement that when controls are lifted from the retail end of the food business, "we should do it in one fell swoop."

Wage-price controls have been in effect in various forms since August 1971 as part of the administration's effort to control inflation. But the inflation rate increased from 3.4 per cent in 1972 to nearly 9 per cent last year, with projections of more of the same this year.

Dunlop said he expected "continued, substantial increases" in wholesale prices through April and an appreciable jump in retail food prices that "will further aggravate the situation."

The pressure of rising prices, a tightening labor market and high industry profits will push wage settlements up more this year than at any time since the start of the controls program, he predicted.

A number of major contracts come up this year and labor leaders are expected to be more militant in their demands.

Dunlop expressed concern with bargaining early this year in the aluminum and can industries as well as in the reopening of the Teamsters contract.

He conceded that higher wages will bring new pressure for still further increases in prices.

Agreement near completion on Mideast troop changes

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli sources said they expect Moscow, Washington, Egypt and Israel to announce today that agreement has been reached on separating the Egyptian and Israeli armies.

Officials said the disengagement agreement would have to be submitted to the Mideast peace conference in Geneva.

The Israeli Cabinet apparently approved a plan worked out by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who has been in the Mideast since last Friday, shuttling between Jerusalem and Aswan, Egypt.

Sources said Israel might get only mutual understandings with Egypt, instead of a written pledge, on thinning out Arab forces east of the Suez Canal.

Egyptian newspapers wrote of a disengagement agreement today in terms that also indicated one was near.

"The wording and clauses of each provision will be clear and precise in such a way as to avoid ambiguity or misinterpretation by any of the parties," said Al Gomhouriya.

"Each of the Israeli pullback stages will be implemented according to a timetable and will stipulate minute details on the transport of equipment and thinning out of Israeli troops, the number of these forces and the kinds of weapons."

However, no one gave any indication of how the various points of disagreement previously reported were being resolved.

These include Israel's demand that Egyptian forces on the east bank of the canal be reduced and rocket and antiaircraft missile launchers on that side of the waterway be removed. Also included is Egypt's insistence that Israel commit itself to the position that its withdrawal of troops from the canal is the first step in a withdrawal from other occupied Arab territory.

Meanwhile, Premier Golda Meir's Israeli government was under fire at home. Its chief political opposition, the rightwing Likud bloc that made sizable gains in the general election New Year's Eve, charged that the government was negotiating a "one-sided retreat of our forces, not disengagement."

Nixon plans to deliver State speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is expected to appear personally before Congress and on national television to deliver his State of the Union message during the last week in January, according to White House sources.

The sources said the speech has been postponed about a week from its originally planned date of Jan. 23.

The annual message is expected to set forth the President's blueprint for the nation's future and Nixon is reportedly hopeful that it will cast him in a leadership role and help to dispel the cloud of Watergate.

A new proposal for a federal health insurance program and suggestions for revised transportation policies are expected to be included in the message, and Nixon is also believed to be considering a plan to put a floor under the income of poverty level Americans.

Last year Nixon sent his State of the Union message to Congress by messenger and followed it with a series of messages detailing his major ideas. It is believed he will again this year follow up with a series of special messages on specific program proposals.

Meanwhile, Nixon conferred on health insurance and transportation policy with Kenneth R. Cole Jr., executive director of the domestic council. Nixon then announced that Cole will be named his assistant for domestic affairs.

Faces of Mao, Stalin, Nixon seen in D.C. building mural

WASHINGTON (AP) — When District of Columbia officials gathered to dedicate a bicentennial building, they were confronted with mural-like sketches of Mao Tse-tung, Joseph Stalin and President Nixon in gangster garb.

The artist, H. H. Booker Jr., said no one told him what to draw. "They just said to make faces," he said.

Some of the faces, drawn in charcoal around the top of a room in the D.C. Bicentennial Building, aren't likely to survive until 1976.

James P. Alexander, assistant to Mayor Walter E. Washington for bicentennial affairs, says the concept somehow went awry. "What we had planned was a living mural, people in the news, with the faces changing periodically."

Alexander said he expects to have staff artists start changing faces shortly, replacing the questionable ones with "people active as America moves forward."

Booker recalls his work as "a whole lot of fun."

The presidential sketch bears only a minimal resemblance to Nixon. The nose and 5 o'clock shadow are familiar, but he is disguised with a moustache and wears a dark shirt and white tie.

Stalin was given muttonchop whiskers and Mao is wearing a business suit. Tricia Nixon Cox is there with an Afro hairdo.

The mayor, who attended the dedication Tuesday, apparently did not recognize the likenesses. He had no comment but reportedly demanded to know whether District of Columbia tax money would be used to pay the artist. Alexander said it would not, that a donation would be used for the expense.

Alexander said in an interview the contractor on the job, Herbert Banham of the Fountown Sign Shop, was told that what was wanted was people from different periods of world history.

Fountown hired Booker. Asked if he is a Marxist, the artist replied, "I guess so."

So he drew in Karl Marx and his associate Friedrich Engels. But he also included Groucho Marx, Greta Garbo, Laurel and Hardy, and Gracie Allen, who is next to the likeness of Nixon.

Red missile over-rated?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Technical analysis indicates that a Soviet-made antiaircraft missile fired by the Arabs in the recent Mideast war was overrated, Pentagon sources report.

The SA7 was found to be too slow to knock down U.S. jets flown at high speed by Israeli pilots and its warhead was not powerful enough to destroy more than a few of the jets it did hit, sources said.

According to reports being studied here, only two of 28 U.S. built Israeli Skyhawks struck by SA7 missiles crashed while the other 26 landed safely, U.S. military sources said. Neither of the downed planes was traveling faster than about 450 miles per hour when struck.

The Israeli Air Force lost heavily in the first four days of the October war and considerable credit for those killed was given to Soviet-provided antiaircraft missiles.

One of those missiles was the SA7, a heat-seeking weapon that was mounted in groupings of four to eight on tracked vehicles. The SA7 was encountered first in South Vietnam where it was effective against helicopters when shoulder-fired by North Vietnamese infantry men.

The Israelis captured some SA7s and other types of Soviet-supplied antiaircraft missiles. Israeli and U.S. technicians have been studying their performance ever since the October war.

Among the weapons under study is the new SA6, a high speed antiaircraft missile designed to counter low-level attack planes. The SA6 was encountered for the first time in the recent Mideast war. This missile too was credited at first with many Israeli kills but it was determined later that the SA6 caused most damage by forcing Israeli pilots into evasive maneuvers that brought their planes into the muzzles of antiaircraft guns.

Meanwhile, other studies of Israeli tanks knocked out in the October battles indicate that Russian antitank ammunition is highly destructive, perhaps more so than American experts had believed it to be.

Family spat brings death to officers

DETROIT (AP) — Two young policemen have been shot to death and two others wounded after answering "the most difficult type of call," a family fight involving a gun.

Killed Wednesday were Leonard Todd, 32, an 11-year police veteran just promoted to sergeant, and Patrolman Edward Pakula, 27, an ex-Marine with four years on the force. Each was married and the father of one child.

A 15-year-old boy also was grazed by a bullet in a hail of gunfire which cut down the four officers, police said. The youth, whom police declined to identify, was reported in satisfactory condition.

Authorities also would not identify the man who fired from the house. They said he was not hurt.

Police Commissioner Philip Tannian said officers were dispatched to a quiet, middle-income neighborhood in Northeast Detroit after a woman made two calls to police.

They said that in the first call she asked for help in a family quarrel and in the second reported that "someone was shooting up the house."

He said the responding officers stepped into a barrage of gunfire when they arrived at the home.

Cooler in the northeast with mild temperatures continuing in the rest of the state is the current Ohio weather outlook.

Skies were clear over much of the state during the night but in the early hours of Thursday clouds began to work in from the northeast and by dawn had spread as far as the Ohio River.

Clouds spreading over northern counties are the result of colder air flowing in from the northeast. A large high pressure center in Central Canada is moving east to southeast. The cool air from this high will cover the northeastern half of the state Thursday and Thursday night while mild temperatures continue elsewhere.

No precipitation is expected today or tonight although there is a chance of a little drizzle at times near Lake Erie.

A chance of rain is forecast for Saturday. Skies will be cloudy Sunday and fair Monday. Highs will range from the 40s to 50s Saturday to the 40s Monday. Lows will range from the 30s and 40s early Saturday to the 20s early Monday.

Stock list up sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market remained sharply higher today amid rising hopes that some agreement between Israel and Egypt was imminent.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 8.45 to 864.54. Advances topped declines on the New York Stock Exchange by nearly 5 to 1.

Eugene Peroni, analyst with du Pont Walston, Inc., attributed the market's gains primarily to technical conditions which, he said, were "very much supported by optimistic and hopeful news coming out of the Mideast." He cited news reports that an agreement would be announced later today by Egypt, Israel, the Soviet Union, and the United States.

Rite Aid was volume leader on the NYSE, off ¼ to 9¼ after a 386,500-share block at 8½, down 1.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index at noon was up .73 to 95.41, while the NYSE index was up .59 to 51.77.

Bad day for woman

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — Ever have one of those days that just didn't get off to a good start? Meet Rina Kratofil.

She outlined this series of events to the Cascade Fire Department Wednesday:

Her waterbed started leaking at 4 a.m.

Then the floods that have soaked Northern California wiped out her home's electricity.

She decided to solve that problem by placing candles about the house. After she had done that, she started making breakfast, but dropped the egg container and broke every egg she had in the house.

Meanwhile, her dog knocked over one of the candles. The candle landed on the couch, setting it afire. That ignited a corner of the room.

The fire department arrived and managed to confine the damage to a single room.

"Look, it's only eight o'clock in the morning," Cascade Fire Department Chief Hans Heinrich told the woman. "I'd advise you not to touch anything for the rest of the day."

Health Care controls may stick

WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of the Cost of Living Council has raised the possibility that some controls over health costs may continue after the present wage-price control authority expires at the end of April.

"It is my view that it will be important to continue a statutory base for restraint of health costs after April 30," Council director John T. Dunlop said Wednesday.

The council on Wednesday issued its final Phase 4 regulation on health costs, allowing doctors and dentists a 4 per cent annual increase in fees and hospitals about 7.5 per cent in charges.

The old controls provided for a 2.5 per cent increase in charges of medical practitioners and allowed hospitals to increase their charges by up to 6 per cent when justified by higher costs.

Dunlop noted that the health industry has in the past experienced some of the most serious inflation in the economy.

But he said previous controls programs have cut down on the rate of inflation, reducing the annual increase in over-all health prices from 6.9 per cent in 1969 to 3.2 per cent in 1972.

appointed by Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan for a two-year study of local government operations and ways of making it more responsive to the needs of Ohio citizens.

Dumford said finances of $500,000 were obtained from foundation programs for a two-year study. The commission will complete its work in April and file a final report with the governor.

He is a 1947 graduate of Bloomingburg High School and received a Bachelor of Science degree in education from Ohio State University in 1951.

Dumford is past president of the Bloomingburg Lions Club, past president of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club, past director of the Washington C.H. License official disciplined in Rhodes renewal case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A 65-year-old licensing supervisor for the Ohio Real Estate Commission has been disciplined for renewing the broker's license of former Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Victor Herbert, assistant director of the Ohio Department of Commerce, said John C. Johnson was suspended for five days without pay, effective Wednesday.

Department spokesman John Christensen said Johnson, an appointee of Rhodes, failed to comply with two commission guidelines.

He said Johnson was told to withhold renewal of Rhodes' license until further word from Commerce Director Dennis Shaul. He said Johnson also was told not to make any renewals for brokers who did not have trust bank accounts as required by law.

Christensen said when Rhodes applied for renewal last November, he did not have such an account.

Christensen said the case has not been closed. "We're reviewing the case and trying to answer a number of questions," he said.

He added that Shaul "will make the final decision" on Johnson sometime next week. He indicated that firing of the employe was a possibility.

Johnson was named to the commission during the second term of Rhodes, who served from 1963 to 1970.

Rhodes, a Republican, first received his broker's license in the final days of his administration. He was issued the license after taking a brief oral examination in his office.

He did not take the written test required of other applicants.

Christensen said the commission "has no clear remedy" to revoke Rhodes' first license under real estate guidelines. However, he said, the Ohio attorney general has been asked to prepare a court suit to challenge Rhodes first license.

Medic licensing relaxation urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—If Ohio wants to alleviate its doctor shortage, it could make it easier for U.S. citizens who graduate from foreign medical schools to be licensed in the state, a legislative committee was told Wednesday night.

Rep. Arthur R. Bowers, D-98 Steubenville, brought witnesses before the House State Government Committee supporting his enabling measure. They included a New Concord, Ohio, native now in his third year at the autonomous University of Guadalajara, Mexico.

The same committee earlier Wednesday night recommended passage of a measure by Rep. C. J. McLin Jr. D-36 Dayton, giving legal status to a medical school at Wright State University at Dayton.

McLin's bill has the effect of reconfirming demands of Dayton area legislators in the wake of a growing dispute with administration spokesmen who have taken a stand against the Wright State facility.

The dispute also involves a proposal in a governor's task force report to withhold action on a second new medical school in northeast Ohio.

Bowers' bill would require that the State Medical Board allow a graduate of a foreign school who is a U.S. citizen to take an examination to practice in Ohio if he has completed one year of academic training at a U.S. hospital, and if he has completed one year of internship in this country, he explained.

Steve Taylor of New Concord told the committee he represents the 1,900-member National Student Association at Guadalajara, including 106 Ohioans who are in medical school at the Mexican University.

He cited statistics of the American Medical Association that showed the U.S. needs to graduate 22,000 doctors in the 1970s, but said only "half that amount" is being turned out.

In Ohio alone in the last 10 years, he said 45 communities in his home state have lost their physicians and have not been able to replace them. He also said 53 per cent of the interns in Ohio hospitals are graduates of foreign schools.

"We feel the foreign medical school graduate in this country has filled a void and prevented a disaster," Taylor told the committee.

Bowers' bill was held over for further consideration.

Brando-Kashfi struggle ends

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Marlon Brando and his former wife, actress Anna Kashfi, have ended a 13-year court fight over their son with an informal agreement granting Miss Kashfi visitation rights.

Miss Kashfi, 36, through her attorney, dismissed a Superior Court petition Wednesday in which she claimed Brando had denied her visitation rights with their son, Christian Devi, 15.

She said with Brando's cooperation she had been seeing Christian during the past few months. Her son attended her wedding to Los Angeles businessman James Hannaford in Las Vegas last Saturday.

Brando and Miss Kashfi were married in 1957 and divorced two years later.

Motorcycles as polluters

The energy crisis has had the effect of soft pedaling expressions of concern over automotive air pollution. We would do well not to forget about this matter which already has had wush an impact on the quality of our lives. While we're thinking about it, a little attention might well be given to a related source of air pollution which has thus far escaped government control.

The point is brought to mind by a story out of Sacramento about a report from California's state Air Resources Board. Noting that motorcycles need not comply with air pollution standards, it tells us that such vehicles rack up a total of 3.76 billion miles a year in California. In the process they consume 86.6 million gallons of gas and emit 168,356 tons of pollutants — 461 tons a day.

Extrapolated nationally, such figures are an eye opener as to what effect the two-wheelers must be having on our environment. Whatever is done to curb air pollution, motorcycles should not be exempt from regulation.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Rockefeller enlivens dreary race

WASHINGTON — By running for President for the third, or maybe it's the fourth, time Nelson Rockefeller is enlivening a dreary political scene. He finds himself the target of the professional rightists and the professional leftists, each side smiting him for their own reasons.

For the right, he is a big spender and a high taxer. He may claim to have cleaned up New York State's rivers and to have put through other major reforms during his four terms as governor, but he did it with the peoples' money and they would have been better off spending their own money. So goes the refrain on the conservative side.

The professional leftists slam Rockefeller as the archetype of the establishment. He is the sign and symbol of Eastern seaboard wealth and quondam power. They ridicule his Commission on Critical Choices, caricaturing it as a sleazy device to escape exposing his own positions on critical issues. Granted that that caricature is not too hard to arrive at.

Let me state my own position. Of all the visible and half-visible candidates for 1976, Rockefeller is by both domestic and foreign experience the best equipped. He has proved himself as an administrator and, beginning with his experience in World War II as coordinator for Latin-American affairs, he has demonstrated his understanding of the currents of foreign policy.

HIS HANDICAP, in my opinion, is his identification with big oil and oil is likely to be the leading issue of the campaign this fall and in 1976 as well. Gasoline prices, gasoline shortages, the shortfall of heating oil with cold homes, this adds up to deep discontent and a profound distrust of the five or six major oil companies.

Nelson's grandfather, the first John D., put together standard oil, the cartel colossus, that fixed production, prices and distribution. It was the basis of the huge Rockefeller fortune that has proliferated down through three generations.

As proof of how tight the hold still is, a recent prediction by economist Walter W. Heller, who was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, puts the rise in the profits of the oil company majors at $24 billion in 1974 over 1973. This is based on the assumption of a 50 per cent rise in retail prices of petroleum products over the levels of last summer. That is an educated guess.

If Congress gets off the dime and enacts the "windfall profits" tax, Heller estimates that about $8 million of this gain will be paid to foreign government and $3 billion to the United States Treasury. This would leave a net after-tax profit of $13 billion. Outside the oil industry, profits, according to Heller, are expected to decline by 8 to 10 per cent compared to 1973 levels.

TO TAG NELSON with the rapacity and the power to crush all competitors of his grandfather may seem unjust. But the legacy of that era when Ida Tarbell and the other muckrakers exposed the price fixing and the rigging of markets and rail rates cannot be simply sloughed off.

A spokesman for the Rockefeller family says the present generation has a comparatively small holding in the oil companies put together by the founding father. But comparatively small for a Rockefeller would be an awful lot for an ordinary citizen.

If he is a serious candidate, Rockefeller, in my opinion, has only one choice. That is to dissociate himself from big oil. He can do this by declaring for the excess-profits tax on the huge increment that will come to the majors as the result of swiftly rising prices for gas and heating oil.

The field of 1976 is narrowing. Spiro Agnew, who as Vice President was considered virtually the No. 1 prospect, sank without a trace in the mire of Maryland's corruption. And whatever happened to the big Texan, John Connally? He rated high when it appeared possible that the President would name him to the vacant office of Vice President.

The man in the catbird's seat is Gerald R. Ford. So long as he keeps his counsel, looks strong and honest, he has the best chance of all.

While not the helmsman, as the loyal first mate he is ready to take the wheel at a moment's notice and the hopes of outsiders would correspondingly diminish.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

The question of privilege

It is hard to open a paper these days without reading that someone is claiming he cannot be forced to give evidence because his status is "privileged."

President Nixon has invoked "Executive privilege" in resisting the Senate Watergate Committee's demand for some 500 items from White House files.

Out in California a journalist, who refused to divulge where he got information on the Manson case, and was promptly tucked in the bucket for contempt of court, claims that his relationship with his informant was privileged.

And now in Minneapolis the Rev. Dr. Paul Boe, a Lutheran pastor who witnessed key events in the siege of Wounded Knee, S.D., asserts that he is immune from compulsory process because of clerical privilege and some mysterious entity called "federal common law."

ALL THESE CONFLICTS are in the process of adjudication and one can predict that strange decisions will emerge.

Indeed, the California case has already become a bit esoteric. When a witness refuses to testify, as did the newspaperman in this instance, the judge has the right to send him to jail for summary contempt. In theory this is not a "punishment"(which would require a jury trial and the other accoutrements of due process of law) because the individual has the "key in his pocket," that is, he can emerge from jail any time he is prepared to spill the beans. It is simply "coercive."

This journalist, however, has made it clear that they can keep him in jail indefinitely: he won't tell. So now another California court is exploring whether his continued imprisonment does not go beyond the limits of coercion and constitute punishment. Should it so decide, he would be released — and the moral for witnesses would be "hang in there tough."

The case of Dr. Boe falls into a different category. The relationship between pastor and parishioner, like that between lawyer and client or doctor and patient, is not automatically privileged. However, privilege has been conferred by state law in many jurisdictions. (There is no federal statute on the subject, and a "federal common law" right is sheer invention: in 1812 the Supreme Court declared there was no such thing.)

But what is involved in Dr. Boe's instance is not any information obtained by him in his pastoral capacity: he was asked what he saw and heard during the confrontation between the government and Indian extremists at Wounded Knee last year.

It was Boe's political status (he was one of those who encouraged the formation of the American Indian Movement (AIM), not his sacerdotal role (AIM is not composed of Lutherans), that led to the demand for his testimony.

Leaving aside the interesting question of the extent to which any special privileges for churches or ministers (e.g., state aid to parochial schools) violate the First Admendment guarantee of the separation of church and state, what we have here is the case of a citizen, who happens to be a cleric, refusing to provide evidence on nasty events that occurred well outside of his ecclesiastical bailiwick.

If the U.S. Court of Appeals sustains Boe's claim to silence, the consequence would be that if, say, a priest witnessed a murder on the street, he would be immune to compulsory process.

FINALLY, we get to Mr. Nixon's plea that the White House materials demanded by the Erwin committee are protected by "Executive privilege."

First of all, there is no statutory foundation for the doctrine of Executive privilege. What has happened since 1788 is that, by and large, the nation has been run by rational characters — both in Congress and in the White House — who knew that if you played too hard with anything, it would break.

Thus, President Nixon is on firm ground when he cites George Washington's refusal to turn documents over to Congress, and probably 156 similar episodes in the years subsequent.

But you can ransack the attic indefinitely for precedents and still end up in constitutional terms on Square One — to repeat, there is no federal common law where such precedents would add up to a legal doctrine based on custom. In short, 157 times zero is still zero.

Yet probably the worst thing that could happen would be a final Supreme Court holding on the subject of "Executive privilege" — one way or the other.

If the court held for the President, the excessive secrecy that characterizes the modern Executive branch (under Democrats and Republicans alike) would be buttressed.

If the Court held against him, it would encourage Congressional fishing expeditions, and destroy the atmosphere of confidentiality that is often essential.

In short, the Constitution is too important to be left to the lawyers.

Shrimp now out of sight

By GEORGE PALMER
The Cincinnati Enquirer

This is the last straw! Or more properly, the last shrimp.

A family that loves shrimp is not uncommon in America— boiled shrimp, fried shrimp, baked shrimp, shrimp creole, shrimp with tarter sauce, shrimp with hot sauce...

Shrimp!

I have loved shrimp since I was one. My wife loves shrimp. My little daughter loves shrimp.

Less than a year ago a pound of shrimp cost $3.70, retail, at a downtown Cincinnati fish market—an inflated price, but still within economic reason.

Wednesday, a pound of shrimp was priced at $5.60.

That's about 28 cents a shrimp, since a pound of green shrimp still in the shell number about 20.

They are delicious. You take them home, get the water boiling and plunge them in for about two minutes, then plunge them under cold water.

But not at $5.60 a pound. That's almost a 70 per cent increase over a year ago.

Who's getting all that additional money?

Perhaps the shrimp. They have become stealthy and are more difficult to catch. Not a bad idea. This keeps the shrimp family together—and that delicious fortune which is the taste of their bodies.

Maybe the fishermen who trap them are getting 70 per cent more in salary this year. That idea is doubtful if not downright incredible.

Perhaps the guys who cut off those delectible tails for sale are getting 70 per cent more.

Maybe the man who offers 20 shrimp for sale at $5.60 is getting the increase.

Someone is.

Perhaps Americans now on the sea side should take a few weeks off—of shrimp, gasoline, fuel oil, electricity, air flights and even close their eyes to the beautiful sunset.

Maybe the country would get back its senses—and dollars.

"Daddy," my little girl just said to me, "do you have enough chili sauce, horse radish and tobasco to make the hot sauce tonight?"

Tanaka ends Jakarta visit

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia's capital was quiet once again today as Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka of Japan ended a visit that sparked two days of student riots.

A helicopter took Tanaka, his daughter Makiko and President Suharto from the presidential guest house to the airport. There cabinet members and foreign diplomats said goodbye, but no students were on hand.

Tanaka arrived Monday night and spent his entire visit in the heavily guarded presidential palace compound because of the violence Tuesday and Wednesday.

At least seven persons were killed in the disorders, which started with airport demonstrations on Tanaka's arrival Monday and expanded into street rioting Tuesday and Wednesday. Some 10,000 demonstrators joined in the protests, and more than 200 were arrested.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Helping to identify little cereal pests

DEAR ABBY: The University of Minnesota's Entomology Department agreed to help your readers identify the insects they found in their cereals. We thought you would be interested in the summary of the kinds of insects found as submitted.

Samples came from 33 states.

Saw-tooth grain beetle, 80; merchant grain beetle, 39; cigarette beetle, 30; red flour beetle, 25; miscellaneous cereal pests, 10; drugstore beetle, 9; Indian meal moth, 2; insects other than cereal pests, 15; total, 210.

Cereal products often become infested right in the home. Only glass and tin containers are insect proof, so any package of cake mix, flour, etc., can be penetrated by insects if left standing long enough.

DAVID M. NOETZEL

DEAR DR. NOETZEL: Thank you for providing my readers with the service. Now, if others are bugged by unidentifiable insects in their cereals, please send the little creatures to your own university.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote in your column that a woman is pregnant for 266 days. Who said so? I carried my baby for 10 months and five days, and there is no doubt about it because I know the exact date my baby was conceived. My husband is in the Navy and it couldn't have possibly been conceived any other time because I saw him only once for an hour, and I didn't see him again until the day before the baby was born.

I don't drink or run around, and there is no way this baby isn't his, so print a retraction about that 266-day carrying time because otherwise I am in a lot of trouble.

SAN DIEGO READER

DEAR READER: The average gestation period is 266 days. Some babies come early. Others come late. Yours was late.

DEAR ABBY: I have a kind of strange problem. My parents are divorced, and I live alone with my father. His name is Charles, and my name is Katherine, so I sent out Christmas cards signed "Kathy and Charles Smith."

My mom was very upset because some of her friends thought that my dad had gotten remarried. So please tell me how to sign our cards next time so my mom won't be upset. Thank you.

KATHY SMITH

DEAR KATHY: Sign the cards, "Charles Smith, and daughter, Kathy."

DEAR ABBY: With all the "hippies, hoppies, homos, and harlots" you've got writing to you, you could start a new "4-H" club!

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, January 17th, the 17th day of 1974. There are 348 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in World War II, Soviet troops and Polish patriot forces liberated Warsaw more than five years after the Polish capital had fallen to the Nazis.

In 1706, Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston.

In 1773, James Cook became the first explorer to cross the Antarctic Circle.

In 1917, the United States bought the American Virgin Islands from Denmark for $25 million.

In 1942, the Japanese had driven to within 90 miles of Singapore in the Pacific War.

In 1961, President Dwight Eisenhower warned the United States against dangers to its liberties implicit in a vast military-industrial complex.

In 1962, ten prize-winning contestants in television quiz shows received suspended sentences in a New York court after pleading guilty to perjury charges.

Ten years ago. U.S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy met in Tokyo with Indonesian President Sukarno to try to prevent warfare between Indonesia and neighboring Malaysia.

Five years ago, Henry Cabot Lodge arrived in Paris to head a new U.S. negotiating team in Vietnam peace talks.

One year ago, the British government announced curbs on wages, prices and profits in an attempt to halt inflation.

New power substation rapidly taking shape

Construction on a Dayton Power and Light Co. substation at the intersection of Robinson and Old Chillicothe roads is about 80 per cent complete.

Jerry Morgan, public relations representative for DP&L, said construction on the new facility is expected to be completed by the last week in February.

Estimated cost of the new substation is $274,000, and Morgan said that figure does not reflect the costs of the associated line work into the substation.

The new facility will be known as the Robinson Road substation and will serve the eastern half of Washington C.H. and the communities of New Holland, Bloomingburg and Good Hope.

The substation is being constructed because of a general load increase in that area, primarily due to the city's Industrial Park, according to DP&L officials, and to relieve the Jamison Road substation.

A 69,000-volt line will enter the station and the voltage will be reduced to 12,000 volts, the normal amount carried in the transmission lines to residential areas. The voltage is further reduced at transformers in the residential areas.

The new substation facility will contain automatic switching devices.

The Robinson Road substation is being constructed by the KSR Construction Co., of Dayton.

Man faces return for armed robbery

HOUSTON, Mo. (AP) — A 24-year-old man today was awaiting return to Canton, Ohio, where he faces charges of armed robbery, police said.

George Mayhan was being held in the Texas County Jail awaiting the arrival of Ohio officials. He has waived extradition.

Mayhan, also wanted for questioning about two murders, was captured Wednesday at a roadblock near this southern Missouri community, police said.

1973 corn crop hits $13.3 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1973 corn crop barely made the record books in terms of quantity, but it was worth a whopping $13.3 billion to farmers, the Agriculture Department says.

Corn production last year was 5.643 billion bushels, just beating the previous record of 5.641 billion set in 1971, the department said Wednesday in a review of last year's harvest output.

The new estimate was down about 35 million bushels from what USDA expected the corn harvest to be last November. Although relatively slight, the decline puts further pressure on feed grain supplies through the 1973-74 season.

Calculations show the estimated season average price of 1973 corn is $2.37 per bushel. The 1972 crop was worth $1.57 per bushel to farmers and had a total value of $8.7 billion.

The previous record corn production year, 1971, brought a farm value of slightly more than $6 billion at an average of $1.08 per bushel.

Although some other 1973 crops slipped from earlier production estimates — including some shaving of the soybean crop to about 1.56 billion bushels — over-all farm crop output was the highest ever.

Based on 1967 production used as a guide, last year's output was up 19 per cent to a record level. In 1972, the index was 13 per cent over the 1967 base.

Yields for many crops, however, were down from earlier peaks. Corn averaged 91.4 bushels per acre, compared with 97.1 in 1972. Sorghum, although a record 936.5 million bushels, yielded 58.8 bushels per acre, compared with 60.5 in 1972.

The soybean crop held steady at 27.8 bushels per acre, unchanged from 1972.

There were no new estimates for 1973 wheat and other small grains harvested earlier. Those were reported in December, including wheat at a record 1.7 billion bushels.

Dog beaten; 2 arrested

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati police arrested two men Wednesday for allegedly beating a dog with hammers.

The two were charged with public intoxication and cruelty to an animal.

They were identified as Robert Collman, 44, and Larry Canter, 39, both of Cincinnati. They told police the dog was vicious.

When police responded to the call, they reported the dog lying behind some garbage cans. They fed it and said it did not react viciously.

It lost a tooth and had been cut on the head.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) said the dog would be kept two weeks then destroyed if a home cannot be found for it.

Miss Moore, a 1973 graduate of Washington Senior High School, is employed at Barnhart Oil Co.

Progressive Heirs CCL holds meeting

The January meeting of the Progressive Heirs Child Conservation League was held in the home of Mrs. Betty Long in Jeffersonville.

Mrs. Harold Anderson, vice president, conducted the business meeting in the absence of Mrs. Wilma Lower.

Mrs. Anderson read a poem and led the Lord's Prayer.

A new money-making calendar was given to each member for the month. It was announced that a bake sale will be held at the February meeting and each is to bring one item.

Mrs. Janet McCarty introduced Mr. Dale Creamer, coach at Miami Trace High School, as the guest speaker for the evening. He presented a very interesting talk on "What Interscholastic Sports Means to Our Children." He stressed four values which a child will gain from participating in sports in school. They are involvement, commitment, development of self discipline and academic success.

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served by Mrs. Carol Wissinger and Mrs. Linda Garringer.

Mrs. Garringer will be hostess for the February meeting.

Mrs. Kirk's Kitchen

By GLADYS KIRK

These next 10 weeks will be busy ones for me as I will be attending graduate school at O.S.U. full time. A study leave of one quarter is granted after working four years in Extension. It's difficult to believe I've been in Fayette County that long. I really appreciate the welcome and support you have given me.

I'll be back in the office, March 18, but don't hold questions until then. Beulah Hill, Area Home Economics Agent will be answering any questions you call (335-1150) in while I'm gone.

Planned programs will be carried out with the help of many fine volunteers. I do hope you will support them with your participation.

On Jaunary 31, plan to spend your afternoon with Mrs. Judy Ledbetter, an Interior Designer from Columbus as she gives tips and tricks to those who are Decorating On A Budget. We'll be meeting from 1 to 3:30 p.m. in Grace United Methodist Church. The $1.00 registration fee includes the cost of babysitting. Call 335-1150 if you would like to attend.

HOME ACCOUNT BOOKS — Know what you have been spending: Records of past expenditures help the family in estimating the next year's cost. Records of past spending reveal the spending habits of families. They may show where a different method of purchasing would mean a saving. For example, a family that buys a magazine from the news stand each week or each month, may find that an annual or biennial subscription is cheaper. If you are interested in your present and past spending, why not stop by the office and look at our "Home Account Book." The cost of 60c is a small fee in relation to what the book will help you accomplish in keeping records of spending.

SUEDE

Suede shoes and boots are very popular for both adults and teenagers. If there is a pair in your house-hopethis helps them stay nice longer.

Use a light touch when cleaning suede shoes, but do clean them! Regular care keeps suede shoes looking pretty, but a light touch in the cleaning process protects the nap.

Brush suede shoes regularly with a terry towel or soft bristle suede brush to keep dust from settling deep in the nap. Don't use hard or scratchy brushes — they may damage the suede. Gently use an emery board to raise the surface of "brushed" suede.

A soft gum eraser will remove spots and light stains. Or you can use a little bit of drycleaning or suede cleaning fluid. Follow directions carefully! Apply any cleaning fluid sparingly and rub lightly with a clean, soft cloth.

If shoes are heavily soiled, check at your local shoe repair shop about professional cleaning. Color can be retouch in the cleaning treatment. Try to prevent heavy soiling if possible — often such soil can't be removed completely and the suede may be premanently damaged.

POWER OF THE PRESS

A newspaper can be a great help to prevent spinning over icy spots these winter days. Next time your wheels start to spin when you're getting started, put a newspaper behind each rear tire. Back the tires on the newspaper, and you'll find you get the traction you need.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Okay, action-adventure fans. The ABC Television network starts bidding for your attention tonight with two new half-hour series, "Firehouse" and "Chopper One." Now the bad news.

The first is a waste of fire, the second a waste of fuel.

"Chopper One," a saga of two young pilot-cops who battle Los Angeles villains from a Jetranger helicopter, is particularly disappointing for chopper freaks. I have reference to me.

Helicopter flying, especially the low-level kind, is one of the most exhilarating experiences yet devised.

Although the aerial photography in this new show captures some of this excitement and the lead actors Jim McMullan and Dirk Benedict turn in good performances, the proceedings fall flat.

What could have been a good flying show isn't supported by a passable plot line or even a pre-flight check.

It's a routine two-incident opus in which our heroes rescue a boy from drowning, then help their groundling colleagues bring two purported kidnappers to justice after a hotel shootout.

As a flying nut, I sincerely hope the show improves.

But until that happens, the TV title for best flingwing realism and excitement remains with "Birds of Prey," a 90-minute gem that featured an incredible chopper chase over the Utah desert.

CBS aired this show a year ago and I wish they'd rerun it soon. It's an aviation classic the makers of "Chopper One" might study.

★★★★

"Firehouse," starring James Drury as a fire captain, offers scant hope of redemption and wastes the talents of its five regulars. In tonight's effort, they foil a suicide try and save lives in a burning, modern firetrap called a high-rise office building.

It's strictly flambe foolishness and unless major improvements are afoot, Marvin the Torch should be made its film editor.

★★★★

Back in the real world, NBC congressional correspondent Paul Duke, 47, is leaving NBC in early February and joining public TV as a correspondent-moderator for the National Public Affairs Center for Television in Washington, D.C.

NPACT president James Karayn says Duke's annual salary will be in the $55,000 range. Duke, a good, seasoned newsman with a wire service and newspaper background, has been with NBC since 1963.

He'll moderate the weekly "Washington Week in Review," interview public figures on "Washington Straight Talk" and also appear on NPACT's new "Washington Connection" series.

NBC says Duke will be succeeded on Capitol Hill by Catherine Mackin, who began with NBC in Washington in August 1969 and was transferred to the network's Los Angeles bureau last August.

Turnpikes feel pinch in revenue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Declining highway travel because of the gasoline shortage has reduced toll collections and is causing some budget reshuffling in state turnpike authorities.

An Associated Press survey showed the East and Northeast — where there are more toll roads than in other areas of the country — were hardest hit.

Federal statistics show that more than $1 billion was collected in 1972 by bridge and toll operators. How much of that money will be lost due to reduced highway traffic is not clear. But preliminary figures indicate declines of about 10 per cent during December.

None of the areas checked reported plans to cancel highway projects or stop construction because of the revenue declines. Several officials said that expenditures for maintenance might have to be curtailed.

The Massachusetts Turnpike Authority reported decreasing revenues on the main road and on an extension. It said the authority collected only $1,696,292 on the main road last month compared with $1,897,507 in December 1972, a decline of 11 per cent. The authority said that the extension revenues were down about 5 per cent.

The toll money is used for operating expenses — including interest on outstanding bonds — for road building and other capital expenditures, and for repayment of bonds. An authority spokesman said a continued decline in business might mean a cutback in capital expenditures so the agency can keep paying off the bonds.

GOP sees 'consensus'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Republican leaders agreed Tuesday on a list of statewide primary election candidates they believe have widespread support, but decided against making any endorsements.

A "consensus ticket" announced by the state Republican Executive Committee following a closed-door meeting was headed by former Gov. James Rhodes and Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, for governor and U. S. senator, respectively.

State GOP Chairman Kent McGough said other candidates having the "sentiment" of the committee are Lt. Gov. John Brown and Secretary of State Ted Brown, for re-election; Rep. C. William O'Neill, attorney general, and Sen. Paul Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, auditor.

McGough said there was no consensus for treasurer, but party leaders could "rally around a particular candidate" before the Feb. 6 filing deadline.

Party leaders favored Supreme Court Justice Paul W. Brown for the chief justice's job being vacated by C. William O'Neill, father of the state representative, since Justice Thomas Herbert did not file for the chief justice post, McGough said.

Coal business brisk if you can find it!

If Santa left coal in your stocking this past Christmas, chances are, you were exceptionally good.

For coal is becoming very precious.

Taylor Groff, manager of the Hockman Grain and Feed Co., Madison Mills, says he has received twice as many small coal orders as ever before.

"People are purchasing coal for home use because of the energy crisis, but I am in no danger of running out," Groff said.

Groff sells his premium Kentucky coal, which produces less ash, holds fire better and gives off more heat, for $32.75 a ton, but there is an extra charge for delivery.

Charles Parks, owner of the Parks Coal Yard, formerly located at 1522 U.S. 35 SE, went out of business years ago, but he is still an interested observer.

"Many people don't have outdated facilities such as wood stoves, coal furnaces and fireplaces; so actually, a relatively small percentage of people are stocking up on coal, as compared to what it would be like if everyone could," he explained.

The Washington Coal Co. formerly operated by Louis Baer and located at 309 W. Temple St. is no longer in business.

It was originally the Washington Ice Co., founded in 1890. Then in 1943, it changed to coal until 1970.

Baer, who has all the equipment necessary, is interested in finding someone who would like to get the old company back on its feet.

"I feel there is a definite need for a coal supplier within the town; especially because of the energy crisis," Baer stated.

Chile and Peru engaging in new, costly arms race

WASHINGTON (AP) — An arms race appears to be developing between Chile and Peru despite stringent congressional curbs on U.S. military aid and credit sales to Latin America.

U.S. intelligence reports the military junta in Chile is moving to buy more than 40 French tanks to counterbalance Soviet tanks recently bought by Peru. The two neighboring countries have had a longstanding feud over territory.

Meanwhile, Chilean military officers are said to have pressed American officials for U.S. tanks and jet fighters.

But the U.S. government still has not acted on a Chilean arms request made by the leftist Allende regime before it was ousted by the junta of generals and admirals last fall. That request still stands.

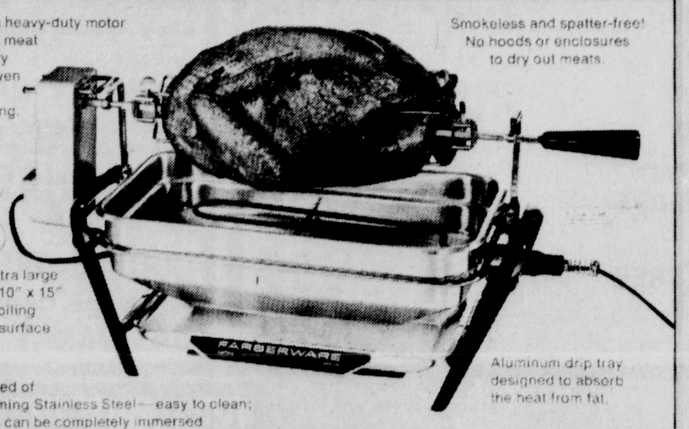

However, there is little the United States can do to supply costly arms to Chile or any other Latin American country.

This is because, under the law, the United States is allowed to provide a maximum of $150 million in military hardware grants and credits this year for all of Latin America. Of this, Chile is eligible for only about $10 million and Peru about $20 million.

Congress has taken the position that the United States should refrain from contributing to an arms race in Latin America and should encourage countries there to spend money on social and economic betterment.

But Pentagon officials argue that the Latin American countries will buy elsewhere if this country refuses to furnish them arms or sell weapons on easy credit terms.

MTHS clubs busy during Yule season

By SUSAN THACKER

The Christmas season brought activity to many of the clubs here at Miami Trace. There were parties, money making activities, and charitable projects.

The Future Farmers of America held their annual citrus fruit sale and they prepared baskets for the needy.

The Future Nurses of America prepared fruit and baked goods to send to the convalescent centers.

The Girls's Athletic Association was probably the most active of all the clubs. They went caroling, collected food for a basket for the needy, and held a party for their members at the Pizza Hut.

Other activities were the Student Council's toy drive and the concert given by the Vocal Music Department.

Allen County judge bans court cameras

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — An Allen County Common Pleas Court judge has banned all cameras and recording devices for the arraignment of two men accused of killing a Lima policeman.

Judge John D. Harnishfeger said Wednesday his order was in the interest of justice and applies only to the two cases.

The two are being held in the county jail in lieu of $100,000 bond each.

Energy management grows in U.S. industry

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A bright pigment in the energy picture is the realization by many companies that they can cut back on fuels, and save money in the process, without reducing productivity.

Awareness of the possibilities might have been slow in developing, partly because they were submerged in the crisis atmosphere immediately following the cutback in Mideast oil shipments.

But the word is spreading now, and energy usage studies might become a big new specialty for outside management consultants and for in-house productivity specialists.

Laurens van den Muyzenberg, an industrial management consultant, maintains that the energy reduction potential for almost all plants is more than 10 per cent, and that for many companies it is far above that figure.

Management's interest is aroused by such estimates, especially when the plant manager reports, as is likely to be the case, that he has never conducted an energy usage study of his premises.

Corporate management in the past seldom considered such studies, being more concerned with labor and capital costs than with energy costs. Much waste developed, therefore, and now it can easily be eliminated.

Van den Muyzenberg, president of H.B. Maynard & Co., Pittsburgh and London, began what he calls energy value analyses a few weeks ago and has zeroed in on what he believes are among the most wasteful practices.

To spot these areas, he suggests to company management that four responsible employes be appointed to determine just where energy is being used.

One studies consumption in mobile equipment, another in heating-ventilation-air conditioning, the third in production itself, and the fourth in auxiliary equipment, such as compressors.

These four employes must survey tne plant, learn where energy is used and hunt for savings. They make out an energy budget and bring it to a steering committee, where an energy spending plan is developed. Elapsed time: two weeks.

Some companies, he found, are unable immediately to determine how energy is expended because batteries of equipment are hooked up to the same meters. He recommends multiple monitors or meters.

Most likely the energy value analysis will reveal that with better scheduling some machines can be shut off part time or even permanently, or that several machines can be combined on one power source.

More coordination in scheduling overtime also is important. In too many companies, he reports, a few employes on overtime are the sole reason for the plant remaining open. Better to schedule overtime in batches, he states.

In some instances waste heat can be used. One company surveyed in the past few weeks used air conditioning to reduce temperatures generated in testing equipment, while burning fuel to heat other parts of the plant.

Poor insulation and faulty heating equipment can be especially costly, van den Muyzenberg believes. Steam leaks around outlets in large plants can add 10 per cent to heating bills, he maintains.

Wasteful also is the practice of heating air once and then "throwing it out of the building."

First Federal Assn. reports record year

Assets of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Washington C.H. at the end of 1973 stood at $19,290,324.68, a 13 per cent increase over a year ago, it was reported Wednesday by Harold H. Thompson, executive vice president and secretary, at the annual meeting of members.

In his report to the Association's members, Thompson said that 1973 was the greatest growth year ever experienced, exceeding 1972 by more than $600,000. This record growth was accomplished despite the many economic problems which developed during the final six months of the year, Thompson said.

During the past year First Federal Savings and Loan Association paid $844,151.91 in interest to its savings depositors and increased reserves to $1,753,466.43, which far exceeds the statutory requirements.

Thompson said the most important development of 1973 was a new policy of monetary stringency adopted in early July. He said that this produced an immediate and general rise in interest rates, a decline in savings deposits and another "tight money" period for the mortgage market.

As of Dec. 31, 1973, savings deposits at First Federal amounted to $16,932,583.38 a 10 per cent increase from the $15,344,919.33 at the end of 1972.

During 1973, the Association originated 361 mortgage loans amounting to $6,586,900.00 to buy, build and improve homes, apartments and commerical properties, in and around Washington C.H. and Fayette County. After loan repayments and payoffs a net increase of $2,618,362.99 was reported. Total mortgage loans on the books amount to $16,758,204.68, representing 1,473 loans. The increase in loans was also a record high for the Association.

THE PROSPECTS for 1974 are some what cloudy at this moment, Thompson said. "Much depends on the type of progress the nation is able to make in its fight against inflation, the energy crisis and the other problems facing us."

He declared that based on present supply and demand factors, mortgage rates would show little decline during the first quarter of 1974. But he said that the outlook for the remainder of 1974 is more uncertain, with rates subject to such influences as inflation, unemployment and the current housing shortage.

In response to the increased competition in the money market, Thompson stated, "The Association increased rates on savings accounts and certificates of deposit and these are now paying the highest rates on record. Our savings deposits began to imporve during the fourth quarter of 1973, although the supply of mortgage lending funds continues to be limited."

Thompson also reported that the second floor remodeling was completed in September of 1973. "We have some of the most up to date office spaces in the uptown area, and all are occupied. The expansion of the institutions office space into the former Rankin and Marchant Law offices was completed in December. This has been a great help in completing the year and business."

"The most important step taken to modernize the Association was the conversion to NCR 270 'online' terminals. This step will greatly improve the efficiency of our operation, now and in the immediate future.

"We look forward to the many challenges in 1974", Thompson said. "Hopefully, some of the many problems we are facing can be solved. Progress in solving them will improve our prospects for 1974."

AT THE reorganization meeting, immediately following the members' meeting, A.H. Finley, W.F. Rettig and Harold H. Thompson were re-elected to the board of directors. Other members of the board are W.A. Lovell, E.S. Woodmansee, R.M. Meriweather ahd David L. Baughn.

'Stringbean' suspects arrested

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Four men have been arrested in the slaying of country music performer David "Stringbean" Akeman and his wife.

Police identified them Wednesday as John A. Brown Jr., 23, and Marvin D. Brown, 21, both of Nashville, each charged with two counts of murder, and Charles Brown, 32, and Roy Brown, 23, both of nearby Greenbrier, charged with accessory after the fact of murder and receiving and concealing stolen merchandise.

Police said John and Marvin are cousins and Charles and Roy are brothers of Marvin.

Akeman, 57, and his wife Estelle, 59, were found shot to death early Nov. 11 at their home north of Nashville. Police have theorized that they surprised burglars when they returned home after Akeman's appearance on the Grand Ole Opry, where he was a regular.

Police speculate the killers took an estimated $17,000 that Akeman, a banjo player, had in his possession only a few days prior to his death.

Tricia denies separation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tricia Nixon Cox has labeled as lies rumors that she and her husband Edward Cox are separating.

The rumors began circulating after Cox, a New York City lawyer, did not accompany the Nixons on a post-Christmas holiday in San Clemente, Calif.

Oil industry data shows decline in import flow

WASHINGTON (AP) — An oil industry group has released figures that appear to signal a tightening of the Arab oil embargo and a worsening of the gasoline shortage.

The American Petroleum Institute on Wednesday said imports decreased 12.2 per cent last week from the previous week. And the weekly report said U.S. gasoline stocks dropped by 3.6 million barrels.

But Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., said he agrees with some of his constituents who feel that the energy crisis is "a trumped-up crisis by the oil companies to make more money."

Conte spoke during a House subcommittee hearing Wednesday at which oil industry critics testified that the country "is not nearly in as bad a situation as the oil industry and the administration would have us believe."

Middle East oil specialist Christopher T. Rand presented the subcommittee with Petroleum Institute figures from December, which he said showed that the gasoline shortage could easily be made up from existing stocks. He said the figures also indicated that the oil companies were exaggerating the severity of the crisis in an effort to drive up prices.

"They know a ten-cent increase in the cost of a gallon of gasoline will result in $4 billion in additional revenue," Rand said.

However, the latest API figures, released Wednesday, showed that oil imports dropped sharply last week. The drop wiped out a brief upturn in imports, which had been attributed to leakage of the Arab oil cutoff. According to the figures, imports averaged 4.9 million barrels per day during the week ending Jan. 11, a decrease of 677,000 barrels from the previous week.

And gasoline stocks dropped to a level usually reached only in mid-summer, the figures show.

The credibility of such data supplied by the petroleum industry was the subject of the hearings being held by the House subcommittee on regulatory agencies.

Washington lawyer Martin Lobel told the subcommittee Wednesday that the data provided by the oil companies is "unaudited and unverified" and that "when pressed for accurate data the companies refuse to provide it. They use every legal device available to keep accurate, relevant information from those in government who must make decisions," Lobel said.

Lobel's testimony was disputed by W. T. Slick, senior vice president of Exxon. He claimed that the major companies "have for many years provided to various governmental agencies substantial operating and financial data."

Slick also said that Exxon, the nation's largest oil company, would be willing to turn over estimates of its oil and gas reserves to the government but added that it objected to the publication of certain competitive information such as pricing.

The earth's seemingly rigid crust, geologists say, actually consists of a crazy quilt of great rafts or "plates," that suggest huge ice floes jostling about on a frozen sea.

MTHS grad is recitalist

Miss Emily Rowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Rowe, White Rd., and a 1972 graduate of Miami University and currently a student at the College Conservatory of Music at the University of Cincinnati, will present a recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Sidney W. Souers Recital Hall in the Center for Performing Arts on Miami University's campus at Oxford.

While at the university Miss Rowe, a soprano, was a music major receiving her degree from the School of Fine Arts, studying voice with George F. Barron, now retired dean of the fine arts school. Following her graduation she received a scholarship at the College Conservatory for advanced study and is now completing work toward a Master of Music degree.

Well remembered as a student at Miami, Miss Rowe often appeared as a soloist with the A Cappella Singers, a premiere mixed voiced chorus, of which she was a member, and the University Symphony Orchestra. She was a winner of the Alice Alexander Price award made to an outstanding voice student; was a member of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority and Delta Omicron, an international music fraternity for women, and a runnerup in the annual "Miss Miami" Pageant.

On Sunday her program, which was recently presented in Cincinnati as a requirement for her master's degree studies, will be a varied one that will range from old Italian arias by Vivaldi to German lieders by Hugo Wolf and Richard Strauss, Russian songs by Tcherepnin, and a group of contemporary songs by the American composer, Ned Rorem.

Miss Rowe is a 1968 graduate of Miami Trace High School.

Suddendorf, the ensemble concert will include: Rossini's "Italian in Algiers Overture"; "Little English Girl Symphonic March" by Delle Cese; "Variants on a Medieval Tune" by Dello Joio; Henry Fillmore's "Circus Bee March"; "Suite of Old American Dances" by Robert Russell Bennett; and "Alleluia, Loudamus Te" by Alfred Reed.

There is no admission charge for the concert and the public is invited.

Off-street parking facility approved

Only one item appeared before members of the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals at its regular monthly meeting Wednesday night in the City Office Building.

The zoners approved a request for a variance submitted by Van Orr Foods, Inc., of Zanesville, to establish an off-street parking facility in a residentially-zoned area.

City Manager Dan Wolford said the area is located at the intersection of Blackstone and Temple streets.

Greenfield eligible for water grant

COLUMBUS — Senator Harry L. Armstrong (R-Logan) announced Wednesday that the city of Greenfield is eligible to receive a $100,000 grant from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

Only 21 of 124 applicants received eligibility status after a review of their needs. Greenfield received this to improve the water supply system.

The grant is to be used to develop a surface water supply from Paint Creek with a lime soda softening plant. Storage capacity will be increased from 250,000 gallons to 1,000,000 gallons.

The grant represents a portion of the Ohio EPA's revenue sharing funds. Before receiving the money, the city of Greenfield must also meet requirements of the federal revenue sharing program.

Carrier boy, now 'veteran', likes hobbies

STEVE REEVES

By now, Record-Herald subscribers in a southeast section of Washington C.H. are becoming well acquainted with their carrier.

Steve Reeves, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Reeves, 714 Sycamore St., is becoming a familiar face to Record-Herald subscribers in that neighborhood because he's been carrying the newspaper now for three years.

Steve marked his third anniversary as a Record-Herald carrier last week and plans to continue since he's saving his money to purchase a motorcycle.

The eighth grader at Washington Junior High School started carrying the newspaper when he was 11 years old, slipping into the business a year early. He has a total of 121 customers on his route, which is the largest single route in the Record-Herald's circulation department.

Steve, who was named the R-H's carrier of the month in August, still finds time for hobbies of coin collecting and astronomy.

Udall sees long-time energy pinch

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Stuart Udall, former secretary of the interior, Wednesday said that the nation's technology will not be able to solve the energy crisis and the present crisis is only the beginning of a long term energy crunch.

"Technological arrogance is the root of the problem," Udall told more than 400 persons attending a Youngstown State University forum here.

Udall, who served under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, said those administrations did not foresee the energy problem because "We were too arrogant and too confident in the 1960s."

"I believe that we are moving out of a period when an abundance of energy was available," Udall said. "Most of what we have been able to achieve was because we had an abundance of cheap energy — natural gas and oil — and we can no longer take this for granted."

Udall criticized the Nixon Administration for "not telling us we're in deep trouble, which we are."

Udall said the oil companies should not be allowed to control the oil from the fields to the market place and said they are not responsible to the national interests.

The oil companies have been permitted "to exploit their situation very nicely," he said.

Cole appointed top Nixon aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has appointed Kenneth R. Cole Jr. as his chief domestic policy adviser.

Cole, 35, will continue to serve as executive counsel, the White House announced Wednesday.

Cole, with the title of assistant to the president for domestic affairs, will move into the office vacated April 30 by John D. Ehrlichman.

Cole's appointment was occasioned by the impending resignation of presidential counselor Melvin R. Laird, who served a short-term appointment as Nixon's domestic policy chief. He is scheduled to leave the White House on Feb. 1.

Set ruling on vo-ed schooling

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The Cathedral of Tomorrow has secured a $500,000 loan from the Teamsters' Central States Pension Fund to make initial payments to investors who reportedly have demanded repayment of $4 million worth of Cathedral securities.

J. William Henderson, who is handling the Cathedral's business affairs under a court ordered reorganization, said Wednesday that after the first rush of investors demanding repayment the Cathedral will continue to build up a trust fund to cover periodic payments as further applications for repayment come in.

The new loan from the Teamsters increases to about $5.7 million the amount owed by the Cathedral to the Teamsters.

Summit County records show that the Teamster mortgage dates to 1967, when the Cathedral secured a $2.6 million loan.

The original loan was increased by $3 million in two steps in 1969 and 1971. The Teamsters' fund holds a first mortgage on land, buildings and equipment of the Cathedral of Tomorrow in suburban Cuyahoga Falls.

Records show the debt had been reduced to $5,158,790 as of Jan. 1, 1974.

Under court orders, which stemmed from a suit brought by the Ohio Department of Commerce, the Cathedral agreed to set up a trust fund to repay holders of notes it had issued. The Cathedral had issued more than $12 million worth of notes.

The Department of Commerce brought its court action on grounds that the Cathedral had violated state regulations by selling unregistered securities.

Man sentenced in ocean threat

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "For the mistakes I've made, I feel I've suffered. I would ask to be allowed to go back into the society to which I owe so much," said former major league baseball player Jerry Priddy before being sentenced.

U.S. District Court Judge Irving Hill sentenced Priddy on Wednesday to nine months in prison for threatening to blow up an ocean liner.

Priddy, who spent 11 years in the big leagues with several teams, was convicted Sept. 10 of threatening to blow up the Princess Cruise Lines steamship S.S. Island Princess unless he was given $250,000.

Priddy's attorney said the conviction will be appealed. Priddy is to remain free on $150,000 bail while the appeal is pending.

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Red Skelton was recovering today from minor injuries suffered when his Rolls Royce struck an embankment along a highway near here.

COLUMBUS — Rep. Myrl H. Shoemaker (D), chairman of the House Finance Committee, said today that the recent passing of the Vietnam veterans' bonus has caused some confusion among many who might be entitled to benefits. In order to insure that all who are qualified may become better informed, Rep. Shoemaker has provided information about how the bonus will work.

All Ohioans who served in the armed forces between Aug. 5, 1964, and July 1, 1973, whether or not they served in Vietnam, are entitled to benefits. Any Ohioan who served in Vietnam or drew combat pay in any part of Southeast Asia between Feb. 28, 1961, and July 1, 1973, is also eligible.

To qualify under either rule, the applicant must have been an Ohio resident for at least one year immediately before he entered military service.

If the veteran was serving in the U.S., he will receive $10 for each month of active duty. If serving in a foreign country, he gets $15 per month. If in Vietnam or if he received combat pay in any part of Southeast Asia, he will get $20 for each month he served there.

The most that any veteran can receive is $500, unless he was a prisoner of war or was missing in action, in which case he is entitled to $1,000. If discharged due to combat injuries he automatically gets the $500 maximum.

Veterans are not the only ones entitled to receive the benefits. If an eligible veteran has died, his surviving spouse, his children, or his parents may claim his benefits. If he died from injuries received in Vietnam service or if he was a prisoner of war or missing in action, his survivors or relatives will get $1,000.

There will be a method by which a veteran (but not survivors) will be able to double the amount of his benefits. The General Assembly is required by the bonus amendment to provide an optional educational assistance bonus for veterans. When this legislation is passed within the next several months, any person who qualifies for the cash bonus will be able to receive twice that amount to enable him to attend any school which the state legislature has listed as an approved school.

Because this plan requires the passing of an act by the legislature, it probably will take more time to implement than the cash bonus plan which is expected to go into effect in the next few months.

WCH involved in non-loop scuffle

Unioto Shermans will get sampling of SCOL action

By DENNIS STAPLETON
Record-Herald Sports Editor

The Washington C.H. Blue Lion cagers are primed and ready for their non-league scuffle with Unioto Friday night. After a thrilling one point victory over South Central Ohio League foe Circleville last week the Lions can take the week off from SCOL action to rest some players for the Hillsboro clash on Jan. 22.

The 60-59 win over the Tigers saw the return of 6-foot-5 center Jeff Wallace. The gutsy pivotman displayed excellent poise in his return to the hardwood after a five game layoff due to infectious mononucleosis. Wallace totaled 11 points, six rebounds and two blocked shots in his limited action.

Doug Boswell will still start for Wallace since the towering center still isn't 100 per cent but Wallace will see some action against Unioto.

Also needing some rest following the Circleville game is nifty ball-handler Craig Shaffer. The cat-like Shaffer has been out this week with the flu and his presence would be missed in a crucial SCOL contest.

SHAFFER'S shoes will be filled by either Alan Coppock or Jim Vess. Coppock is a sure ball-handler while Vess plays better defense. Unioto's guards are both good and it all depends on how the two Shermans play as to who will fill-in for Shaffer.

The remaining part of the lineup is intact. Sophomore starters Doug Phillips and Chuck Byrd still man a forward and guard post respectively while Kenny Knisley occupies the other forward spot.

The Unioto Shermans—nicknamed after either Camp Sherman or the Sherman tank—are a Class A team currently holding a 7-2 record. One of the Shermans losses was at the hands of Class AA Vinton Co. 76-67 whose record is 9-1. The second loss was to Bishop Flaget 81-73 in overtime after Unioto had held a 27 point lead in the third quarter.

Unioto is in first place in the Ross County League with a perfect 3-0 chart. Next season the Shermans will take the place of Madison Plains as the seventh team in the SCOL.

The Ross County school shows immense heighth and incredible statistics. There are only three players under six feet tall playing for Unioto and two are starters.

Guards Steve Frey and Bob Tallmon stand 5-foot-10 and 5-foot-11 respectively. Rounding out the starting unit are 6-foot-8 center Greg Alcorn, 6-foot-5 forward Jeff Scholl and 6-foot-4 forward Gary Fout. Also seeing a lot of playing time from the bench is 6-foot-4 Ron Rutherford.

UNIOTO averages 73.6 points per game while allowing 64.4 points. From the foul line the Shermans have a team percentage of 70. Alcorn and Scholl average 53 per cent from the field and Frey hits at a 50 per cent clip. Fout is the leading free throw shooter with 85 per cent accuracy followed by Tallmon's 81 per cent marksmanship. Alcorn is the leading rebounder grabbing 11 loose shots per game. Rutherford is also a strong rebounder but has had a broken ankle and is still leary of the gimpy joint.

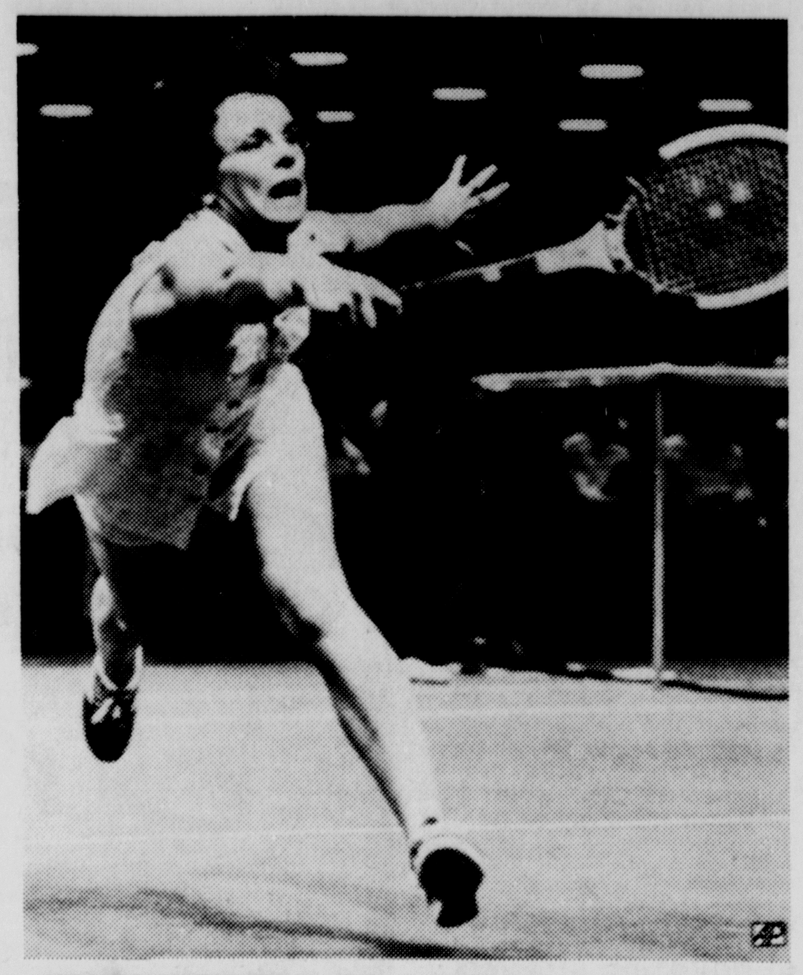

Coach Gary Shaffer knows that Unioto will be a challenge because of it's heighth and it's run and shoot tactics. The Shermans haven't really had a stern test since their loss to Vinton Co., but the Lions will certainly provide the Shermans with a sampling of rugged SCOL play.

ATHLETE OF THE YEAR — Billy Jean King makes a return during the opening match of the $50,000 Virginia Slims of San Francisco Tennis Tournament in San Francisco. Ms King was named Athlete of the Year by the Associated Press.

Arnsparger takes over N.Y. Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants, hoping to have some of Miami's Super Bowl magic rub off on them, pulled Bill Arnsparger out of their football hats Wednesday and now the former Dolphin assistant coach faces his most difficult trick — turning a 2-11-1 team into a winner.

This won't be the first time Ansparger, who is credited with masterminding the Dolphins' powerful "No Name Defense," is charged with transforming losers into winners. He and Don Shula moved south from Baltimore to Miami in 1970, one season after the Dolphins finished with a 3-10-1 record.

And since then, the National Football League record books speaks for Arnsparger's success: all four seasons in the playoffs, the last three in the Super Bowl with victories in 1973 over Washington and last Sunday over Minnesota 24-7.

"Actually, I never talked to anyone but Bill," said the Giants' Director of Operations Andy Robustelli in making the announcement that didn't surprise any football fan whose been awake the past two weeks. "I guess it's no big surprise."

The 47-year-old Arnsparger makes it clear that he and only he will be the head coach.

"Am I gonna be the boss?" Arnsparger, who was given a three-year contract, asked rhetorically. "I'm gonna be the football coach. I'll be totally involved in the whole program. That was most important in my decision."

Arnsparger rejected a similar position to coach Baltimore this season, intimating Wednesday that the Colts' offer was not string-free.

A similar concern has been voiced in New York, where owner Wellington Mara has been criticized for being a coaching owner and being blamed for the dissension which ravaged the Giants this year. After winning all six preseason games, the Giants finished last in the NFC' East and then lost Coach Alex Webster, who resigned.

Arnsparger was a handpicked coach but the hand belonged to Robustelli, recently hired as director of operations.

"I got him," said Robustelli, who spoke in his tough, direct, business-like manner. "Bill's the football coach and we're gonna go out and get guys to make us the best football team. He controls his own destiny. Hopefully we'll feed him what he needs."

ABA West All-Stars announced

NEW YORK (AP) — Mel Daniels kept intact his record of being chosen for every American Basketball Association All-Star game, while teammate George McGinnis was the top vote-getter for the ABA's West All-Star squad announced today.

The West, with the Pacers and Utah each contributing two starters, will meet an East squad, laden with stars from New York, Kentucky and Carolina, in the annual all-star classic Jan. 30 at Norfolk, Va. The game, which begins at 8 p.m., EDT, will be televised nationally over the Hughes Sports Network.

McGinnis was second among all ABA players in balloting, collecting 66 top team votes and 135 points. The Pacer forward was topped only by Julius Erving of New York who had 136 of the possible 138 votes when he was picked to the East squad announced last week.

Joining Daniels and McGinnis in the starting lineup are Utah Stars forward Willis Wise and guard Jimmy Jones. Wise, making the team for the third straight team had 59 first place votes and 124 points, and Jones, who came off the bench last year to lead the comeback victory for the West, with 40 first place votes and 99 total.

Denver's Warren Jabali, the MVP in last year's game at Utah, edged teammate Ralph Simpson at the other starting guard spot with 75 total points.

Ball State crushes Cincy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Davidson and Ball State went to the polls Wednesday night ... and won in a landslide.

Playing teams in the Associated Press Top Twenty poll, both unranked teams did okay — as Davidson stunned No. 11 South Carolina 70-59 and Ball State crushed No. 20 Cincinnati 99-82.

"It was just a case of them outplaying us," said South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire, matter-of-factly. "We made a good run at them in the second half but we lost the game in the first quarter. They have a better bench than we do and that helped."

Davidson struck early behind Larry Horowitz and Mike Sorrentino, going ahead 20-8 with about 13 minutes remaining in the first half. The Gamecocks rallied in the second half, but could get no closer than three points.

Horowitz led the winners with 16 points while Sorrentino scored 14. Dunleavy had a game-high 22 points for South Carolina and Mathias collected 15 points and 16 rebounds.

Larry Bullington and Kim Kaufman scored 22 points apiece in Ball State's shocker over Cincinnati.

"It was a good win for them and they defeated us in every way," said a gracious Gale Catlett, the Cincinnati coach.

Jesse Jemison scored 20 points for the Bearcats, who lost their fourth game in 14 decisions. Ball State won its ninth game against five defeats.

North Carolina was the only other ranked team in action Wednesday night, beating Atlantic Coast Conference colleague Wake Forest 95-78.

Bobby Jones' 18 points led five players in double figures in North Carolina's victory over Wake Forest. The Tar Heels never trailed, taking their 11th victory in 12 starts this year.

Skip Brown led the losers with 22 points.

Dennis DuVal and Fred Saunders combined for 35 points, leading Syracuse to an 87-74 decision over Canisius. Larry Fogle, the nation's leading scorer with a 38.1 average, had a below-average 24 points for the losers.

Joe Bryant scored six points in 56 seconds to break open the game and lead LaSalle to an 85-73 victory over Drexel in the opener of a doubleheader at Philadelphia's Palestra. Villanova shot 69 percent from the floor in the first half and went on to beat Detroit University 80-67 in the second game.

DePaul beat Marshall 76-68 behind Greg Boyd's 23 points; Bill Magarity hit three straight field goals in the final three minutes, leading Georgia over Georgia Tech 75-66; Bob Fleischer led Duke over Clemson 63-50 with 14 points and Leon Benbow had 29 points, pacing Jacksonville over fumbling Furman, 77-68.

Boston University trimmed Boston College 95-94 in overtime to win the Beanpot Classic.

O.J. Simpson male Athlete of Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson admits he's prejudice when he says, "I think football players are the best athletes."

Named the Male Athlete of the Year for 1973 by The Associated Press, Simpson voiced his thanks, saying:

"This means quite a bit to me obviously since you're considering all the great athletes in all the sports.

"Generally speaking, I think it takes probably more athletic ability to play football and basketball. I would put basketball players in the same mold as football.

"There are so many things involved. I think even from the mental side there is so much involved in football that you just don't have in a baseball game, for instance."

Simpson won the award over a baseball player — Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves who was a distant second in the voting.

Simpson set a National Football League record by rushing for 2,003 yards last season with the Buffalo Bills who finished second to Super Bowl Champion Miami in the American Football Conference East.

He was a unanimous choice for the All-Pro team and was named the NFL Player of the Year. He credits his coach and fellow players for much of his success although he doesn't discount his own value, saying, "I consider myself as good a back as there is in football."

Since the end of the season, he already has signed a long-term contract with Buffalo, has been featured in television shows and works with the American Broadcasting Company as a commentator for televised football games.

In a poll of member newspapers, television stations and radio stations, Simpson received 332 votes. Aaron got 153 votes with UCLA basketball star Bill Walton third at 75.

A horse finished sixth, as Secretariat won the highest number of votes ever for a four-legged athlete in this competition.

Golfer Jack Nicklaus was fourth with 34, Pete Rose of Cincinnati's Reds fifth with 22 and Secretariat got 20, three more than baseball's strikeout king, Nolan Ryan of the California Angels.

Simpson won his second NFL rushing title this past season but increased his yardage by 750. He smashed Jim Brown's 10-year-old record of 1,863 and gained more than 200 in three games.

Ohio U defeats Redskins, 73-71

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio's Walter Luckett hit three free throws in the last 14 seconds to pull a victory from the fire and keep his school on top of the league in Mid-American Conference play Wednesday.

Luckett's last-minute goals gave Ohio a 73-71 victory over MAC foe Miami of Ohio.

Miami closed within one point with 1:50 left in the game, but couldn't overcome Ohio's lead.

"This team makes a lot of mistakes and comes right back to win," said Ohio Coach Jim Snyder.

Also in the MAC, Bowling Green defeated Central Michigan 65-56. Junior Cornelius Cash led Bowling Green, grabbing 22 rebounds in the overtime battle.

"We did everything we had to do to win, but we just didn't win," said Central Michigan Coach Dick Parfitt.

"We had so many opportunities to win it I just felt confident we were going to win," he said. "But in the end we just seemed to be too tight shooting when it counted."

Bowling Green Coach Pat Haley said Central did well.

"The only team that came to play basketball tonight was Central Michigan. Give them all the credit in the world.

"I guess you could place the blame on my shoulders for our poor showing," he said. "We were just too loose going into the game."

The University of Toledo ended Western Michigan's five-game winning streak, defeating them 69-61 in another MAC contest.

In the Ohio Conference, it was Wooster over Ohio Wesleyan 83-47, while Case Western Reserve defeated Thiel 62-60 in the President's Conference.

In other basketball action Wednesday night, Findlay defeated Taylor 92-80 and Hanover beat Wilmington 93-79 in the Hoosier-Buckeye Conference, Ball State beat Cincinnati 99-82 and Wittenberg triumphed over Central State 66-60.

Other games included West Virginia Wesleyan 62, Marietta 60; John Carrol 80, Oberlin 78; Mount Union 97, Hiram 87; Akron 84, Cleveland State 59; Youngstown State 95, Alliance, Pa. 69; Rio Grande 85, Wilberforce 82, and Urbana 75, Ohio Dominican 67.

Miami of Ohio eyes new football coach

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—Sunday's the date Miami of Ohio officials hope to name a new head football coach and the lone non-Miami grad of eight applicants said he's sure he'll get "a fair chance" at the post.

Dick Crum, a key architect in making the Redskins the nation's No. 1 defensive team in 1973, said Wednesday he won't "be bitter" if he doesn't get the job.

Below-the-waist downfield blocking halted by NCAA

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — In an effort to reduce college football injuries, the National Collegiate Athletic Association has outlawed downfield blocking below the waist on kickoff and punt returns next spring.

The NCAA Rules Committee adopted the blocking rule and several others during a meeting here Wednesday.

"We have found that 50 per cent of the injuries received on kicking plays are knee injuries, and occur during downfield blocking," said John Waldorf, Rules Committee chairman.

Another rules change calls for penalties on running plays to be enforced from when the ball carrier is halted, except when the infraction is committed by the offensive team behind the ball. Those will be stepped off from the point of infraction.

A key change provides that all infractions carry penalties, which the committee said was designed to lessen what it called "cheap shots" during the game.

Other major changes include:

—Substitution. A player must remain in the game for one play, while anyone taken out of the contest must remain out for one play. During the past season players could run into the game only long enough to deliver a play message and then leave.

—Kickoff receivers. Players receiving kickoffs can shade their eyes against the sun, an action prohibited in the past.

—Field goals. A ball must pass between the two uprights for a field goal. Previously a ball could pass over one upright.

—Hearing aids. Players with hearing disabilities may wear them.

Mantle, Ford enter 'Hall'

NEW YORK (AP) — Slugger Mickey Mantle and pitcher Whitey Ford, longtime New York Yankee teammates, were elected to baseball's Hall of Fame today.

Mantle became only the seventh player in history to be elected to the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

He attracted a total of 322 votes on the 365 ballots cast.

Ford, who had fallen 29 votes short of election last year, received 284. To be elected, a player must be named on 75 per cent of the ballots cast. With 365 voters, 272 was the magic number for election.

Ohio State gains home football game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State has gained one home football game for next fall, but may lose another one.

The Big Ten school's Athletic Council approved a first-ever 11th game Wednesday, a home date Sept. 21 against Oregon State of the Pacific-8.

Jack Billingham outstanding pitcher

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Jack Billingham, whose seven shutouts tied a 67-year-old Cincinnati Reds record, has been named his team's Outstanding Pitcher of 1973 by the Cincinnati Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The tall righthander, who led the National League in shutouts last season, was a runaway choice for the award. Pedro Borbon was the only other Reds' hurler to draw votes.

Talking animals aid handicapped children

TULARE, Calif. (AP) — A herd of talking animals is helping mentally handicapped children in Tulare County develop communication skills.

Children at the Maple Melody Learning Center and three other county facilities talk to the stuffed creatures — and the animals talk back.

The animals — a bull, a lion, a St. Bernard and a dalmatian — have been wired for sound, and Kenneth Wright, county Dept. of Education coordinator of programs for the mentally handicapped, says the children relate well to them.

Wright says the two-month-old program has helped some youngsters who were completely incapable of communicating before the animals were introduced.

"The cuddly animals are much easier to relate to than the coldness of a tape recorder or other audio aid," Wright says.

Two-way radios enable a therapist or teaching assistant to engage children in conversation from a distance. To the delighted child, it appears he is talking with the animal itself.

"Often the communication is no more than a happy smile or an excited hand clapping," said Marla Ludwig, a teacher at the Maple Melody Center.

"If Rene is at the table, she can reach up and kiss me on the ear," says the bull, with Miss Ludwig huddled over the microphone in the corner.

Rene, obviously surprised the bull knows her name, reaches up and kisses the overstuffed bull on the ear.

"Primarily, we use the bull as a reinforcer. In other words, It's better for the bull to say 'Dale, that was good,' instead of me saying it," Miss Ludwig says.

"The use of the medium is an absolute success. When the problems are cleared up, it could be a valuable teaching tool instead of just a reinforcer," she said.

One problem lies in the amplification system, which is relatively low-powered. some wiring needs strengthening. And of course, some children just don't approve of a talking bull.

"The older kids tend to think of the bull as babyish," Miss Ludwig said.

Opening lead - five of clubs.

When a slam is bid, the difference between making and losing it ordinarily ranges from 1,000 to 1,800 points, depending on vulnerability. Slams are therefore quite naturally deemed worthy of the closest attention by both sides.

Consistent with the importance of slam hands, there are several special defensive weapons that help to increase the chance of defeating a slam when it is bid.

Thus, when a defender not on lead doubles a slam voluntarily reached by the opposition, he is commanding partner to lead, or sometimes not to lead, a specific suit.

The advantage of this convention is clearly illustrated in the accompanying hand. South makes the slam if West leads a heart, the suit East has bid. But East's double forbids the normal heart lead and calls for an unusual lead. It is not difficult for West, with six cards in the suit dummy has bid, to deduce that East's reason for forbidding a heart lead is that he can ruff a club.

So West leads a club, ruffed by East, and East then cashes a heart to put the contract down one — 200 points. With a heart lead South would score 1,860 points.

It must be granted that by using such a convention the defenders will occasionally lose an extra 50 or 100 points they could have gained by doubling the slam. But this occasional loss is a mighty cheap price to pay for insuring the defeat of other slams that would otherwise come rolling home.

The opening leader generally has no trouble guessing which suit his partner wants led. Most important of all, he is barred from leading the suit his side has bid. Of the two side suits left, the opening leader's hand will practically always tell him where to attack.

Lie Detector's Moment of Truth

How does a lie detector work? Is it sometimes used in medical diagnosis?

Mr. H.G., Ky.

Dear Mr. G.:

The lie detector, or polygraph, is a highly sensitive machine that registers even barely perceptible emotional responses.

There is a definite relationship between emotional distress and physical behavior, as when a person is embarrassed or upset. Perspiration may appear on the forehead and lips, a pink blush covers the face, and the eyes may become teary and bright — all of in a fraction of a second.

A polygraph attached to the body at this time would quickly register increased respiration, a change in blood pressure, and a rapid change in the rate of the heart.

Fascinating is the use of the polygraph in medical practice. For example, it has been used for the early detection of deafness in infants and young children. Deaf children who cannot respond can be studied by their skin reactions that show up in the polygram.

Its greatest function, of course, is its use in criminology.

Can a doctor tell if a growth is cancerous just by looking at it?

Mrs. T.V.M., Ohio

Dear Mrs. M.

After years of experience doctors, surgeons and dentists develop a special diagnostic sense by which they can infer if a growth is cancerous or noncancerous.

The appearance of the growth, its location, its color, its movability, an intact covering, and the associated symptoms help the doctor arrive at a conclusion.

However, the doctor never depends solely on visual judgment. When there is the slightest suggestion that the tumor might be malignant, part of it is removed for microscopic study and the exact nature of the tumor is determined.

Theft, vandalism incidents reported to sheriff, police

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported a case of petty larceny and city police reported the breaking and entering of an auto and a vandalism prank involving bedsheets.

An unidentified man is being sought by sheriff's deputies for walking out of Montgomery Hardware in Jeffersonville, with a $20 socket set, sometime between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., Wednesday.

The man was seen in the store, but only his clothing could be described.

A piccolo theft from the Miami Trace instrument room, actually occurred sometime last November. Sheriff's deputies received word of the theft Wednesday and added it to the books. The piccolo belonged to Cindy K. Davis, Sabina.

A car owned by Cynthia Rand, 623 S. Elm St., was broken into Saturday night or early Sunday morning. The owner didn't discover the entry and report it to Police until Wednesday afternoon when she noticed the latches holding the back window section had been broken.

Nothing was taken or disturbed within the car, but new hinges will cost approximately $67.

Police noted that an empty green money bag had been lying on the front seat and this could have been the motive for the offense.

Three bedsheets were pulled from a backyard clothesline and thrown to the ground, police reported. The offense occurred at the Lois I. Plymale residence, 717 Oak Drove, sometime Wednesday evening.

SCOPS will meet in canal warehouse

The next meeting of "SCOPS", the South Central Ohio Preservation Society, Inc., will be held Sunday, Jan. 27, at 2 p.m. in the historic "Old Canal Warehouse", Mulberry and Main Sts. in Chillicothe.

This will be a combination business meeting and walking tour. The building will be heated, but warm clothing and walking shoes are recommended.

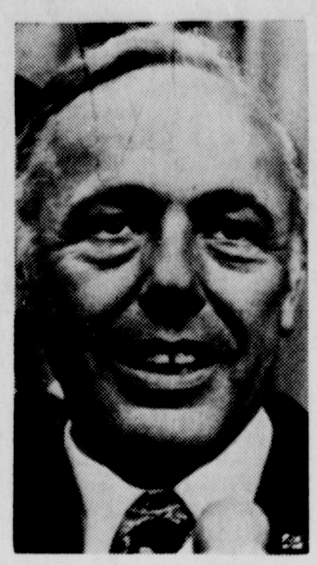

The warehouse is large, consisting of three floors and a basement. Last year it was scheduled to be torn down to make way for a parking lot.

Instead, it was sold recently and will be restored.

150th anniversary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Holmes County will be 150 years old Jan. 20, Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said today.

Brown said the north central Ohio county was created by the legislature in 1824 and was named after an officer in the War of 1812.

LEAVING COURT — White House lawyer James St. Clair pauses to talk to newsmen outside U.S. District Court in Washington. Technical experts told the court that the 18-minute gap in a subpoenaed Watergate tape was caused by repeated stopping and starting of the recording machine during the obliteration.

The largest crowd ever to gather at a funeral is estimated at about four million who thronged through Cairo for the funeral of President Gamal Abdel Nassar in 1970.

EPA handout use by solons hit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Five Democratic state legislators used almost identical press releases based on letters from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency to disburse information to their constituents Wednesday.

The releases concerned $2.4 million in state money from the federal revenue sharing program for use in the improvement of local water supply systems. Such "handout" announcements normally come directly from state agencies involved.

In one release, Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, and Rep. John P. Wrgo, D-2 Lisbon, announced funds for the villages of East Liverpool, Salineville and Washingtonville.

In another, Meshel joined with Rep. George D. Tablack, D-52 Hubbard, to announce improvements at the villages of Sebring and Washingtonville, and in the Mahoning Valley Sanitary District.

Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, and Rep. C. J. McLin Jr., D-36 Dayton, advised Montgomery County that it is eligible for a $15,000 grant "from the State of Ohio's revenue sharing money."

All but Hall, among the five, are up for re-election this year.

The news releases pointed out that 52 communities around the state have been declared eligible for grants in three categories: improvement needed because of existing health hazards, $1.5 million; those needed in communities with uncovered finished drinking water supplies, $600,000 and those needing more laboratory equipment, $300,000.

Individual grants were not listed, but the EPA said East Liverpool and Salineville would share in the $600,000 earmarked for covering reservoirs along with Cleveland, Lancaster, London, Martins Ferry, Napoleon, New Philadelphia, New Richmond, Sebring, Springfield, Toronto, Twin City, and Warren.

Washingtonville is among 21 municipalities eligible to share in $1.5 million for basic water system improvements, along with Flushing, Irondale, Mount Orab, Greenfield, New Lebanon, Elida, Fairborn, Put-in-Bay, Kellys Island, Rock Creek, Adena, Trenton, Dillonvale, McClure, Ada, Gratis, Green Meadows, Bremen and West Milton.

The Mahoning Valley Sewer District is among 17 governmental entities eligible to share in the $300,000 for laboratory equipment. Others in this category are Akron, Canton, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Cuyahoga Falls, Dayton, Elyria, Hamilton, Lima, Lorain, Middletown, Montgomery County, Newark, Portsmouth, Springfield, and Warren.

Chaplain sorry for enthusiastic Gilligan remark

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Peace apparently is restored between an Ohio House chaplain and Republicans who raised their eyebrows during his prayer suggesting Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan should be president.

The Rev. Colby Grimes of Columbus apologized Wednesday in another prayer, saying in part that the House "is not the proper place to display my enthusiasm ... be merciful to me ... I see the evil I have done."

The Rev. Mr. Grimes said in a prayer the day before, prior to Gilligan's "State of the State" message, that he hoped the governor "one day soon would be delivering the State of the Union address."

GOP lawmakers who said they would file some sort of protest with the Democratic majority now indicate the chaplain's apology has put the matter to rest. They declined further comment.

Trial set in slayings

FALMOUTH, Ky. (AP) — Two men charged in a mass murder last October which claimed six lives are to face trial April 23.

The date was set Wednesday. The two men — Wilmer E. Scott, 25, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and William H. Sloan, 24, Louisville — were indicted on 11 counts earlier this week by a Pendleton County grand jury.

The two escaped from federal custody in Lexington Oct. 1.

Circuit Judge John P. Lair denied a defense motion for a change of venue and for names of witnesses.

The judge ordered Commonwealth Attorney Larry Tucker to turn over statements made by Scott and Sloan to police.

TIME PAYMENTS — Three members of Boy Scout Troop No. 112, Jeff Lewis, John Murphy and Craig Maddux, are shown with the old Washington C.H. parking meters, they purchased from Charles Lee Associates, Cincinnati. The old meters were available when the city purchased and installed new automatic meters. Scoutmaster William Cales came up with the idea of turning the old meters into savings banks for a fund-raising project in which the money will be used towards the scout's summer camping trip to Canada. The meter-banks will sell for $6.75 and interested people can call 335-7109 or 335-6277 (after 5 p.m.) and a Boy Scout will deliver one.

Storm batters Northwest

Landslide buries 9

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nine men were missing today after a rock and earth slide smothered a telephone company building in Oregon, and two children drowned in Northern California.

The men were working in a Pacific Northwest Bell Co. structure near Canyonville in southwestern Oregon Wednesday night when the landslide roared off a mountain, pushed the structure into a creek and then buried it in mud.

Authorities moved heavy equipment to the scene to dig for possible survivors, then abandoned the rescue attempt temporarily until geologists could gauge the danger of further slides.

The Oregon landslide came in the wake of heavy rains and an early snow melt that sent already swollen streams in many areas of the Pacific Northwest surging to new highs.

The storm left its soggy impact on western Montana, Idaho, northeastern Washington, Western Oregon and Northern California.

Dams broke and mudslides blocked highways. Hundreds of families were forced from their homes by floodwaters.

At Myers Flat, on a branch of the Eel River in Northern California, 14-year-old Jimmy Moore and his 12-year-old sister, Kathy, died Wednesday when a dam created by a log-jam burst and surging water swept them from the backyard of their home.

Sheriff's Lt. Robert Williams said the youngsters were helping their father, Emery, move property to higher ground when they were swept to their deaths.

Moore escaped. His wife was in the family home, which was torn loose by the swirling water. She escaped death when the house washed back to shore after being carried some 75 out into the raging stream.

Eight counties in Idaho were declared a disaster area.

The Idaho mining district of Coeur d'Alene was virtually isolated. Dams burst. Water blocked highways. At least 1,000 persons were evacuated from their homes.

Fifteen persons were reported trapped by high water on a bridge over the north fork of the Coeur D'Alene river in Idaho. A major bridge over the south fork of the Coeur d'Alene collapsed, isolating hundreds of persons.

In Western Oregon, hit by the worst flooding in 10 years, there was some relief from high water Wednesday as the rain slackened and rivers receded. At least 250 families had fled their homes.

Storm warnings were in effect on the Oregon coast for wind gusts up to 70 miles per hour. Wind speeds of 70 m.p.h. hour were clocked Wednesday at Livingston, Mont., and Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Amtrak, the national rail passenger service, announced it had canceled all service between Vancouver, B.C., and Oakland, Calif., because of the rains and high water. Amtrak's Seattle-Chicago service was suspended west of Havre and Billings, Mont.

Hundreds of persons were forced from their homes by high water in Northern California and dozens of roads, including scenic coastal highway U.S. 101, were closed by slides and flooding streams. Four bridges were reported washed out in Trinity County.

Authorities reported that 400 residents were evacuated from low-lying areas in Humboldt County, some 200 persons fled their homes at Pepperwood and another 150 were forced from their homes near Dunsmuir, north of Mt. Shasta on the Sacramento river.

More than four inches of rain pelted the Dunsmuir area in 24 hours.

The Southern Pacific reported that 1,500 feet of track was washed away near Dunsmuir. Two Amtrak trains carrying more than 300 passengers were held up at Redding, Calif., and Klamath Falls, Ore., because of flooded tracks.

At Ukiah, in Northern California's Mendocino County, water was hubcap deep in the streets.

FBI enters probe of tape gap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation has entered the investigation into who could have pushed the buttons that erased a portion of a taped presidential conversation.

Confirmation that the FBI had entered the probe came from spokesman Robert Frank, who said the agency had been asked to investigate by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Meanwhile, a court inquiry into the tape erasure continued. Prosecutors, armed with a technical report on how the 18.5-minute gap occurred, looked to additional testimony for answers.

Two more Secret Service officials involved in keeping track of the White House tapes and recording equipment were scheduled to testify today in federal court.

The Washington bureau of Westinghouse Broadcasting Corp. said that the FBI probe had the approval of FBI chief Clarence Kelley. Westinghouse said the investigation would involve President Nixon and his closest personal aides.

In the court inquiry, Stephen B. Bull, special assistant to President Nixon, testified Wednesday that he knew of only five people who ever had possession of the tape of a June 20, 1972, conversation between Nixon and H. R. Haldeman.

He said they were himself, the President, presidential secretary Rose Mary Woods, White House lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt and Gen. John Bennett, a presidential aide.

At the close of Wednesday's hearing U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica said he hoped all testimony would be completed Friday when the technical experts return to be cross-examined by White House lawyers.

Then, it will be up to the judge to decide what happens next and Sirica said, for the first time in open court, that he expects his decision to include whether or not the mystery of the obliterated tape should be referred to a grand jury.

On Tuesday, technical experts reported that the 18.5-minute segment of the tape had been erased during a series of between five and nine actions on a Uher 5000 tape recorder. Each time that the machine was restarted and stopped again someone had to push a button, the report said.

Testimony by the experts, and a Secret Service official Wednesday, and previous testimony by Miss Woods pointed to Oct. 1 as the date on which a portion of the erasure occurred.

Miss Woods has testified that on Oct. 1 she accidentally pushed the wrong button while transcribing the June 20 tape. She also said that in going back to listen to the tape after the accident she heard a couple of minutes of buzzing and no conversation.

Those few minutes are included within the 18.5-minutes that the experts say were erased. They also said their tests indicated the erasure was done on the same machine used by Miss Woods.

Wednesday's testimony also disclosed that Miss Woods' Uher machine was purchased new Oct. 1 and brought by the Secret Service to Bull who took it to Miss Woods about 1:30 p.m.

At least temporarily

Council members may scrap cab franchise

Washington C.H. is still without taxicab service, but it's not that City Council isn't trying to do something to remedy the unfortunate situation.

Council members, in a special "workshop session" Wednesday night, unanimously agreed not to award the city's taxicab franchise to any one of the four applicants.

Joseph O'Brien and Billie Wilson, who serve on City Council's service committee, had a prepared report which was reviewed in length. O'Brien and Wilson said the top prospect for the franchise had withdrawn his application.

There's a possibility that City Council will scrap the taxicab franchise, at least temporarily.

COUNCIL MEMBERS unanimously agreed to investigate the possibility of establishing an open licensing system for city taxicab service.

Under the open licensing plan, which was explained by City Manager Dan Wolford, a number of taxicab license applications would be available.

Applicants would be forced to have their taxicabs, or private autos, inspected by the Washington C.H. Police Department for safety and certain other requirements such as liability insurance coverage would have to be met.

It's almost inevitable that some solution to the problem will be presented at City Council's regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday.

THE CITY has been without taxicab service for 17 days and Council members are continuing to receive an enormous number of complaints concerning the situation.

Taxicab service in Washington C.H. was discontinued effective Jan. 1 by William Phillips, owner of the Fayette Cab Co. Labor problems and low profit margins were cited by Phillips as the primary reasons for discontinuing the taxicab service.

The special session gave City Council members an opportunity to schedule work sessions on various items such as the annual appropriations. Council also scheduled a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 28, with the Fayette County Health Department to discuss the proposed multi-county solid waste disposal district.

Wednesday's worksession was scheduled at an early hour since the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals had its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m.

State solons still seek abortion measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After almost a year of frustration, Ohio lawmakers still are searching for legal language that would permit the state to place reasonable controls on abortions.

The task was placed Wednesday in the hands of an Ohio Senate Judiciary Subcommittee which Chairman Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, said should report back to the full committee in two or three weeks.

Gillmor named the subcommittee after hearing the last of testimony on a proposal passed last year by the House, and upon agreement by committee members that in its present form, it probably would not comply with the U.S. Supreme Court decision that invalidated Ohio's old anti-abortion law.

The committee action, along with introduction in both houses of Atty. Gen. William J. Brown's proposed new drug abuse bill, highlighted an otherwise routine day in the legislature.

Senators approved without dissent a bill that gives port authorities the right to employ special policemen. About 40 minutes of debate preceded passage, and agreement came only after a successful amendment by Sen. David L. Headley, D-28 Barberton, specified that the special police could only enforce state laws — and not regulations adopted by port authorities.

Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo, the main sponsor, said it was especially needed in Lucas County where the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority took over Toledo Express Airport, 14 miles from the city. He said the sheriff's office was not equipped to handle emergency enforcement problems.

Across the Statehouse, representatives also debated at length before passing a measure by Rep. Richard L. Wittenberg, D-44 Toledo, that puts provisions of the Model Weights and Measures Law into a state code and increases powers of the director of agriculture to enforce them.

The floor fight centered about a provision that would have permitted the director to halt commercial vehicles, inspect them, and seize any products suspected of being illegally packaged or mislabelled.

Retained, however, was the authority for the director or his agents to enter private business establishments for the same type of inspections and seizures. The investigators could not enter without permission, however, unless armed with search warrants.

Named by Gillmor to the abortion subcommittee were Sens. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria; Walter L. White, R-12 Lima, and Donald L. Woodland, D-16 Columbus.

Among witnesses was Stanley Laughlin Jr., an attorney representing the Ohio Civil Liberties Union and legal counsel in a federal court case that held Ohio's old law to be invalid initially. The old statute permitted abortions only if the mother's health was in danger.

Laughlin said provisions in the House bill, which make physicians responsible for deciding when it is safe to perform an abortion, are "more repressive than the one declared unconstitutional in Ohio — your old abortion law."

James Polman, an attorney representing the Ohio State Medical Association, predicted few abortions would be performed in Ohio if the House bill were to become law. Penalties it would levy on doctors not following prescribed procedures would keep them from performing an abortion, Polman said.

In other action, the House Transportation Committee referred to the House Select Committee on Energy an administration bill permitting Ohio to comply with the new federal 55 mile per hour speed limit.

Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, who heads the new energy panel, said hearings probably will begin on the bill next week, along with other energy bills expected from the administration. The legislature created the new committee to receive and set priorities for an expected floodtide of measures on fuel shortages and related matters.

Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, and Rep. Myrl Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, are the Senate and House sponsors, respectively, of the drug bill which the attorney general claims will give Ohio one of the toughest drug laws in the nation.

Among the more stringent provisions are those that eliminate any possibility of probation for certain offenses, primarily those committed by drug pushers. "We want to end plea bargaining where drug pushers are concerned," Brown said.

Addicts, under the bill, however, could get probation if they agree to treatment, and if successfully rehabilitated, their record could be expunged.

Soybean checkoff program rejected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio soybean growers have rejected a proposed domestic and foreign marketing program for their crop, state Agriculture Director Gene Abercrombie said today.

Abercrombie said 2,297 voted for the program, while 2,158 were against it.

He said 66 2-3 per cent of the production total, or 66 2-3 per cent of the producers, were required to approve the program.

He said the favorable vote represented 51.6 per cent of the total bushels produced in the state and 58.7 per cent of the growers.

The marketing program would have permitted a half-cent checkoff on all soybeans sold in Ohio. At least 60 per cent of the money would have been used to develop foreign markets. The remainder of the money would have been used for domestic market development and research.

"I don't think the half-cent would have bothered anybody," said Abercrombie. "Soybeans are at an equitable market price now. It may have been apathy."

Ohio has more than 55,000 soybean producers and only 4,455 voted, he said.

The agriculture director said the soybean referendum was the first such program to be defeated by Ohio farmers. They had previously approved programs for beef, turkeys, eggs and apples.

He said the proposal failed with the votes of Shelby County missing.

"Since 60 votes and 145,000 bushels were missing, it couldn't possibly change the vote one way or another," Abercrombie said.

Ohio soybean farmers cast their ballots during a three-day period last week and mailed their ballots to the state Agriculture Department.

The News In Brief

DOVER, England (AP) — At least 14 persons were drowned, 23 seamen were missing and another 20-man crew were trapped aboard their burning ship today as 100-mile-an-hour winds piled up 50-foot waves in the English Channel.

The 2,447-ton freighter Marta was afire 10 miles off Ostend, Belgium. The coast guard said the huge waves were preventing the 20 crewmen from launching liferafts. Several ships were trying to help.

Nixon defense costs nearly $300,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has spent about $300,000 on President Nixon's Watergate defense but argues it is outspent and outnumbered by a growing investigative bureaucracy.

Apparently seeking to mute any criticism of government outlays to defend Nixon, a White House official made material available to support the argument that the President's lawyers are the underdogs.

The official reported that expenses of the White House legal group totalled $290,418 between last July 1 and Jan. 9. He said spending for the full 1974 fiscal year, ending June 30, probably would total about $600,000, perhaps more.

By contrast, he said the special prosecutor alone has a $2.8-million budget, the Senate Watergate committee $1.5 million and the House Judiciary Committee $1 million.

The official said Nixon's defense team consists of 14 fulltime attorneys, four part-time lawyer-consultants, and seven secretaries.

He said the Watergate prosecutor and the two congressional committees employ 60 attorneys, with 25 more authorized, plus 113 investigators, accountants, researchers, secretaries and other support personnel.

Boston attorney James D. St. Clair heads the Nixon team at a salary of $42,500 a year, the same as White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt and presidential assistant Leonard Garment, who are trying to cut loose from Watergate chores but were listed by the White House source as members of the defense staff.

Cecil Emerson, a staff assistant to Nixon who is paid $32,031 a year, was cited as the only other defense attorney on the White House payroll.

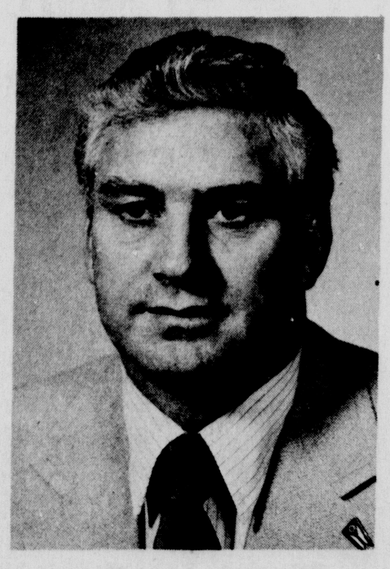

Jaworski's salary is $38,000 a year. Among his assistants, Richard Ben-Veniste is listed as earning $29,205 a year and Jill Vollner, $25,055.

The 44-year-old Dumford, who resides at 635 Warren Ave., served three terms on the Fayette County Board of Commissioners and was defeated in a bid for state representative from Ohio's 20th District in 1970. He is past president of the Ohio County Commissioner's Association, serving in that capacity in 1969, served as chairman of both the taxation and legislative committees of the Ohio Commissioners's Association and is a past president and charter member of the Fayette County Democratic Club.

Man convicted of biggest Ohio bank burglary

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Amil Dinsio, 36, who already has been convicted in what is reported to be the largest bank burglary in U.S. history, now has been convicted of what federal authorities say is the biggest bank burglary on record in Ohio.

A U.S. District Court jury found Dinsio, of Boardman, Ohio, guilty Wednesday in the $430,604 burglary of the Lordstown branch of the Second National Bank of Warren on May 5, 1972.

Sentencing was deferred by Judge Leroy J. Contie Jr. pending a report by the U.S. Parole and Probation Office.

Dinsio was convicted in December, 1972, for his part in the $6 million burglary of the United Bank of California's Laguna Niguel branch.

Faces of Mao, Stalin, Nixon seen in D.C. building mural

WASHINGTON (AP) — When District of Columbia officials gathered to dedicate a bicentennial building, they were confronted with mural-like sketches of Mao Tse-tung, Joseph Stalin and President Nixon in gangster garb.

The artist, H. H. Booker Jr., said no one told him what to draw. "They just said to make faces," he said.

Some of the faces, drawn in charcoal around the top of a room in the D.C. Bicentennial Building, aren't likely to survive until 1976.

James P. Alexander, assistant to Mayor Walter E. Washington for bicentennial affairs, says the concept somehow went awry. "What we had planned was a living mural, people in the news, with the faces changing periodically."

Alexander said he expects to have staff artists start changing faces shortly, replacing the questionable ones with "people active as America moves forward."

Booker recalls his work as "a whole lot of fun."

The presidential sketch bears only a minimal resemblance to Nixon. The nose and 5 o'clock shadow are familiar, but he is disguised with a moustache and wears a dark shirt and white tie.

Stalin was given muttonchop whiskers and Mao is wearing a business suit. Tricia Nixon Cox is there with an Afro hairdo.

The mayor, who attended the dedication Tuesday, apparently did not recognize the likenesses. He had no comment but reportedly demanded to know whether District of Columbia tax money would be used to pay the artist. Alexander said it would not, that a donation would be used for the expense.

Alexander said in an interview the contractor on the job, Herbert Banham of the Fountown Sign Shop, was told that what was wanted was people from different periods of world history.

Fountown hired Booker. Asked if he is a Marxist, the artist replied, "I guess so."

So he drew in Karl Marx and his associate Friedrich Engels. But he also included Groucho Marx, Greta Garbo, Laurel and Hardy, and Gracie Allen, who is next to the likeness of Nixon.

U.S. tax reform far from ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite speeches, hearings and campaign debate, federal tax reform remains an issue far from final action in the Congress that reconvenes next Monday.

It has been on the agenda for a year, with rival proposals from Democrats and the Republican administration still pending. The House Ways and Means Committee is expected to resume consideration of tax reform in February.

Meanwhile, the tax experts of a joint congressional committee are looking into President Nixon's own tax returns. The President asked that panel to investigate and judge whether he owes more taxes.

Nixon's disclosure of his own tax payments, totaling less than $6,000 for 1970, 1971 and 1972, could provide new impetus for the lagging reform movement.

Legislation to tighten minimum tax provisions, designed to insure that the wealthy pay sizeable taxes despite the deductions and tax advantages to which they are entitled by law, is part of virtually every reform recipe.

A group of Senate Democrats has introduced a more stringent minimum tax bill, citing the Nixon case.

The administration itself has such a proposal before Congress, to require that people pay taxes on at least half their income despite deductions.

Had that been law, it would have increased the President's taxes. As President, his salary is $200,000 a year.

He has been taking tax deductions for vice presidential papers donated to the government, and appraised at $576,000. Those deductions are one of the specific items on which he requested congressional review.

The administration plan for a change in minimum tax requirements was part of a package presented to the House Ways and Means Committee last April 30.

Among other administration proposals are a system of tax credits to provide property tax relief for the elderly, and for tuition payments to private schools.

Those were two items the President stressed during the 1972 campaign, when the Democrats were hammering tax reform as an issue.

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic nominee, advocated tax changes he said would raise $22 billion in additional revenues, saying that reforms should get more money from the rich and from corporations.

Costlier labor pacts expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — A forecast of bigger contract settlements this year from the government's top wage controller may indicate a relaxation of the administration's pay guidelines.

"I would expect that the normal forces that operate on wages will result in higher settlements in 1974," said Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council.

In meeting with newsmen Wednesday, Dunlop gave no indication that the council would hold wages to the 5.6 per cent average increase of contracts last year.

He also said he opposes any move into a new Phase 5 wage-price control program after legal authority for the Economic Stabilization Program expires in April.

But he said he would not rule out the possibility of continued Phase 4-type controls should Congress extend authority beyond the present April 30 expiration date.

Dunlop said his recommendations are before the President, and that he and Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz would present the administration's proposal to Congress Feb. 6 in testimony before a Senate Banking subcommittee.

In the meantime, he said the council is weighing a proposal to lift price controls from several industries, including food manufacturing. He said there is general agreement that when controls are lifted from the retail end of the food business, "we should do it in one fell swoop."

Wage-price controls have been in effect in various forms since August 1971 as part of the administration's effort to control inflation. But the inflation rate increased from 3.4 per cent in 1972 to nearly 9 per cent last year, with projections of more of the same this year.

Dunlop said he expected "continued, substantial increases" in wholesale prices through April and an appreciable jump in retail food prices that "will further aggravate the situation."

The pressure of rising prices, a tightening labor market and high industry profits will push wage settlements up more this year than at any time since the start of the controls program, he predicted.

A number of major contracts come up this year and labor leaders are expected to be more militant in their demands.

Dunlop expressed concern with bargaining early this year in the aluminum and can industries as well as in the reopening of the Teamsters contract.

He conceded that higher wages will bring new pressure for still further increases in prices.

Agreement near completion on Mideast troop changes

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli sources said they expect Moscow, Washington, Egypt and Israel to announce today that agreement has been reached on separating the Egyptian and Israeli armies.

Officials said the disengagement agreement would have to be submitted to the Mideast peace conference in Geneva.

The Israeli Cabinet apparently approved a plan worked out by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who has been in the Mideast since last Friday, shuttling between Jerusalem and Aswan, Egypt.

Sources said Israel might get only mutual understandings with Egypt, instead of a written pledge, on thinning out Arab forces east of the Suez Canal.

Egyptian newspapers wrote of a disengagement agreement today in terms that also indicated one was near.

"The wording and clauses of each provision will be clear and precise in such a way as to avoid ambiguity or misinterpretation by any of the parties," said Al Gomhouriya.

"Each of the Israeli pullback stages will be implemented according to a timetable and will stipulate minute details on the transport of equipment and thinning out of Israeli troops, the number of these forces and the kinds of weapons."

However, no one gave any indication of how the various points of disagreement previously reported were being resolved.

These include Israel's demand that Egyptian forces on the east bank of the canal be reduced and rocket and antiaircraft missile launchers on that side of the waterway be removed. Also included is Egypt's insistence that Israel commit itself to the position that its withdrawal of troops from the canal is the first step in a withdrawal from other occupied Arab territory.

Meanwhile, Premier Golda Meir's Israeli government was under fire at home. Its chief political opposition, the rightwing Likud bloc that made sizable gains in the general election New Year's Eve, charged that the government was negotiating a "one-sided retreat of our forces, not disengagement."

Nixon plans to deliver State speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is expected to appear personally before Congress and on national television to deliver his State of the Union message during the last week in January, according to White House sources.

The sources said the speech has been postponed about a week from its originally planned date of Jan. 23.

The annual message is expected to set forth the President's blueprint for the nation's future and Nixon is reportedly hopeful that it will cast him in a leadership role and help to dispel the cloud of Watergate.

A new proposal for a federal health insurance program and suggestions for revised transportation policies are expected to be included in the message, and Nixon is also believed to be considering a plan to put a floor under the income of poverty level Americans.

Last year Nixon sent his State of the Union message to Congress by messenger and followed it with a series of messages detailing his major ideas. It is believed he will again this year follow up with a series of special messages on specific program proposals.

Meanwhile, Nixon conferred on health insurance and transportation policy with Kenneth R. Cole Jr., executive director of the domestic council. Nixon then announced that Cole will be named his assistant for domestic affairs.

Red missile over-rated?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Technical analysis indicates that a Soviet-made antiaircraft missile fired by the Arabs in the recent Mideast war was over-rated, Pentagon sources report.

The SA7 was found to be too slow to knock down U.S. jets flown at high speed by Israeli pilots and its warhead was not powerful enough to destroy more than a few of the jets it did hit, sources said.

According to reports being studied here, only two of 28 U.S. built Israeli Skyhawks struck by SA7 missiles crashed while the other 26 landed safely, U.S. military sources said. Neither of the downed planes was traveling faster than about 450 miles per hour when struck.

The Israeli Air Force lost heavily in the first four days of the October war and considerable credit for those killed was given to Soviet-provided antiaircraft missiles.

One of those missiles was the SA7, a heat-seeking weapon that was mounted in groupings of four to eight on tracked vehicles. The SA7 was encountered first in South Vietnam where it was effective against helicopters when shoulder-fired by North Vietnamese infantry men.

The Israelis captured some SA7s and other types of Soviet-supplied antiaircraft missiles. Israeli and U.S. technicians have been studying their performance ever since the October war.

Among the weapons under study is the new SA6, a high speed antiaircraft missile designed to counter low-level attack planes. The SA6 was encountered for the first time in the recent Mideast war. This missile too was credited at first with many Israeli kills but it was determined later that the SA6 caused most damage by forcing Israeli pilots into evasive maneuvers that brought their planes into the muzzles of antiaircraft guns.

Meanwhile, other studies of Israeli tanks knocked out in the October battles indicate that Russian antitank ammunition is highly destructive, perhaps more so than American experts had believed it to be.

Family spat brings death to officers

DETROIT (AP) — Two young policemen have been shot to death and two others wounded after answering "the most difficult type of call," a family fight involving a gun.

Killed Wednesday were Leonard Todd, 32, an 11-year police veteran just promoted to sergeant, and Patrolman Edward Pakula, 27, an ex-Marine with four years on the force. Each was married and the father of one child.

A 15-year-old boy also was grazed by a bullet in a hail of gunfire which cut down the four officers, police said. The youth, whom police declined to identify, was reported in satisfactory condition.

Authorities also would not identify the man who fired from the house. They said he was not hurt.

Police Commissioner Philip Tannian said officers were dispatched to a quiet, middle-income neighborhood in Northeast Detroit after a woman made two calls to police.

They said that in the first call she asked for help in a family quarrel and in the second reported that "someone was shooting up the house."

He said the responding officers stepped into a barrage of gunfire when they arrived at the home.

Cooler in the northeast with mild temperatures continuing in the rest of the state is the current Ohio weather outlook.

Skies were clear over much of the state during the night but in the early hours of Thursday clouds began to work in from the northeast and by dawn had spread as far as the Ohio River.

Clouds spreading over northern counties are the result of colder air flowing in from the northeast. A large high pressure center in Central Canada is moving east to southeast. The cool air from this high will cover the northeastern half of the state Thursday and Thursday night while mild temperatures continue elsewhere.

No precipitation is expected today or tonight although there is a chance of a little drizzle at times near Lake Erie.

A chance of rain is forecast for Saturday. Skies will be cloudy Sunday and fair Monday. Highs will range from the 40s to 50s Saturday to the 40s Monday. Lows will range from the 30s and 40s early Saturday to the 20s early Monday.

Stock list up sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market remained sharply higher today amid rising hopes that some agreement between Israel and Egypt was imminent.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 8.45 to 864.54. Advances topped declines on the New York Stock Exchange by nearly 5 to 1.

Eugene Peroni, analyst with du Pont Walston, Inc., attributed the market's gains primarily to technical conditions which, he said, were "very much supported by optimistic and hopeful news coming out of the Mideast." He cited news reports that an agreement would be announced later today by Egypt, Israel, the Soviet Union, and the United States.

Rite Aid was volume leader on the NYSE, off ¼ to 9¼ after a 386,500-share block at 8½, down 1.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index at noon was up .73 to 95.41, while the NYSE index was up .59 to 51.77.

Bad day for woman

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — Ever have one of those days that just didn't get off to a good start? Meet Rina Kratofil.

She outlined this series of events to the Cascade Fire Department Wednesday:

Her waterbed started leaking at 4 a.m.

Then the floods that have soaked Northern California wiped out her home's electricity.

She decided to solve that problem by placing candles about the house. After she had done that, she started making breakfast, but dropped the egg container and broke every egg she had in the house.

Meanwhile, her dog knocked over one of the candles. The candle landed on the couch, setting it afire. That ignited a corner of the room.

The fire department arrived and managed to confine the damage to a single room.

"Look, it's only eight o'clock in the morning," Cascade Fire Department Chief Hans Heinrich told the woman. "I'd advise you not to touch anything for the rest of the day."

Health Care controls may stick

WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of the Cost of Living Council has raised the possibility that some controls over health costs may continue after the present wage-price control authority expires at the end of April.

"It is my view that it will be important to continue a statutory base for restraint of health costs after April 30," Council director John T. Dunlop said Wednesday.

The council on Wednesday issued its final Phase 4 regulation on health costs, allowing doctors and dentists a 4 per cent annual increase in fees and hospitals about 7.5 per cent in charges.

The old controls provided for a 2.5 per cent increase in charges of medical practitioners and allowed hospitals to increase their charges by up to 6 per cent when justified by higher costs.

Dunlop noted that the health industry has in the past experienced some of the most serious inflation in the economy.

But he said previous controls programs have cut down on the rate of inflation, reducing the annual increase in over-all health prices from 6.9 per cent in 1969 to 3.2 per cent in 1972.

Dumford said finances of $500,000 were obtained from foundation programs for a two-year study. The commission will complete its work in April and file a final report with the governor.

He is a 1947 graduate of Bloomingburg High School and received a Bachelor of Science degree in education from Ohio State University in 1951.

Dumford is past president of the Bloomingburg Lions Club, past president of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club, past director of the Washington C.H. License official disciplined in Rhodes renewal case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A 65-year-old licensing supervisor for the Ohio Real Estate Commission has been disciplined for renewing the broker's license of former Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Victor Herbert, assistant director of the Ohio Department of Commerce, said John C. Johnson was suspended for five days without pay, effective Wednesday.

Department spokesman John Christensen said Johnson, an appointee of Rhodes, failed to comply with two commission guidelines.

He said Johnson was told to withhold renewal of Rhodes' license until further word from Commerce Director Dennis Shaul. He said Johnson also was told not to make any renewals for brokers who did not have trust bank accounts as required by law.

Christensen said when Rhodes applied for renewal last November, he did not have such an account.

Christensen said the case has not been closed. "We're reviewing the case and trying to answer a number of questions," he said.

He added that Shaul "will make the final decision" on Johnson sometime next week. He indicated that firing of the employe was a possibility.

Johnson was named to the commission during the second term of Rhodes, who served from 1963 to 1970.

Rhodes, a Republican, first received his broker's license in the final days of his administration. He was issued the license after taking a brief oral examination in his office.

He did not take the written test required of other applicants.

Christensen said the commission "has no clear remedy" to revoke Rhodes' first license under real estate guidelines. However, he said, the Ohio attorney general has been asked to prepare a court suit to challenge Rhodes first license.

Medic licensing relaxation urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—If Ohio wants to alleviate its doctor shortage, it could make it easier for U.S. citizens who graduate from foreign medical schools to be licensed in the state, a legislative committee was told Wednesday night.

Rep. Arthur R. Bowers, D-98 Steubenville, brought witnesses before the House State Government Committee supporting his enabling measure. They included a New Concord, Ohio, native now in his third year at the autonomous University of Guadalajara, Mexico.

The same committee earlier Wednesday night recommended passage of a measure by Rep. C. J. McLin Jr. D-36 Dayton, giving legal status to a medical school at Wright State University at Dayton.

McLin's bill has the effect of reconfirming demands of Dayton area legislators in the wake of a growing dispute with administration spokesmen who have taken a stand against the Wright State facility.

The dispute also involves a proposal in a governor's task force report to withhold action on a second new medical school in northeast Ohio.

Bowers' bill would require that the State Medical Board allow a graduate of a foreign school who is a U.S. citizen to take an examination to practice in Ohio if he has completed one year of academic training at a U.S. hospital, and if he has completed one year of internship in this country, he explained.

Steve Taylor of New Concord told the committee he represents the 1,900-member National Student Association at Guadalajara, including 106 Ohioans who are in medical school at the Mexican University.

He cited statistics of the American Medical Association that showed the U.S. needs to graduate 22,000 doctors in the 1970s, but said only "half that amount" is being turned out.

In Ohio alone in the last 10 years, he said 45 communities in his home state have lost their physicians and have not been able to replace them. He also said 53 per cent of the interns in Ohio hospitals are graduates of foreign schools.

"We feel the foreign medical school graduate in this country has filled a void and prevented a disaster," Taylor told the committee.

Bowers' bill was held over for further consideration.

Brando-Kashfi struggle ends

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Marlon Brando and his former wife, actress Anna Kashfi, have ended a 13-year court fight over their son with an informal agreement granting Miss Kashfi visitation rights.

Miss Kashfi, 36, through her attorney, dismissed a Superior Court petition Wednesday in which she claimed Brando had denied her visitation rights with their son, Christian Devi, 15.

She said with Brando's cooperation she had been seeing Christian during the past few months. Her son attended her wedding to Los Angeles businessman James Hannaford in Las Vegas last Saturday.

Brando and Miss Kashfi were married in 1957 and divorced two years later.

Motorcycles as polluters

The energy crisis has had the effect of soft pedaling expressions of concern over automotive air pollution. We would do well not to forget about this matter which already has had wush an impact on the quality of our lives. While we're thinking about it, a little attention might well be given to a related source of air pollution which has thus far escaped government control.

The point is brought to mind by a story out of Sacramento about a report from California's state Air Resources Board. Noting that motorcycles need not comply with air pollution standards, it tells us that such vehicles rack up a total of 3.76 billion miles a year in California. In the process they consume 86.6 million gallons of gas and emit 168,356 tons of pollutants — 461 tons a day.

Extrapolated nationally, such figures are an eye opener as to what effect the two-wheelers must be having on our environment. Whatever is done to curb air pollution, motorcycles should not be exempt from regulation.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Rockefeller enlivens dreary race

WASHINGTON — By running for President for the third, or maybe it's the fourth, time Nelson Rockefeller is enlivening a dreary political scene. He finds himself the target of the professional rightists and the professional leftists, each side smiting him for their own reasons.

For the right, he is a big spender and a high taxer. He may claim to have cleaned up New York State's rivers and to have put through other major reforms during his four terms as governor, but he did it with the peoples' money and they would have been better off spending their own money. So goes the refrain on the conservative side.

The professional leftists slam Rockefeller as the archetype of the establishment. He is the sign and symbol of Eastern seaboard wealth and quondam power. They ridicule his Commission on Critical Choices, caricaturing it as a sleazy device to escape exposing his own positions on critical issues. Granted that that caricature is not too hard to arrive at.

Let me state my own position. Of all the visible and half-visible candidates for 1976, Rockefeller is by both domestic and foreign experience the best equipped. He has proved himself as an administrator and, beginning with his experience in World War II as coordinator for Latin-American affairs, he has demonstrated his understanding of the currents of foreign policy.

HIS HANDICAP, in my opinion, is his identification with big oil and oil is likely to be the leading issue of the campaign this fall and in 1976 as well. Gasoline prices, gasoline shortages, the shortfall of heating oil with cold homes, this adds up to deep discontent and a profound distrust of the five or six major oil companies.

Nelson's grandfather, the first John D., put together standard oil, the cartel colossus, that fixed production, prices and distribution. It was the basis of the huge Rockefeller fortune that has proliferated down through three generations.

As proof of how tight the hold still is, a recent prediction by economist Walter W. Heller, who was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, puts the rise in the profits of the oil company majors at $24 billion in 1974 over 1973. This is based on the assumption of a 50 per cent rise in retail prices of petroleum products over the levels of last summer. That is an educated guess.

If Congress gets off the dime and enacts the "windfall profits" tax, Heller estimates that about $8 million of this gain will be paid to foreign government and $3 billion to the United States Treasury. This would leave a net after-tax profit of $13 billion. Outside the oil industry, profits, according to Heller, are expected to decline by 8 to 10 per cent compared to 1973 levels.

TO TAG NELSON with the rapacity and the power to crush all competitors of his grandfather may seem unjust. But the legacy of that era when Ida Tarbell and the other muckrakers exposed the price fixing and the rigging of markets and rail rates cannot be simply sloughed off.

A spokesman for the Rockefeller family says the present generation has a comparatively small holding in the oil companies put together by the founding father. But comparatively small for a Rockefeller would be an awful lot for an ordinary citizen.

If he is a serious candidate, Rockefeller, in my opinion, has only one choice. That is to dissociate himself from big oil. He can do this by declaring for the excess-profits tax on the huge increment that will come to the majors as the result of swiftly rising prices for gas and heating oil.

The field of 1976 is narrowing. Spiro Agnew, who as Vice President was considered virtually the No. 1 prospect, sank without a trace in the mire of Maryland's corruption. And whatever happened to the big Texan, John Connally? He rated high when it appeared possible that the President would name him to the vacant office of Vice President.

The man in the catbird's seat is Gerald R. Ford. So long as he keeps his counsel, looks strong and honest, he has the best chance of all.

While not the helmsman, as the loyal first mate he is ready to take the wheel at a moment's notice and the hopes of outsiders would correspondingly diminish.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

The question of privilege

It is hard to open a paper these days without reading that someone is claiming he cannot be forced to give evidence because his status is "privileged."

President Nixon has invoked "Executive privilege" in resisting the Senate Watergate Committee's demand for some 500 items from White House files.

Out in California a journalist, who refused to divulge where he got information on the Manson case, and was promptly tucked in the bucket for contempt of court, claims that his relationship with his informant was privileged.

And now in Minneapolis the Rev. Dr. Paul Boe, a Lutheran pastor who witnessed key events in the siege of Wounded Knee, S.D., asserts that he is immune from compulsory process because of clerical privilege and some mysterious entity called "federal common law."

ALL THESE CONFLICTS are in the process of adjudication and one can predict that strange decisions will emerge.

Indeed, the California case has already become a bit esoteric. When a witness refuses to testify, as did the newspaperman in this instance, the judge has the right to send him to jail for summary contempt. In theory this is not a "punishment"(which would require a jury trial and the other accoutrements of due process of law) because the individual has the "key in his pocket," that is, he can emerge from jail any time he is prepared to spill the beans. It is simply "coercive."

This journalist, however, has made it clear that they can keep him in jail indefinitely: he won't tell. So now another California court is exploring whether his continued imprisonment does not go beyond the limits of coercion and constitute punishment. Should it so decide, he would be released — and the moral for witnesses would be "hang in there tough."

The case of Dr. Boe falls into a different category. The relationship between pastor and parishioner, like that between lawyer and client or doctor and patient, is not automatically privileged. However, privilege has been conferred by state law in many jurisdictions. (There is no federal statute on the subject, and a "federal common law" right is sheer invention: in 1812 the Supreme Court declared there was no such thing.)

But what is involved in Dr. Boe's instance is not any information obtained by him in his pastoral capacity: he was asked what he saw and heard during the confrontation between the government and Indian extremists at Wounded Knee last year.

It was Boe's political status (he was one of those who encouraged the formation of the American Indian Movement (AIM), not his sacerdotal role (AIM is not composed of Lutherans), that led to the demand for his testimony.

Leaving aside the interesting question of the extent to which any special privileges for churches or ministers (e.g., state aid to parochial schools) violate the First Admendment guarantee of the separation of church and state, what we have here is the case of a citizen, who happens to be a cleric, refusing to provide evidence on nasty events that occurred well outside of his ecclesiastical bailiwick.

If the U.S. Court of Appeals sustains Boe's claim to silence, the consequence would be that if, say, a priest witnessed a murder on the street, he would be immune to compulsory process.

FINALLY, we get to Mr. Nixon's plea that the White House materials demanded by the Erwin committee are protected by "Executive privilege."

First of all, there is no statutory foundation for the doctrine of Executive privilege. What has happened since 1788 is that, by and large, the nation has been run by rational characters — both in Congress and in the White House — who knew that if you played too hard with anything, it would break.

Thus, President Nixon is on firm ground when he cites George Washington's refusal to turn documents over to Congress, and probably 156 similar episodes in the years subsequent.

But you can ransack the attic indefinitely for precedents and still end up in constitutional terms on Square One — to repeat, there is no federal common law where such precedents would add up to a legal doctrine based on custom. In short, 157 times zero is still zero.

Yet probably the worst thing that could happen would be a final Supreme Court holding on the subject of "Executive privilege" — one way or the other.

If the court held for the President, the excessive secrecy that characterizes the modern Executive branch (under Democrats and Republicans alike) would be buttressed.

If the Court held against him, it would encourage Congressional fishing expeditions, and destroy the atmosphere of confidentiality that is often essential.

In short, the Constitution is too important to be left to the lawyers.

By GEORGE PALMER
The Cincinnati Enquirer

This is the last straw! Or more properly, the last shrimp.

A family that loves shrimp is not uncommon in America— boiled shrimp, fried shrimp, baked shrimp, shrimp creole, shrimp with tarter sauce, shrimp with hot sauce...

Shrimp!

I have loved shrimp since I was one. My wife loves shrimp. My little daughter loves shrimp.

Less than a year ago a pound of shrimp cost $3.70, retail, at a downtown Cincinnati fish market—an inflated price, but still within economic reason.

Wednesday, a pound of shrimp was priced at $5.60.

That's about 28 cents a shrimp, since a pound of green shrimp still in the shell number about 20.

They are delicious. You take them home, get the water boiling and plunge them in for about two minutes, then plunge them under cold water.

But not at $5.60 a pound. That's almost a 70 per cent increase over a year ago.

Who's getting all that additional money?

Perhaps the shrimp. They have become stealthy and are more difficult to catch. Not a bad idea. This keeps the shrimp family together—and that delicious fortune which is the taste of their bodies.

Maybe the fishermen who trap them are getting 70 per cent more in salary this year. That idea is doubtful if not downright incredible.

Perhaps the guys who cut off those delectible tails for sale are getting 70 per cent more.

Maybe the man who offers 20 shrimp for sale at $5.60 is getting the increase.

Someone is.

Perhaps Americans now on the sea side should take a few weeks off—of shrimp, gasoline, fuel oil, electricity, air flights and even close their eyes to the beautiful sunset.

Maybe the country would get back its senses—and dollars.

"Daddy," my little girl just said to me, "do you have enough chili sauce, horse radish and tobasco to make the hot sauce tonight?"

"Yes, of course," I answered gently. "But we have no shrimp. Nor will we have tomorrow or tomorrow or tomorrow or..."

Tanaka ends Jakarta visit

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia's capital was quiet once again today as Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka of Japan ended a visit that sparked two days of student riots.

A helicopter took Tanaka, his daughter Makiko and President Suharto from the presidential guest house to the airport. There cabinet members and foreign diplomats said goodbye, but no students were on hand.

Tanaka arrived Monday night and spent his entire visit in the heavily guarded presidential palace compound because of the violence Tuesday and Wednesday.

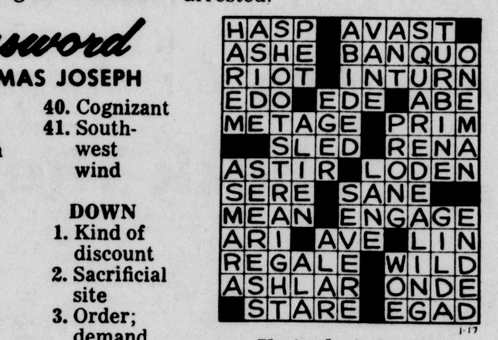

At least seven persons were killed in the disorders, which started with airport demonstrations on Tanaka's arrival Monday and expanded into street rioting Tuesday and Wednesday. Some 10,000 demonstrators joined in the protests, and more than 200 were arrested.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Helping to identify little cereal pests

DEAR ABBY: The University of Minnesota's Entomology Department agreed to help your readers identify the insects they found in their cereals. We thought you would be interested in the summary of the kinds of insects found as submitted.

Samples came from 33 states.

Saw-tooth grain beetle, 80; merchant grain beetle, 39; cigarette beetle, 30; red flour beetle, 25; miscellaneous cereal pests, 10; drugstore beetle, 9; Indian meal moth, 2; insects other than cereal pests, 15; total, 210.

Cereal products often become infested right in the home. Only glass and tin containers are insect proof, so any package of cake mix, flour, etc., can be penetrated by insects if left standing long enough.

DAVID M. NOETZEL

DEAR DR. NOETZEL: Thank you for providing my readers with the service. Now, if others are bugged by unidentifiable insects in their cereals, please send the little creatures to your own university.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote in your column that a woman is pregnant for 266 days. Who said so? I carried my baby for 10 months and five days, and there is no doubt about it because I know the exact date my baby was conceived. My husband is in the Navy and it couldn't have possibly been conceived any other time because I saw him only once for an hour, and I didn't see him again until the day before the baby was born.

I don't drink or run around, and there is no way this baby isn't his, so print a retraction about that 266-day carrying time because otherwise I am in a lot of trouble.

SAN DIEGO READER

DEAR READER: The average gestation period is 266 days. Some babies come early. Others come late. Yours was late.

DEAR ABBY: I have a kind of strange problem. My parents are divorced, and I live alone with my father. His name is Charles, and my name is Katherine, so I sent out Christmas cards signed "Kathy and Charles Smith."

My mom was very upset because some of her friends thought that my dad had gotten remarried. So please tell me how to sign our cards next time so my mom won't be upset. Thank you.

KATHY SMITH

DEAR KATHY: Sign the cards, "Charles Smith, and daughter, Kathy."

DEAR ABBY: With all the "hippies, hoppies, homos, and harlots" you've got writing to you, you could start a new "4-H" club!

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, January 17th, the 17th day of 1974. There are 348 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in World War II, Soviet troops and Polish patriot forces liberated Warsaw more than five years after the Polish capital had fallen to the Nazis.

In 1706, Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston.

In 1773, James Cook became the first explorer to cross the Antarctic Circle.

In 1917, the United States bought the American Virgin Islands from Denmark for $25 million.

In 1942, the Japanese had driven to within 90 miles of Singapore in the Pacific War.

In 1961, President Dwight Eisenhower warned the United States against dangers to its liberties implicit in a vast military-industrial complex.

In 1962, ten prize-winning contestants in television quiz shows received suspended sentences in a New York court after pleading guilty to perjury charges.

Ten years ago. U.S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy met in Tokyo with Indonesian President Sukarno to try to prevent warfare between Indonesia and neighboring Malaysia.

Five years ago, Henry Cabot Lodge arrived in Paris to head a new U.S. negotiating team in Vietnam peace talks.

One year ago, the British government announced curbs on wages, prices and profits in an attempt to halt inflation.

New power substation rapidly taking shape

Construction on a Dayton Power and Light Co. substation at the intersection of Robinson and Old Chillicothe roads is about 80 per cent complete.

Jerry Morgan, public relations representative for DP&L, said construction on the new facility is expected to be completed by the last week in February.

Estimated cost of the new substation is $274,000, and Morgan said that figure does not reflect the costs of the associated line work into the substation.

The new facility will be known as the Robinson Road substation and will serve the eastern half of Washington C.H. and the communities of New Holland, Bloomingburg and Good Hope.

The substation is being constructed because of a general load increase in that area, primarily due to the city's Industrial Park, according to DP&L officials, and to relieve the Jamison Road substation.

A 69,000-volt line will enter the station and the voltage will be reduced to 12,000 volts, the normal amount carried in the transmission lines to residential areas. The voltage is further reduced at transformers in the residential areas.

The new substation facility will contain automatic switching devices.

The Robinson Road substation is being constructed by the KSR Construction Co., of Dayton.

Man faces return for armed robbery

HOUSTON, Mo. (AP) — A 24-year-old man today was awaiting return to Canton, Ohio, where he faces charges of armed robbery, police said.

George Mayhan was being held in the Texas County Jail awaiting the arrival of Ohio officials. He has waived extradition.

Mayhan, also wanted for questioning about two murders, was captured Wednesday at a roadblock near this southern Missouri community, police said.

1973 corn crop hits $13.3 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1973 corn crop barely made the record books in terms of quantity, but it was worth a whopping $13.3 billion to farmers, the Agriculture Department says.

Corn production last year was 5.643 billion bushels, just beating the previous record of 5.641 billion set in 1971, the department said Wednesday in a review of last year's harvest output.

The new estimate was down about 35 million bushels from what USDA expected the corn harvest to be last November. Although relatively slight, the decline puts further pressure on feed grain supplies through the 1973-74 season.

Calculations show the estimated season average price of 1973 corn is $2.37 per bushel. The 1972 crop was worth $1.57 per bushel to farmers and had a total value of $8.7 billion.

The previous record corn production year, 1971, brought a farm value of slightly more than $6 billion at an average of $1.08 per bushel.

Although some other 1973 crops slipped from earlier production estimates — including some shaving of the soybean crop to about 1.56 billion bushels — over-all farm crop output was the highest ever.

Based on 1967 production used as a guide, last year's output was up 19 per cent to a record level. In 1972, the index was 13 per cent over the 1967 base.

Yields for many crops, however, were down from earlier peaks. Corn averaged 91.4 bushels per acre, compared with 97.1 in 1972. Sorghum, although a record 936.5 million bushels, yielded 58.8 bushels per acre, compared with 60.5 in 1972.

The soybean crop held steady at 27.8 bushels per acre, unchanged from 1972.

There were no new estimates for 1973 wheat and other small grains harvested earlier. Those were reported in December, including wheat at a record 1.7 billion bushels.

Dog beaten; 2 arrested

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati police arrested two men Wednesday for allegedly beating a dog with hammers.

The two were charged with public intoxication and cruelty to an animal.

They were identified as Robert Collman, 44, and Larry Canter, 39, both of Cincinnati. They told police the dog was vicious.

When police responded to the call, they reported the dog lying behind some garbage cans. They fed it and said it did not react viciously.

It lost a tooth and had been cut on the head.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) said the dog would be kept two weeks then destroyed if a home cannot be found for it.

Engaged

MISS MARILYN MOORE

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Moore Sr. of Washington C.H., have announced the engagement of their daughter Marilyn to Roger D. Larkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Larkins of Greenfield.

Miss Moore, a 1973 graduate of Washington Senior High School, is employed at Barnhart Oil Co.

Her fiance, a 1973 graduate of McClain High School, is co-owner of Larkins Arco, Washington C.H.

No definite date has been set for the wedding.

Progressive Heirs CCL holds meeting

The January meeting of the Progressive Heirs Child Conservation League was held in the home of Mrs. Betty Long in Jeffersonville.

Mrs. Harold Anderson, vice president, conducted the business meeting in the absence of Mrs. Wilma Lower.

Mrs. Anderson read a poem and led the Lord's Prayer.

A new money-making calendar was given to each member for the month. It was announced that a bake sale will be held at the February meeting and each is to bring one item.

Mrs. Janet McCarty introduced Mr. Dale Creamer, coach at Miami Trace High School, as the guest speaker for the evening. He presented a very interesting talk on "What Interscholastic Sports Means to Our Children." He stressed four values which a child will gain from participating in sports in school. They are involvement, commitment, development of self discipline and academic success.

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served by Mrs. Carol Wissinger and Mrs. Linda Garringer.

Mrs. Garringer will be hostess for the February meeting.

Mrs. Kirk's Kitchen

By GLADYS KIRK

These next 10 weeks will be busy ones for me as I will be attending graduate school at O.S.U. full time. A study leave of one quarter is granted after working four years in Extension. It's difficult to believe I've been in Fayette County that long. I really appreciate the welcome and support you have given me.

I'll be back in the office, March 18, but don't hold questions until then. Beulah Hill, Area Home Economics Agent will be answering any questions you call (335-1150) in while I'm gone.

Planned programs will be carried out with the help of many fine volunteers. I do hope you will support them with your participation.

On Jaunary 31, plan to spend your afternoon with Mrs. Judy Ledbetter, an Interior Designer from Columbus as she gives tips and tricks to those who are Decorating On A Budget. We'll be meeting from 1 to 3:30 p.m. in Grace United Methodist Church. The $1.00 registration fee includes the cost of babysitting. Call 335-1150 if you would like to attend.

HOME ACCOUNT BOOKS — Know what you have been spending: Records of past expenditures help the family in estimating the next year's cost. Records of past spending reveal the spending habits of families. They may show where a different method of purchasing would mean a saving. For example, a family that buys a magazine from the news stand each week or each month, may find that an annual or biennial subscription is cheaper. If you are interested in your present and past spending, why not stop by the office and look at our "Home Account Book." The cost of 60c is a small fee in relation to what the book will help you accomplish in keeping records of spending.

SUEDE

Suede shoes and boots are very popular for both adults and teenagers. If there is a pair in your house-hopethis helps them stay nice longer.

Use a light touch when cleaning suede shoes, but do clean them! Regular care keeps suede shoes looking pretty, but a light touch in the cleaning process protects the nap.

Brush suede shoes regularly with a terry towel or soft bristle suede brush to keep dust from settling deep in the nap. Don't use hard or scratchy brushes — they may damage the suede. Gently use an emery board to raise the surface of "brushed" suede.

A soft gum eraser will remove spots and light stains. Or you can use a little bit of drycleaning or suede cleaning fluid. Follow directions carefully! Apply any cleaning fluid sparingly and rub lightly with a clean, soft cloth.

If shoes are heavily soiled, check at your local shoe repair shop about professional cleaning. Color can be retouch in the cleaning treatment. Try to prevent heavy soiling if possible — often such soil can't be removed completely and the suede may be premanently damaged.

POWER OF THE PRESS

A newspaper can be a great help to prevent spinning over icy spots these winter days. Next time your wheels start to spin when you're getting started, put a newspaper behind each rear tire. Back the tires on the newspaper, and you'll find you get the traction you need.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Okay, action-adventure fans. The ABC Television network starts bidding for your attention tonight with two new half-hour series, "Firehouse" and "Chopper One." Now the bad news.

The first is a waste of fire, the second a waste of fuel.

"Chopper One," a saga of two young pilot-cops who battle Los Angeles villains from a Jetranger helicopter, is particularly disappointing for chopper freaks. I have reference to me.

Helicopter flying, especially the low-level kind, is one of the most exhilarating experiences yet devised.

Although the aerial photography in this new show captures some of this excitement and the lead actors Jim McMullan and Dirk Benedict turn in good performances, the proceedings fall flat.

What could have been a good flying show isn't supported by a passable plot line or even a pre-flight check.

It's a routine two-incident opus in which our heroes rescue a boy from drowning, then help their groundling colleagues bring two purported kidnappers to justice after a hotel shootout.

As a flying nut, I sincerely hope the show improves.

But until that happens, the TV title for best flingwing realism and excitement remains with "Birds of Prey," a 90-minute gem that featured an incredible chopper chase over the Utah desert.

CBS aired this show a year ago and I wish they'd rerun it soon. It's an aviation classic the makers of "Chopper One" might study.

★★★★

"Firehouse," starring James Drury as a fire captain, offers scant hope of redemption and wastes the talents of its five regulars. In tonight's effort, they foil a suicide try and save lives in a burning, modern firetrap called a high-rise office building.

It's strictly flambe foolishness and unless major improvements are afoot, Marvin the Torch should be made its film editor.

★★★★

Back in the real world, NBC congressional correspondent Paul Duke, 47, is leaving NBC in early February and joining public TV as a correspondent-moderator for the National Public Affairs Center for Television in Washington, D.C.

NPACT president James Karayn says Duke's annual salary will be in the $55,000 range. Duke, a good, seasoned newsman with a wire service and newspaper background, has been with NBC since 1963.

He'll moderate the weekly "Washington Week in Review," interview public figures on "Washington Straight Talk" and also appear on NPACT's new "Washington Connection" series.

NBC says Duke will be succeeded on Capitol Hill by Catherine Mackin, who began with NBC in Washington in August 1969 and was transferred to the network's Los Angeles bureau last August.

Turnpikes feel pinch in revenue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Declining highway travel because of the gasoline shortage has reduced toll collections and is causing some budget reshuffling in state turnpike authorities.

An Associated Press survey showed the East and Northeast — where there are more toll roads than in other areas of the country — were hardest hit.

Federal statistics show that more than $1 billion was collected in 1972 by bridge and toll operators. How much of that money will be lost due to reduced highway traffic is not clear. But preliminary figures indicate declines of about 10 per cent during December.

None of the areas checked reported plans to cancel highway projects or stop construction because of the revenue declines. Several officials said that expenditures for maintenance might have to be curtailed.

The Massachusetts Turnpike Authority reported decreasing revenues on the main road and on an extension. It said the authority collected only $1,696,292 on the main road last month compared with $1,897,507 in December 1972, a decline of 11 per cent. The authority said that the extension revenues were down about 5 per cent.

The toll money is used for operating expenses — including interest on outstanding bonds — for road building and other capital expenditures, and for repayment of bonds. An authority spokesman said a continued decline in business might mean a cutback in capital expenditures so the agency can keep paying off the bonds.

GOP sees 'consensus'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Republican leaders agreed Tuesday on a list of statewide primary election candidates they believe have widespread support, but decided against making any endorsements.

A "consensus ticket" announced by the state Republican Executive Committee following a closed-door meeting was headed by former Gov. James Rhodes and Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, for governor and U. S. senator, respectively.

State GOP Chairman Kent McGough said other candidates having the "sentiment" of the committee are Lt. Gov. John Brown and Secretary of State Ted Brown, for re-election; Rep. C. William O'Neill, attorney general, and Sen. Paul Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, auditor.

McGough said there was no consensus for treasurer, but party leaders could "rally around a particular candidate" before the Feb. 6 filing deadline.

Party leaders favored Supreme Court Justice Paul W. Brown for the chief justice's job being vacated by C. William O'Neill, father of the state representative, since Justice Thomas Herbert did not file for the chief justice post, McGough said.

Coal business brisk if you can find it!

If Santa left coal in your stocking this past Christmas, chances are, you were exceptionally good.

For coal is becoming very precious.

Taylor Groff, manager of the Hockman Grain and Feed Co., Madison Mills, says he has received twice as many small coal orders as ever before.

"People are purchasing coal for home use because of the energy crisis, but I am in no danger of running out," Groff said.

Groff sells his premium Kentucky coal, which produces less ash, holds fire better and gives off more heat, for $32.75 a ton, but there is an extra charge for delivery.

Charles Parks, owner of the Parks Coal Yard, formerly located at 1522 U.S. 35 SE, went out of business years ago, but he is still an interested observer.

"Many people don't have outdated facilities such as wood stoves, coal furnaces and fireplaces; so actually, a relatively small percentage of people are stocking up on coal, as compared to what it would be like if everyone could," he explained.

The Washington Coal Co. formerly operated by Louis Baer and located at 309 W. Temple St. is no longer in business.

It was originally the Washington Ice Co., founded in 1890. Then in 1943, it changed to coal until 1970.

Baer, who has all the equipment necessary, is interested in finding someone who would like to get the old company back on its feet.

"I feel there is a definite need for a coal supplier within the town; especially because of the energy crisis," Baer stated.

Chile and Peru engaging in new, costly arms race

WASHINGTON (AP) — An arms race appears to be developing between Chile and Peru despite stringent congressional curbs on U.S. military aid and credit sales to Latin America.

U.S. intelligence reports the military junta in Chile is moving to buy more than 40 French tanks to counterbalance Soviet tanks recently bought by Peru. The two neighboring countries have had a longstanding feud over territory.

Meanwhile, Chilean military officers are said to have pressed American officials for U.S. tanks and jet fighters.

But the U.S. government still has not acted on a Chilean arms request made by the leftist Allende regime before it was ousted by the junta of generals and admirals last fall. That request still stands.

However, there is little the United States can do to supply costly arms to Chile or any other Latin American country.

This is because, under the law, the United States is allowed to provide a maximum of $150 million in military hardware grants and credits this year for all of Latin America. Of this, Chile is eligible for only about $10 million and Peru about $20 million.

Congress has taken the position that the United States should refrain from contributing to an arms race in Latin America and should encourage countries there to spend money on social and economic betterment.

But Pentagon officials argue that the Latin American countries will buy elsewhere if this country refuses to furnish them arms or sell weapons on easy credit terms.

Energy management grows in U.S. industry

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A bright pigment in the energy picture is the realization by many companies that they can cut back on fuels, and save money in the process, without reducing productivity.

Awareness of the possibilities might have been slow in developing, partly because they were submerged in the crisis atmosphere immediately following the cutback in Mideast oil shipments.

But the word is spreading now, and energy usage studies might become a big new specialty for outside management consultants and for in-house productivity specialists.

Laurens van den Muyzenberg, an industrial management consultant, maintains that the energy reduction potential for almost all plants is more than 10 per cent, and that for many companies it is far above that figure.

Management's interest is aroused by such estimates, especially when the plant manager reports, as is likely to be the case, that he has never conducted an energy usage study of his premises.

Corporate management in the past seldom considered such studies, being more concerned with labor and capital costs than with energy costs. Much waste developed, therefore, and now it can easily be eliminated.

Van den Muyzenberg, president of H.B. Maynard & Co., Pittsburgh and London, began what he calls energy value analyses a few weeks ago and has zeroed in on what he believes are among the most wasteful practices.

To spot these areas, he suggests to company management that four responsible employes be appointed to determine just where energy is being used.

One studies consumption in mobile equipment, another in heating-ventilation-air conditioning, the third in production itself, and the fourth in auxiliary equipment, such as compressors.

These four employes must survey tne plant, learn where energy is used and hunt for savings. They make out an energy budget and bring it to a steering committee, where an energy spending plan is developed. Elapsed time: two weeks.

Some companies, he found, are unable immediately to determine how energy is expended because batteries of equipment are hooked up to the same meters. He recommends multiple monitors or meters.

Most likely the energy value analysis will reveal that with better scheduling some machines can be shut off part time or even permanently, or that several machines can be combined on one power source.

More coordination in scheduling overtime also is important. In too many companies, he reports, a few employes on overtime are the sole reason for the plant remaining open. Better to schedule overtime in batches, he states.

In some instances waste heat can be used. One company surveyed in the past few weeks used air conditioning to reduce temperatures generated in testing equipment, while burning fuel to heat other parts of the plant.

Poor insulation and faulty heating equipment can be especially costly, van den Muyzenberg believes. Steam leaks around outlets in large plants can add 10 per cent to heating bills, he maintains.

Wasteful also is the practice of heating air once and then "throwing it out of the building."

First Federal Assn. reports record year

Assets of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Washington C.H. at the end of 1973 stood at $19,290,324.68, a 13 per cent increase over a year ago, it was reported Wednesday by Harold H. Thompson, executive vice president and secretary, at the annual meeting of members.

In his report to the Association's members, Thompson said that 1973 was the greatest growth year ever experienced, exceeding 1972 by more than $600,000. This record growth was accomplished despite the many economic problems which developed during the final six months of the year, Thompson said.

During the past year First Federal Savings and Loan Association paid $844,151.91 in interest to its savings depositors and increased reserves to $1,753,466.43, which far exceeds the statutory requirements.

Thompson said the most important development of 1973 was a new policy of monetary stringency adopted in early July. He said that this produced an immediate and general rise in interest rates, a decline in savings deposits and another "tight money" period for the mortgage market.

As of Dec. 31, 1973, savings deposits at First Federal amounted to $16,932,583.38 a 10 per cent increase from the $15,344,919.33 at the end of 1972.

During 1973, the Association originated 361 mortgage loans amounting to $6,586,900.00 to buy, build and improve homes, apartments and commerical properties, in and around Washington C.H. and Fayette County. After loan repayments and payoffs a net increase of $2,618,362.99 was reported. Total mortgage loans on the books amount to $16,758,204.68, representing 1,473 loans. The increase in loans was also a record high for the Association.

THE PROSPECTS for 1974 are some what cloudy at this moment, Thompson said. "Much depends on the type of progress the nation is able to make in its fight against inflation, the energy crisis and the other problems facing us."

He declared that based on present supply and demand factors, mortgage rates would show little decline during the first quarter of 1974. But he said that the outlook for the remainder of 1974 is more uncertain, with rates subject to such influences as inflation, unemployment and the current housing shortage.

In response to the increased competition in the money market, Thompson stated, "The Association increased rates on savings accounts and certificates of deposit and these are now paying the highest rates on record. Our savings deposits began to imporve during the fourth quarter of 1973, although the supply of mortgage lending funds continues to be limited."

Thompson also reported that the second floor remodeling was completed in September of 1973. "We have some of the most up to date office spaces in the uptown area, and all are occupied. The expansion of the institutions office space into the former Rankin and Marchant Law offices was completed in December. This has been a great help in completing the year and business."

"The most important step taken to modernize the Association was the conversion to NCR 270 'online' terminals. This step will greatly improve the efficiency of our operation, now and in the immediate future.

"We look forward to the many challenges in 1974", Thompson said. "Hopefully, some of the many problems we are facing can be solved. Progress in solving them will improve our prospects for 1974."

AT THE reorganization meeting, immediately following the members' meeting, A.H. Finley, W.F. Rettig and Harold H. Thompson were re-elected to the board of directors. Other members of the board are W.A. Lovell, E.S. Woodmansee, R.M. Meriweather ahd David L. Baughn.

The following officers were elected to serve for 1974: Rettig, chairman of the board; Lovell, president; Finley, first vice president; Meriweather, second vice president; Thompson, executive vice president and secretary; Woodmansee, attorney; Larry L. Long, assistant secretary; James R. Smith, treasurer.

Full-time and part-time staff members and their duties are Thompson, managing officer; Long, loan officer; Smith, bookkeeper; Louise Pope, head teller; Carole Arnold, teller and insurance clerk; Carolyn Kay Walker, teller; Nancy Bielanow, teller; Ann B. Thompson, part-time, and Julia A. Wolfe, part-time COE student.

Traffic Court

Four traffic citations were scheduled for hearing in Municipal Court Wednesday, but only one of the defendants appeared. Acting Judge John P. Case accepted bond forfeitures for the other three.

Carolyn A. Wilson, 32, of 912 Willard St., was fined $25, for failing to maintain assured clear distance. She was cited by police.

Forfeiting bond were:

POLICE

William J. Trub, 75, of 627 McArthur Way, $25, starting without safety.

SHERIFF

Michael E. Sweeney, 24, Newport, Ky., $35, unsafe vehicle.

Howard W. Hutchins, 42, Centerville, $29, speeding.

MEMBERSHIP LEADERS — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gordon, left, chairmen of the 1974 Fayette County Farm Bureau membership drive, were honored by Wayne Hidy, Farm Bureau president, for obtaining 11 new members in the first six days of the campaign. Fayette County again surpassed the 684 total membership of last year and the membership committee has set another goal of 700 members.

Driver charged after accident

City police reported one accident which resulted in a Good Hope man being charged with failure to maintain assured clear distance, and sheriff's officers reported two accidents involving cars which were parked.

A truck driven by Oakley M. Walker, 47, Mount Airy, N.C., was struck in the rear by a car driven by Frank Jackson Jr., 46, Good Hope, at 8:58 a.m. Wednesday, police reported. The mishap occurred on Oakland Avenue as Walker slowed for a red light at the Dayton-Oakland intersection.

Jackson was charged by police with not maintaining assured clear distance.

A hitskip accident which damaged a parked car owned by Harley B. Payton, Jeffersonville, outside the Royal Blue Grocery Store, occurred at 6:35 p.m., Wednesday, sheriff's deputies reported.

A school bus driven by Melvin Kiger, 62, Old Springfield Rd., struck a parked car owned by Jerri Bomgardner, 405 Newberry Street, as it backed up in front of Staunton School.

The mishap, which did slight damage to the bus and moderate damage to the car, occurred at 9:40 a.m., Wednesday.

'Stringbean' suspects arrested

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Four men have been arrested in the slaying of country music performer David "Stringbean" Akeman and his wife.

Police identified them Wednesday as John A. Brown Jr., 23, and Marvin D. Brown, 21, both of Nashville, each charged with two counts of murder, and Charles Brown, 32, and Roy Brown, 23, both of nearby Greenbrier, charged with accessory after the fact of murder and receiving and concealing stolen merchandise.

Police said John and Marvin are cousins and Charles and Roy are brothers of Marvin.

Akeman, 57, and his wife Estelle, 59, were found shot to death early Nov. 11 at their home north of Nashville. Police have theorized that they surprised burglars when they returned home after Akeman's appearance on the Grand Ole Opry, where he was a regular.

Police speculate the killers took an estimated $17,000 that Akeman, a banjo player, had in his possession only a few days prior to his death.

Tricia denies separation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tricia Nixon Cox has labeled as lies rumors that she and her husband Edward Cox are separating.

The rumors began circulating after Cox, a New York City lawyer, did not accompany the Nixons on a post-Christmas holiday in San Clemente, Calif.

Oil industry data shows decline in import flow

WASHINGTON (AP) — An oil industry group has released figures that appear to signal a tightening of the Arab oil embargo and a worsening of the gasoline shortage.

The American Petroleum Institute on Wednesday said imports decreased 12.2 per cent last week from the previous week. And the weekly report said U.S. gasoline stocks dropped by 3.6 million barrels.

But Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., said he agrees with some of his constituents who feel that the energy crisis is "a trumped-up crisis by the oil companies to make more money."

Conte spoke during a House subcommittee hearing Wednesday at which oil industry critics testified that the country "is not nearly in as bad a situation as the oil industry and the administration would have us believe."

Middle East oil specialist Christopher T. Rand presented the subcommittee with Petroleum Institute figures from December, which he said showed that the gasoline shortage could easily be made up from existing stocks. He said the figures also indicated that the oil companies were exaggerating the severity of the crisis in an effort to drive up prices.

"They know a ten-cent increase in the cost of a gallon of gasoline will result in $4 billion in additional revenue," Rand said.

However, the latest API figures, released Wednesday, showed that oil imports dropped sharply last week. The drop wiped out a brief upturn in imports, which had been attributed to leakage of the Arab oil cutoff. According to the figures, imports averaged 4.9 million barrels per day during the week ending Jan. 11, a decrease of 677,000 barrels from the previous week.

And gasoline stocks dropped to a level usually reached only in midsummer, the figures show.

The credibility of such data supplied by the petroleum industry was the subject of the hearings being held by the House subcommittee on regulatory agencies.

Washington lawyer Martin Lobel told the subcommittee Wednesday that the data provided by the oil companies is "unaudited and unverified" and that "when pressed for accurate data the companies refuse to provide it. They use every legal device available to keep accurate, relevant information from those in government who must make decisions," Lobel said.

Lobel's testimony was disputed by W. T. Slick, senior vice president of Exxon. He claimed that the major companies "have for many years provided to various governmental agencies substantial operating and financial data."

Slick also said that Exxon, the nation's largest oil company, would be willing to turn over estimates of its oil and gas reserves to the government but added that it objected to the publication of certain competitive information such as pricing.

The earth's seemingly rigid crust, geologists say, actually consists of a crazy quilt of great rafts or "plates," that suggest huge ice floes jostling about on a frozen sea.

MTHS grad is recitalist

Miss Emily Rowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Rowe, White Rd., and a 1972 graduate of Miami University and currently a student at the College Conservatory of Music at the University of Cincinnati, will present a recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Sidney W. Souers Recital Hall in the Center for Performing Arts on Miami University's campus at Oxford.

While at the university Miss Rowe, a soprano, was a music major receiving her degree from the School of Fine Arts, studying voice with George F. Barron, now retired dean of the fine arts school. Following her graduation she received a scholarship at the College Conservatory for advanced study and is now completing work toward a Master of Music degree.

Well remembered as a student at Miami, Miss Rowe often appeared as a soloist with the A Cappella Singers, a premiere mixed voiced chorus, of which she was a member, and the University Symphony Orchestra. She was a winner of the Alice Alexander Price award made to an outstanding voice student; was a member of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority and Delta Omicron, an international music fraternity for women, and a runnerup in the annual "Miss Miami" Pageant.

On Sunday her program, which was recently presented in Cincinnati as a requirement for her master's degree studies, will be a varied one that will range from old Italian arias by Vivaldi to German lieders by Hugo Wolf and Richard Strauss, Russian songs by Tcherepnin, and a group of contemporary songs by the American composer, Ned Rorem.

Miss Rowe is a 1968 graduate of Miami Trace High School.

Under the direction of Capital music professor Richard J. Suddendorf, the ensemble concert will include: Rossini's "Italian in Algiers Overture"; "Little English Girl Symphonic March" by Delle Cese; "Variants on a Medieval Tune" by Dello Joio; Henry Fillmore's "Circus Bee March"; "Suite of Old American Dances" by Robert Russell Bennett; and "Alleluia, Loudamus Te" by Alfred Reed.

There is no admission charge for the concert and the public is invited.

Off-street parking facility approved

Only one item appeared before members of the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals at its regular monthly meeting Wednesday night in the City Office Building.

The zoners approved a request for a variance submitted by Van Orr Foods, Inc., of Zanesville, to establish an off-street parking facility in a residentially-zoned area.

City Manager Dan Wolford said the area is located at the intersection of Blackstone and Temple streets.

Greenfield eligible for water grant

COLUMBUS — Senator Harry L. Armstrong (R-Logan) announced Wednesday that the city of Greenfield is eligible to receive a $100,000 grant from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

Only 21 of 124 applicants received eligibility status after a review of their needs. Greenfield received this to improve the water supply system.

The grant is to be used to develop a surface water supply from Paint Creek with a lime soda softening plant. Storage capacity will be increased from 250,000 gallons to 1,000,000 gallons.

The grant represents a portion of the Ohio EPA's revenue sharing funds. Before receiving the money, the city of Greenfield must also meet requirements of the federal revenue sharing program.

Carrier boy, now 'veteran', likes hobbies

STEVE REEVES

By now, Record-Herald subscribers in a southeast section of Washington C.H. are becoming well acquainted with their carrier.

Steve Reeves, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Reeves, 714 Sycamore St., is becoming a familiar face to Record-Herald subscribers in that neighborhood because he's been carrying the newspaper now for three years.

Steve marked his third anniversary as a Record-Herald carrier last week and plans to continue since he's saving his money to purchase a motorcycle.

The eighth grader at Washington Junior High School started carrying the newspaper when he was 11 years old, slipping into the business a year early. He has a total of 121 customers on his route, which is the largest single route in the Record-Herald's circulation department.

Steve, who was named the R-H's carrier of the month in August, still finds time for hobbies of coin collecting and astronomy.

Udall sees long-time energy pinch

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Stuart Udall, former secretary of the interior, Wednesday said that the nation's technology will not be able to solve the energy crisis and the present crisis is only the beginning of a long term energy crunch.

"Technological arrogance is the root of the problem," Udall told more than 400 persons attending a Youngstown State University forum here.

Udall, who served under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, said those administrations did not foresee the energy problem because "We were too arrogant and too confident in the 1960s."

"I believe that we are moving out of a period when an abundance of energy was available," Udall said. "Most of what we have been able to achieve was because we had an abundance of cheap energy — natural gas and oil — and we can no longer take this for granted."

Udall criticized the Nixon Administration for "not telling us we're in deep trouble, which we are."

Udall said the oil companies should not be allowed to control the oil from the fields to the market place and said they are not responsible to the national interests.

The oil companies have been permitted "to exploit their situation very nicely," he said.

Cole appointed top Nixon aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has appointed Kenneth R. Cole Jr. as his chief domestic policy adviser.

Cole, 35, will continue to serve as executive counsel, the White House announced Wednesday.

Cole, with the title of assistant to the president for domestic affairs, will move into the office vacated April 30 by John D. Ehrlichman.

Cole's appointment was occasioned by the impending resignation of presidential counselor Melvin R. Laird, who served a short-term appointment as Nixon's domestic policy chief. He is scheduled to leave the White House on Feb. 1.

Set ruling on vo-ed schooling

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The Cathedral of Tomorrow has secured a $500,000 loan from the Teamsters' Central States Pension Fund to make initial payments to investors who reportedly have demanded repayment of $4 million worth of Cathedral securities.

J. William Henderson, who is handling the Cathedral's business affairs under a court ordered reorganization, said Wednesday that after the first rush of investors demanding repayment the Cathedral will continue to build up a trust fund to cover periodic payments as further applications for repayment come in.

The new loan from the Teamsters increases to about $5.7 million the amount owed by the Cathedral to the Teamsters.

Summit County records show that the Teamster mortgage dates to 1967, when the Cathedral secured a $2.6 million loan.

The original loan was increased by $3 million in two steps in 1969 and 1971. The Teamsters' fund holds a first mortgage on land, buildings and equipment of the Cathedral of Tomorrow in suburban Cuyahoga Falls.

Records show the debt had been reduced to $5,158,790 as of Jan. 1, 1974.

Under court orders, which stemmed from a suit brought by the Ohio Department of Commerce, the Cathedral agreed to set up a trust fund to repay holders of notes it had issued. The Cathedral had issued more than $12 million worth of notes.

The Department of Commerce brought its court action on grounds that the Cathedral had violated state regulations by selling unregistered securities.

Man sentenced in ocean threat

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "For the mistakes I've made, I feel I've suffered. I would ask to be allowed to go back into the society to which I owe so much," said former major league baseball player Jerry Priddy before being sentenced.

U.S. District Court Judge Irving Hill sentenced Priddy on Wednesday to nine months in prison for threatening to blow up an ocean liner.

Priddy, who spent 11 years in the big leagues with several teams, was convicted Sept. 10 of threatening to blow up the Princess Cruise Lines steamship S.S. Island Princess unless he was given $250,000.

Priddy's attorney said the conviction will be appealed. Priddy is to remain free on $150,000 bail while the appeal is pending.

Body discovered at Middletown

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)— A teenaged Middletown boy who disappeared New Year's Eve was found dead Wednesday in an icy stream near his home.

The body of Thomas Joseph Smith II was spotted in the stream after warm weather melted ice covering it, authorities said.

An investigation is continuing.

The United States paid Russia a little less than two cents an acre for Alaska in 1867.

Red Skelton hurt in auto crash

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Red Skelton was recovering today from minor injuries suffered when his Rolls Royce struck an embankment along a highway near here.

The California Highway Patrol said Skelton, who lives at Spring Crest in the nearby San Jacinto Mountains, told officers that his car was forced off California 74 by other traffic Tuesday.

Skelton, 60, was treated at Eisenhower Medical Center in Palm Desert and released, a patrol spokesman said.

Who is eligible for Vietnam bonus?

COLUMBUS — Rep. Myrl H. Shoemaker (D), chairman of the House Finance Committee, said today that the recent passing of the Vietnam veterans' bonus has caused some confusion among many who might be entitled to benefits. In order to insure that all who are qualified may become better informed, Rep. Shoemaker has provided information about how the bonus will work.

All Ohioans who served in the armed forces between Aug. 5, 1964, and July 1, 1973, whether or not they served in Vietnam, are entitled to benefits. Any Ohioan who served in Vietnam or drew combat pay in any part of Southeast Asia between Feb. 28, 1961, and July 1, 1973, is also eligible.

To qualify under either rule, the applicant must have been an Ohio resident for at least one year immediately before he entered military service.

If the veteran was serving in the U.S., he will receive $10 for each month of active duty. If serving in a foreign country, he gets $15 per month. If in Vietnam or if he received combat pay in any part of Southeast Asia, he will get $20 for each month he served there.

The most that any veteran can receive is $500, unless he was a prisoner of war or was missing in action, in which case he is entitled to $1,000. If discharged due to combat injuries he automatically gets the $500 maximum.

Veterans are not the only ones entitled to receive the benefits. If an eligible veteran has died, his surviving spouse, his children, or his parents may claim his benefits. If he died from injuries received in Vietnam service or if he was a prisoner of war or missing in action, his survivors or relatives will get $1,000.

There will be a method by which a veteran (but not survivors) will be able to double the amount of his benefits. The General Assembly is required by the bonus amendment to provide an optional educational assistance bonus for veterans. When this legislation is passed within the next several months, any person who qualifies for the cash bonus will be able to receive twice that amount to enable him to attend any school which the state legislature has listed as an approved school.

Because this plan requires the passing of an act by the legislature, it probably will take more time to implement than the cash bonus plan which is expected to go into effect in the next few months.

Company convicted of polluting streams

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Natural Resources said Wednesday that Lookout Ridge Drilling Co., Inc., of Zaleski has been convicted of polluting streams in Madison Township.

A Vinton County court fined the oil drilling firm $300, then suspended half the fine on the condition the company correct the problem, the department said.

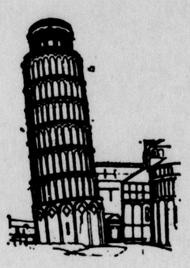

The 1972 catch of sardines doubled that of 1971.

Probe sniper incident in Cincinnati area

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Cincinnati law authorities are continuing investigation into a sniper incident which resulted in damage to a patrol car and three other vehicles late Tuesday night.

WCH involved in non-loop scuffle

Unioto Shermans will get sampling of SCOL action

By DENNIS STAPLETON
Record-Herald Sports Editor

The Washington C.H. Blue Lion cagers are primed and ready for their non-league scuffle with Unicto Friday night. After a thrilling one point victory over South Central Ohio League foe Circleville last week the Lions can take the week off from SCOL action to rest some players for the Hillsboro clash on Jan. 22.

The 60-59 win over the Tigers saw the return of 6-foot-5 center Jeff Wallace. The gutsy pivotman displayed excellent poise in his return to the hardwood after a five game layoff due to infectious mononucleosis. Wallace totaled 11 points, six rebounds and two blocked shots in his limited action.

Doug Boswell will still start for Wallace since the towering center still isn't 100 per cent but Wallace will see some action against Unioto.

Also needing some rest following the Circleville game is nifty ball-handler Craig Shaffer. The cat-like Shaffer has been out this week with the flu and his presence would be missed in a crucial SCOL contest.

SHAFFER'S shoes will be filled by either Alan Coppock or Jim Vess. Coppock is a sure ball-handler while Vess plays better defense. Unioto's guards are both good and it all depends on how the two Shermans play as to who will fill-in for Shaffer.

The remaining part of the lineup is intact. Sophomore starters Doug Phillips and Chuck Byrd still man a forward and guard post respectively while Kenny Knisley occupies the other forward spot.

The Unioto Shermans—nicknamed after either Camp Sherman or the Sherman tank—are a Class A team currently holding a 7-2 record. One of the Shermans losses was at the hands of Class AA Vinton Co. 76-67 whose record is 9-1. The second loss was to Bishop Flaget 81-73 in overtime after Unioto had held a 27 point lead in the third quarter.

Unioto is in first place in the Ross County League with a perfect 3-0 chart. Next season the Shermans will take the place of Madison Plains as the seventh team in the SCOL.

The Ross County school shows immense heighth and incredible statistics. There are only three players under six feet tall playing for Unioto and two are starters.

Guards Steve Frey and Bob Tallmon stand 5-foot-10 and 5-foot-11 respectively. Rounding out the starting unit are 6-foot-8 center Greg Alcorn, 6-foot-5 forward Jeff Scholl and 6-foot-4 forward Gary Fout. Also seeing a lot of playing time from the bench is 6-foot-4 Ron Rutherford.

UNIOTO averages 73.6 points per game while allowing 64.4 points. From the foul line the Shermans have a team percentage of 70. Alcorn and Scholl average 53 per cent from the field and Frey hits at a 50 per cent clip. Fout is the leading free throw shooter with 85 per cent accuracy followed by Tallmon's 81 per cent marksmanship. Alcorn is the leading rebounder grabbing 11 loose shots per game. Rutherford is also a strong rebounder but has had a broken ankle and is still leary of the gimpy joint.

Coach Gary Shaffer knows that Unioto will be a challenge because of it's heighth and it's run and shoot tactics. The Shermans haven't really had a stern test since their loss to Vinton Co., but the Lions will certainly provide the Shermans with a sampling of rugged SCOL play.

ATHLETE OF THE YEAR — Billy Jean King makes a return during the opening match of the $50,000 Virginia Slims of San Francisco Tennis Tournament in San Francisco. Ms King was named Athlete of the Year by the Associated Press.

Arnsparger takes over N.Y. Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants, hoping to have some of Miami's Super Bowl magic rub off on them, pulled Bill Arnsparger out of their football hats Wednesday and now the former Dolphin assistant coach faces his most difficult trick — turning a 2-11-1 team into a winner.

This won't be the first time Ansparger, who is credited with masterminding the Dolphins' powerful "No Name Defense," is charged with transforming losers into winners. He and Don Shula moved south from Baltimore to Miami in 1970, one season after the Dolphins finished with a 3-10-1 record.

And since then, the National Football League record books speaks for Arnsparger's success: all four seasons in the playoffs, the last three in the Super Bowl with victories in 1973 over Washington and last Sunday over Minnesota 24-7.

"Actually, I never talked to anyone but Bill," said the Giants' Director of Operations Andy Robustelli in making the announcement that didn't surprise any football fan whose been awake the past two weeks. "I guess it's no big surprise."

The 47-year-old Arnsparger makes it clear that he and only he will be the head coach.

"Am I gonna be the boss?" Arnsparger, who was given a three-year contract, asked rhetorically. "I'm gonna be the football coach. I'll be totally involved in the whole program. That was most important in my decision."

Arnsparger rejected a similar position to coach Baltimore this season, intimating Wednesday that the Colts' offer was not string-free.

A similar concern has been voiced in New York, where owner Wellington Mara has been criticized for being a coaching owner and being blamed for the dissension which ravaged the Giants this year. After winning all six preseason games, the Giants finished last in the NFC' East and then lost Coach Alex Webster, who resigned.

Arnsparger was a handpicked coach but the hand belonged to Robustelli, recently hired as director of operations.

"I got him," said Robustelli, who spoke in his tough, direct, business-like manner. "Bill's the football coach and we're gonna go out and get guys to make us the best football team. He controls his own destiny. Hopefully we'll feed him what he needs."

ABA West All-Stars announced

NEW YORK (AP) — Mel Daniels kept intact his record of being chosen for every American Basketball Association All-Star game, while teammate George McGinnis was the top vote-getter for the ABA's West All-Star squad announced today.

The West, with the Pacers and Utah each contributing two starters, will meet an East squad, laden with stars from New York, Kentucky and Carolina, in the annual all-star classic Jan. 30 at Norfolk, Va. The game, which begins at 8 p.m., EDT, will be televised nationally over the Hughes Sports Network.

McGinnis was second among all ABA players in balloting, collecting 66 top team votes and 135 points. The Pacer forward was topped only by Julius Erving of New York who had 136 of the possible 138 votes when he was picked to the East squad announced last week.

Joining Daniels and McGinnis in the starting lineup are Utah Stars forward Willis Wise and guard Jimmy Jones. Wise, making the team for the third straight team had 59 first place votes and 124 points, and Jones, who came off the bench last year to lead the comeback victory for the West, with 40 first place votes and 99 total.

Denver's Warren Jabali, the MVP in last year's game at Utah, edged teammate Ralph Simpson at the other starting guard spot with 75 total points.

Ball State crushes Cincy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Davidson and Ball State went to the polls Wednesday night ... and won in a landslide.

Playing teams in the Associated Press Top Twenty poll, both unranked teams did okay — as Davidson stunned No. 11 South Carolina 70-59 and Ball State crushed No. 20 Cincinnati 99-82.

"It was just a case of them outplaying us," said South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire, matter-of-factly. "We made a good run at them in the second half but we lost the game in the first quarter. They have a better bench than we do and that helped."

Davidson struck early behind Larry Horowitz and Mike Sorrentino, going ahead 20-8 with about 13 minutes remaining in the first half. The Gamecocks rallied in the second half, but could get no closer than three points.

Horowitz led the winners with 16 points while Sorrentino scored 14. Dunleavy had a game-high 22 points for South Carolina and Mathias collected 15 points and 16 rebounds.

Larry Bullington and Kim Kaufman scored 22 points apiece in Ball State's shocker over Cincinnati.

"It was a good win for them and they defeated us in every way," said a gracious Gale Catlett, the Cincinnati coach.

Jesse Jemison scored 20 points for the Bearcats, who lost their fourth game in 14 decisions. Ball State won its ninth game against five defeats.

North Carolina was the only other ranked team in action Wednesday night, beating Atlantic Coast Conference colleague Wake Forest 95-78.

Bobby Jones' 18 points led five players in double figures in North Carolina's victory over Wake Forest. The Tar Heels never trailed, taking their 11th victory in 12 starts this year.

Skip Brown led the losers with 22 points.

Dennis DuVal and Fred Saunders combined for 35 points, leading Syracuse to an 87-74 decision over Canisius. Larry Fogle, the nation's leading scorer with a 38.1 average, had a below-average 24 points for the losers.

Joe Bryant scored six points in 56 seconds to break open the game and lead LaSalle to an 85-73 victory over Drexel in the opener of a doubleheader at Philadelphia's Palestra. Villanova shot 69 percent from the floor in the first half and went on to beat Detroit University 80-67 in the second game.

DePaul beat Marshall 76-68 behind Greg Boyd's 23 points; Bill Magarity hit three straight field goals in the final three minutes, leading Georgia over Georgia Tech 75-66; Bob Fleischer led Duke over Clemson 63-50 with 14 points and Leon Benbow had 29 points, pacing Jacksonville over fumbling Furman, 77-68.

Boston University trimmed Boston College 95-94 in overtime to win the Beanpot Classic.

O.J. Simpson male Athlete of Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson admits he's prejudice when he says, "I think football players are the best athletes."

Named the Male Athlete of the Year for 1973 by The Associated Press, Simpson voiced his thanks, saying:

"This means quite a bit to me obviously since you're considering all the great athletes in all the sports.

"Generally speaking, I think it takes probably more athletic ability to play football and basketball. I would put basketball players in the same mold as football.

"There are so many things involved. I think even from the mental side there is so much involved in football that you just don't have in a baseball game, for instance."

Simpson won the award over a baseball player — Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves who was a distant second in the voting.

Simpson set a National Football League record by rushing for 2,003 yards last season with the Buffalo Bills who finished second to Super Bowl Champion Miami in the American Football Conference East.

He was a unanimous choice for the All-Pro team and was named the NFL Player of the Year. He credits his coach and fellow players for much of his success although he doesn't discount his own value, saying, "I consider myself as good a back as there is in football."

Since the end of the season, he already has signed a long-term contract with Buffalo, has been featured in television shows and works with the American Broadcasting Company as a commentator for televised football games.

In a poll of member newspapers, television stations and radio stations, Simpson received 332 votes. Aaron got 153 votes with UCLA basketball star Bill Walton third at 75.

A horse finished sixth, as Secretariat won the highest number of votes ever for a four-legged athlete in this competition.

Golfer Jack Nicklaus was fourth with 34, Pete Rose of Cincinnati's Reds fifth with 22 and Secretariat got 20, three more than baseball's strikeout king, Nolan Ryan of the California Angels.

Simpson won his second NFL rushing title this past season but increased his yardage by 750. He smashed Jim Brown's 10-year-old record of 1,863 and gained more than 200 in three games.

Ohio U defeats Redskins, 73-71

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio's Walter Luckett hit three free throws in the last 14 seconds to pull a victory from the fire and keep his school on top of the league in Mid-American Conference play Wednesday.

Luckett's last-minute goals gave Ohio a 73-71 victory over MAC foe Miami of Ohio.

Miami closed within one point with 1:50 left in the game, but couldn't overcome Ohio's lead.

"This team makes a lot of mistakes and comes right back to win," said Ohio Coach Jim Snyder.

Also in the MAC, Bowling Green defeated Central Michigan 65-56. Junior Cornelius Cash led Bowling Green, grabbing 22 rebounds in the overtime battle.

"We did everything we had to do to win, but we just didn't win," said Central Michigan Coach Dick Parfitt.

"We had so many opportunities to win it I just felt confident we were going to win," he said. "But in the end we just seemed to be too tight shooting when it counted."

Bowling Green Coach Pat Haley said Central did well.

"The only team that came to play basketball tonight was Central Michigan. Give them all the credit in the world.

"I guess you could place the blame on my shoulders for our poor showing," he said. "We were just too loose going into the game."

The University of Toledo ended Western Michigan's five-game winning streak, defeating them 69-61 in another MAC contest.

In the Ohio Conference, it was Wooster over Ohio Wesleyan 83-47, while Case Western Reserve defeated Thiel 62-60 in the President's Conference.

In other basketball action Wednesday night, Findlay defeated Taylor 92-80 and Hanover beat Wilmington 93-79 in the Hoosier-Buckeye Conference, Ball State beat Cincinnati 99-82 and Wittenberg triumphed over Central State 66-60.

Other games included West Virginia Wesleyan 62, Marietta 60; John Carrol 80, Oberlin 78; Mount Union 97, Hiram 87; Akron 84, Cleveland State 59; Youngstown State 95, Alliance, Pa. 69; Rio Grande 85, Wilberforce 82, and Urbana 75, Ohio Dominican 67.

Miami of Ohio eyes new football coach

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—Sunday's the date Miami of Ohio officials hope to name a new head football coach and the lone non-Miami grad of eight applicants said he's sure he'll get "a fair chance" at the post.

Dick Crum, a key architect in making the Redskins the nation's No. 1 defensive team in 1973, said Wednesday he won't "be bitter" if he doesn't get the job.

Below-the-waist downfield blocking halted by NCAA

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — In an effort to reduce college football injuries, the National Collegiate Athletic Association has outlawed downfield blocking below the waist on kickoff and punt returns next spring.

The NCAA Rules Committee adopted the blocking rule and several others during a meeting here Wednesday.

"We have found that 50 per cent of the injuries received on kicking plays are knee injuries, and occur during downfield blocking," said John Waldorf, Rules Committee chairman.

Another rules change calls for penalties on running plays to be enforced from when the ball carrier is halted, except when the infraction is committed by the offensive team behind the ball. Those will be stepped off from the point of infraction.

A key change provides that all infractions carry penalties, which the committee said was designed to lessen what it called "cheap shots" during the game.

Other major changes include:

—Substitution. A player must remain in the game for one play, while anyone taken out of the contest must remain out for one play. During the past season players could run into the game only long enough to deliver a play message and then leave.

—Kickoff receivers. Players receiving kickoffs can shade their eyes against the sun, an action prohibited in the past.

—Field goals. A ball must pass between the two uprights for a field goal. Previously a ball could pass over one upright.

—Hearing aids. Players with hearing disabilities may wear them.

Mantle, Ford enter 'Hall'

NEW YORK (AP) — Slugger Mickey Mantle and pitcher Whitey Ford, longtime New York Yankee teammates, were elected to baseball's Hall of Fame today.

Mantle became only the seventh player in history to be elected to the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

He attracted a total of 322 votes on the 365 ballots cast.

Ford, who had fallen 29 votes short of election last year, received 284. To be elected, a player must be named on 75 per cent of the ballots cast. With 365 voters, 272 was the magic number for election.

Ohio State gains home football game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State has gained one home football game for next fall, but may lose another one.

The Big Ten school's Athletic Council approved a first-ever 11th game Wednesday, a home date Sept. 21 against Oregon State of the Pacific-8.

Jack Billingham outstanding pitcher

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Jack Billingham, whose seven shutouts tied a 67-year-old Cincinnati Reds record, has been named his team's Outstanding Pitcher of 1973 by the Cincinnati Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The tall righthander, who led the National League in shutouts last season, was a runaway choice for the award. Pedro Borbon was the only other Reds' hurler to draw votes.

Talking animals aid handicapped children

TULARE, Calif. (AP) — A herd of talking animals is helping mentally handicapped children in Tulare County develop communication skills.

Children at the Maple Melody Learning Center and three other county facilities talk to the stuffed creatures — and the animals talk back.

The animals — a bull, a lion, a St. Bernard and a dalmatian — have been wired for sound, and Kenneth Wright, county Dept. of Education coordinator of programs for the mentally handicapped, says the children relate well to them.

Wright says the two-month-old program has helped some youngsters who were completely incapable of communicating before the animals were introduced.

"The cuddly animals are much easier to relate to than the coldness of a tape recorder or other audio aid," Wright says.

Two-way radios enable a therapist or teaching assistant to engage children in conversation from a distance. To the delighted child, it appears he is talking with the animal itself.

"Often the communication is no more than a happy smile or an excited hand clapping," said Marla Ludwig, a teacher at the Maple Melody Center.

"If Rene is at the table, she can reach up and kiss me on the ear," says the bull, with Miss Ludwig huddled over the microphone in the corner.

Rene, obviously surprised the bull knows her name, reaches up and kisses the overstuffed bull on the ear.

"Primarily, we use the bull as a reinforcer. In other words, It's better for the bull to say 'Dale, that was good,' instead of me saying it," Miss Ludwig says.

"The use of the medium is an absolute success. When the problems are cleared up, it could be a valuable teaching tool instead of just a reinforcer," she said.

One problem lies in the amplification system, which is relatively low-powered. some wiring needs strengthening. And of course, some children just don't approve of a talking bull.

"The older kids tend to think of the bull as babyish," Miss Ludwig said.

Opening lead - five of clubs.

When a slam is bid, the difference between making and losing it ordinarily ranges from 1,000 to 1,800 points, depending on vulnerability. Slams are therefore quite naturally deemed worthy of the closest attention by both sides.

Consistent with the importance of slam hands, there are several special defensive weapons that help to increase the chance of defeating a slam when it is bid.

Thus, when a defender not on lead doubles a slam voluntarily reached by the opposition, he is commanding partner to lead, or sometimes not to lead, a specific suit.

The advantage of this convention is clearly illustrated in the accompanying hand. South makes the slam if West leads a heart, the suit East has bid. But East's double forbids the normal heart lead and calls for an unusual lead. It is not difficult for West, with six cards in the suit dummy has bid, to deduce that East's reason for forbidding a heart lead is that he can ruff a club.

So West leads a club, ruffed by East, and East then cashes a heart to put the contract down one — 200 points. With a heart lead South would score 1,860 points.

It must be granted that by using such a convention the defenders will occasionally lose an extra 50 or 100 points they could have gained by doubling the slam. But this occasional loss is a mighty cheap price to pay for insuring the defeat of other slams that would otherwise come rolling home.

The opening leader generally has no trouble guessing which suit his partner wants led. Most important of all, he is barred from leading the suit his side has bid. Of the two side suits left, the opening leader's hand will practically always tell him where to attack.

Lie Detector's Moment of Truth

How does a lie detector work? Is it sometimes used in medical diagnosis?

Mr. H.G., Ky.

Dear Mr. G.:

The lie detector, or polygraph, is a highly sensitive machine that registers even barely perceptible emotional responses.

There is a definite relationship between emotional distress and physical behavior, as when a person is embarrassed or upset. Perspiration may appear on the forehead and lips, a pink blush covers the face, and the eyes may become teary and bright — all of in a fraction of a second.

A polygraph attached to the body at this time would quickly register increased respiration, a change in blood pressure, and a rapid change in the rate of the heart.

Fascinating is the use of the polygraph in medical practice. For example, it has been used for the early detection of deafness in infants and young children. Deaf children who cannot respond can be studied by their skin reactions that show up in the polygram.

Its greatest function, of course, is its use in criminology.

Can a doctor tell if a growth is cancerous just by looking at it?

Mrs. T.V.M., Ohio

Dear Mrs. M.

After years of experience doctors, surgeons and dentists develop a special diagnostic sense by which they can infer if a growth is cancerous or noncancerous.

The appearance of the growth, its location, its color, its movability, an intact covering, and the associated symptoms help the doctor arrive at a conclusion.

However, the doctor never depends solely on visual judgment. When there is the slightest suggestion that the tumor might be malignant, part of it is removed for microscopic study and the exact nature of the tumor is determined.

Theft, vandalism incidents reported to sheriff, police

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported a case of petty larceny and city police reported the breaking and entering of an auto and a vandalism prank involving bedsheets.

An unidentified man is being sought by sheriff's deputies for walking out of Montgomery Hardware in Jeffersonville, with a $20 socket set, sometime between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., Wednesday.

The man was seen in the store, but only his clothing could be described.

A piccolo theft from the Miami Trace instrument room, actually occurred sometime last November. Sheriff's deputies received word of the theft Wednesday and added it to the books. The piccolo belonged to Cindy K. Davis, Sabina.

A car owned by Cynthia Rand, 623 S. Elm St., was broken into Saturday night or early Sunday morning. The owner didn't discover the entry and report it to Police until Wednesday afternoon when she noticed the latches holding the back window section had been broken.

Nothing was taken or disturbed within the car, but new hinges will cost approximately $67.

Police noted that an empty green money bag had been lying on the front seat and this could have been the motive for the offense.

Three bedsheets were pulled from a backyard clothesline and thrown to the ground, police reported. The offense occurred at the Lois I. Plymale residence, 717 Oak Drove, sometime Wednesday evening.

SCOPS will meet in canal warehouse

The next meeting of "SCOPS", the South Central Ohio Preservation Society, Inc., will be held Sunday, Jan. 27, at 2 p.m. in the historic "Old Canal Warehouse", Mulberry and Main Sts. in Chillicothe.

This will be a combination business meeting and walking tour. The building will be heated, but warm clothing and walking shoes are recommended.

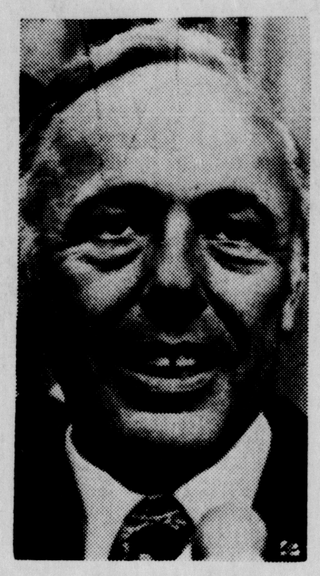

The warehouse is large, consisting of three floors and a basement. Last year it was scheduled to be torn down to make way for a parking lot.

Instead, it was sold recently and will be restored.

150th anniversary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Holmes County will be 150 years old Jan. 20, Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said today.

Brown said the north central Ohio county was created by the legislature in 1824 and was named after an officer in the War of 1812.

LEAVING COURT — White House lawyer James St. Clair pauses to talk to newsmen outside U.S. District Court in Washington. Technical experts told the court that the 18-minute gap in a subpoenaed Watergate tape was caused by repeated stopping and starting of the recording machine during the obliteration.

The largest crowd ever to gather at a funeral is estimated at about four million who thronged through Cairo for the funeral of President Gamal Abdel Nassar in 1970.

EPA handout use by solons hit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Five Democratic state legislators used almost identical press releases based on letters from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency to disburse information to their constituents Wednesday.

The releases concerned $2.4 million in state money from the federal revenue sharing program for use in the improvement of local water supply systems. Such "handout" announcements normally come directly from state agencies involved.

In one release, Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, and Rep. John P. Wrgo, D-2 Lisbon, announced funds for the villages of East Liverpool, Salineville and Washingtonville.

In another, Meshel joined with Rep. George D. Tablack, D-52 Hubbard, to announce improvements at the villages of Sebring and Washingtonville, and in the Mahoning Valley Sanitary District.

Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, and Rep. C. J. McLin Jr., D-36 Dayton, advised Montgomery County that it is eligible for a $15,000 grant "from the State of Ohio's revenue sharing money."

All but Hall, among the five, are up for re-election this year.

The news releases pointed out that 52 communities around the state have been declared eligible for grants in three categories: improvement needed because of existing health hazards, $1.5 million; those needed in communities with uncovered finished drinking water supplies, $600,000 and those needing more laboratory equipment, $300,000.

Individual grants were not listed, but the EPA said East Liverpool and Salineville would share in the $600,000 earmarked for covering reservoirs along with Cleveland, Lancaster, London, Martins Ferry, Napoleon, New Philadelphia, New Richmond, Sebring, Springfield, Toronto, Twin City, and Warren.

Washingtonville is among 21 municipalities eligible to share in $1.5 million for basic water system improvements, along with Flushing, Irondale, Mount Orab, Greenfield, New Lebanon, Elida, Fairborn, Put-in-Bay, Kellys Island, Rock Creek, Adena, Trenton, Dillonvale, McClure, Ada, Gratis, Green Meadows, Bremen and West Milton.

The Mahoning Valley Sewer District is among 17 governmental entities eligible to share in the $300,000 for laboratory equipment. Others in this category are Akron, Canton, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Cuyahoga Falls, Dayton, Elyria, Hamilton, Lima, Lorain, Middletown, Montgomery County, Newark, Portsmouth, Springfield, and Warren.

Chaplain sorry for enthusiastic Gilligan remark

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Peace apparently is restored between an Ohio House chaplain and Republicans who raised their eyebrows during his prayer suggesting Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan should be president.

The Rev. Colby Grimes of Columbus apologized Wednesday in another prayer, saying in part that the House "is not the proper place to display my enthusiasm ... be merciful to me ... I see the evil I have done."

The Rev. Mr. Grimes said in a prayer the day before, prior to Gilligan's "State of the State" message, that he hoped the governor "one day soon would be delivering the State of the Union address."

GOP lawmakers who said they would file some sort of protest with the Democratic majority now indicate the chaplain's apology has put the matter to rest. They declined further comment.

Trial set in slayings

FALMOUTH, Ky. (AP) — Two men charged in a mass murder last October which claimed six lives are to face trial April 23.

The date was set Wednesday. The two men — Wilmer E. Scott, 25, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and William H. Sloan, 24, Louisville — were indicted on 11 counts earlier this week by a Pendleton County grand jury.

The two escaped from federal custody in Lexington Oct. 1.

Circuit Judge John P. Lair denied a defense motion for a change of venue and for names of witnesses.

The judge ordered Commonwealth Attorney Larry Tucker to turn over statements made by Scott and Sloan to police.
